NORTH PORT WRECKED BY U.S. BOMBERS

SAIGON (CP) — United States navy planes virtually knocked out Cam Pha, North Vietnam's third biggest seaport, in the first raid on the previously restricted target, the U.S. command announced today.

Cam Pha, only 46 miles northeast of Haiphong, the biggest northern port, is a major outlet for valuable coal exports to China and Russia that help pay for arms.

Until the raid Sunday, the port, which is used by Russian coaling ships, had been on the Pentagon's list of restricted targets.

On the ground, bloody battling again raged between outnumbered U.S. marines and nearly 3,000 North Vietnamese, with both sides taking heavy casualties.

BORDER INCIDENT

China-India Fight Erupts

NEW DELHI (CP)—Indian and Chinese forces clashed on the Sikkim border with Chinese-held Tibet today.

The Indian defence ministry said Chinese artillery and small arms fire killed some Indians and wounded others. China claimed 25 of its troops were killed or wounded.

Both sides blamed the other for starting the fight, the second in five days in the area high in the Himalayas.

As protector of Sikkim, India is responsible for its defence.

Independent accounts in New Delhi were that eight Indians were wounded and a smaller number killed.

The fighting caused some consternation in New Delhi. India and China fought a short but sharp border war in 1962.

FIRING IN MIST

All India radio reported the Chinese troops opened fire in mist on Indian forces guarding Nathu La Pass. It said the shooting started with rifle and machine-gun fire and then was followed up with artillery and mortars.

From Peking, the New China news agency claimed the Indians crossed into Tibet at the pass, attacking Chinese frontier guards under cover of artillery fire.

All India radio said a few Indian soldiers were wounded in the exchange.

The Chinese broadcast dispatch said the Indians were seeking to "provoke an even larger scale border incident."

The two forces clashed at Nathu La last Thursday and each side later accused the other of infruding across the border. The Chinese claimed then that two of their soldiers were wounded by Indian bayonets.

Sikkim is an Indian protectorate.

End Split Of Europe —De Gaulle

WARSAW (CP) — President Charles de Gaulle urged Poland today to join with France in the creation of a united Europe reaching from the Atlantic to Russia's Ural Mountains.

Speaking to the Polish Parliament, near the end of his six-day state visit, de Gaulle urged an end to the Europe of two opposed blocs.

"Destiny," he said, "offers to Poland and France the possibility to work together in a close and privileged way. We are ready to undertake this with you Poles."

De Gaulle in his 15-minute speech said that "real security for our countrymen and for each country of our continent cannot of course result from the confrontation of two blocs, facing one another with forces on the alert and opposing pacts.

"On the contrary, let there be established among us from the Atlantic to the Urals a deliberate policy and practice of relaxation of tension, understanding and co-operation."

De Gaulle was followed to the rostrum by Polish Communist Party leader Wladyslaw Gomulka, who urged that co-operation replace "the dangerous division imposed upon Europe by blocs."

RIGHTS 'EQUAL'

But he said the existence of two German states with equal rights must be accepted as "the only way to regularize the German problem to serve the cause of peace."

Greece, Turkey Agree On Cyprus Settlement

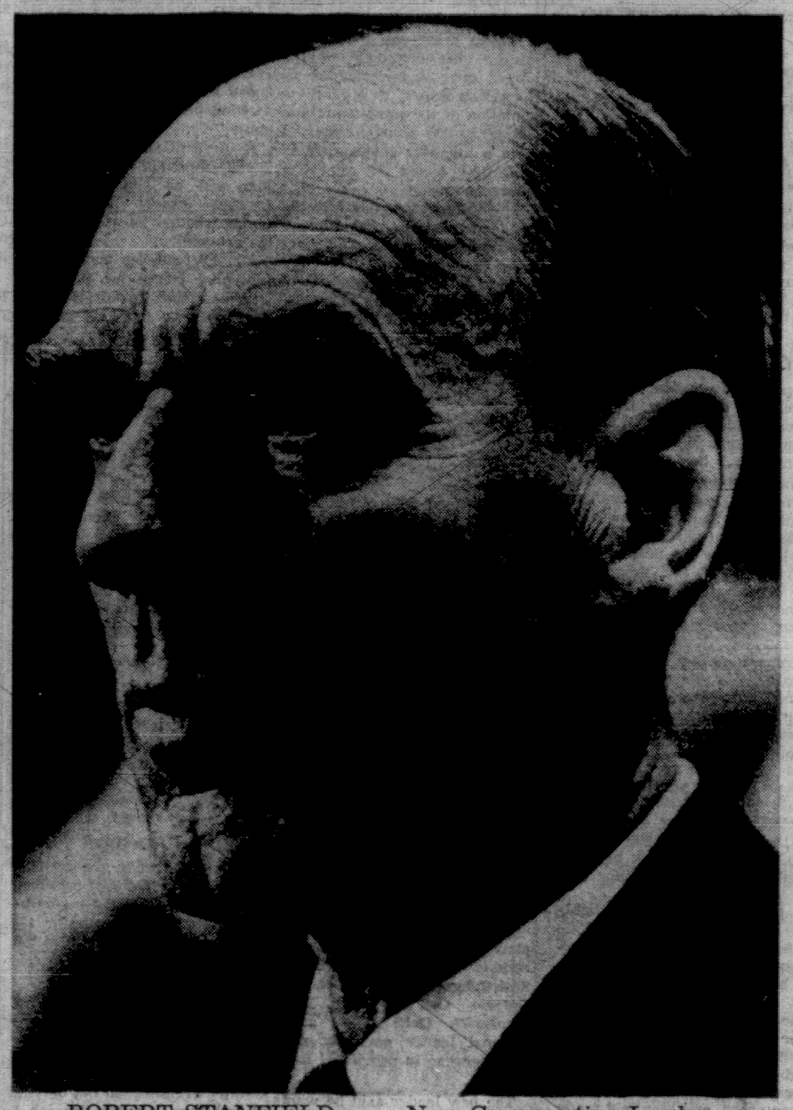

ALEXANDROUPOLIS, Greece (AP) — Turkish Premier Suleyman Demirel and Premier Constantine Kollias of Greece say they have agreed to settle the Cyprus problem peacefully.

No concrete steps were listed in their joint communique, however, as the two leaders ended talks Sunday night. Observers on both sides had not yet been found.

Cyprus, whose 600,000 population is 80 per cent Greek and 20 per cent Turkish, was the scene of large-scale fighting between Greek and Turkish residents in 1963. A UN peacekeeping force including several hundred Canadians is still on duty.

The Greeks want Cyprus united with Greece. Turkey opposes this, and it is generally believed that the island's Greek-Cypriot president, Archbishop Makarios, is not enthusiastic about it although he has endorsed the unity movement, known as Enosis.

Nova Scotia MP Offers Seat For Stanfield in Commons

ROBERT STANFIELD . . . New Conservative Leader

Resigning Right Away As Premier

(Times News Services)

Cyril F. Kennedy today announced he is prepared to resign from the House of Commons to offer his Colchester - Hants seat in Nova Scotia to Robert L. Stanfield, new national leader of the Progressive Conservative Party.

Mr. Kennedy, 52, said in a brief statement in Truro, N.S., he would resign the seat he has held since 1957 if the new leader wants to seek election there. Mr. Stanfield, still Premier of Nova Scotia, was elected to succeed Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker at a leadership convention in Toronto Saturday.

Mr. Kennedy said he had not discussed his move with Mr. Stanfield and did not know if the premier would accept the offer. Truro is Mr. Stanfield's birthplace and Colchester-Hants is familiar political ground for the 53-year-old leader.

ELECTED IN 1949

Mr. Stanfield was first elected to the Nova Scotia legislature in the provincial riding of Colchester in 1949, a year after he was elected provincial PC leader. He and Finance Minister G. I. Smith have been re-elected in the two-member constituency with sizable majorities since then.

Mr. Kennedy was re-elected in Colchester-Hants in the 1958, 1962, 1963 and 1965 general elections.

Stanfield, meanwhile, held a press conference in Toronto today before his triumphant return to Halifax.

The new leader was scheduled to leave for Halifax at 5:30 p.m. EDT by chartered plane. He said he plans to resign immediately as premier of Nova Scotia and will begin Tuesday the process of turning over the Nova Scotia government to new hands. He did not amplify his statement on this point.

MAY BE CHANGES

The new leader told Toronto newsmen a Conservative policy convention will be called within 15 months.

He said the controversial statement on policy adopted by a committee at last week's leadership convention will be given continuing study, along with policy recommendations from the constituencies, by a group to be set up for the purpose.

The committee report, adopted as a series of recommendations for party policy for the next federal election, contained a recommendation that the party favor a two-nation concept for Canada. This was opposed by Mr. Diefenbaker.

The new leader would not say that the committee report would be adopted by the study group without change.

"It is not necessarily a work of perfection," he said. "There may very well be changes in the report."

Mr. Stanfield received from William Davis, Ontario minister of education and chairman of the convention's policy committee, copies of the commit-

FOR NEW TORY CHIEF

Maritimes Rolling Out Red Carpet

By Times Ottawa Bureau

TORONTO — Robert Stanfield goes home to Halifax today and the roaring welcome given a conquering hero.

The red carpet is being rolled out for the man from the Maritimes who captured the Conservative Party crown.

He came out of relative political obscurity as the 53-year-old premier of an Atlantic province to lead the field in all five ballots Saturday at Maple Leaf Gardens.

After seven hot, action-packed, spine-tingling hours of the highest political drama, it was Stanfield by 1,150 votes to 969 for Manitoba's Duff Roblin at the finish.

And also finished was John Diefenbaker.

Nine days before his 72nd birthday, the man who had led the Tories to the greatest Parliamentry strength in Canadian history, was cut down.

He went down battling in an obviously hopeless struggle, and cold-bloodedly the voting machines counted him out.

His total rejection was proof that the convention did not agree with his interpretation of the party's two-nation policy for Canada, and did not see it as the death blow for Canada that he did.

Depended on Old Loyalties

In the first ballot—and his hopes lay in strength in this one when he was depending on old loyalties—he mustered only 271 votes out of 2,233.

The numbers showed that Diefenbaker, "The Chief" for 11 years, had outlived his political usefulness, and politics can be cruel when this time comes.

He withdrew after the third ballot when his strength had dwindled to only 14 votes.

And although he came out in his farewell speech still opposed to the two-nation policy, he also came out for party.

He made a speech that helped close the rift that has badly hurt the Tories in the dying years of his regime.

Man With Balance of Power

And although he did not get the job he so badly wanted, B.C.'s Davie Fulton wound up the man with the balance of power.

After the fourth ballot, Stanfield had 865 votes; Roblin 771; Fulton, 357, and Alvin Hamilton was knocked out as low man with 167.

But the word had got around the excited, perspiring crowds in the Gardens—at least those in the know—before the third ballot began, that Fulton, if he had not made gains by the third or fourth, would pull out after the fourth and throw his support in favor of Stanfield.

Many observers predicted early in last week's convention that this was going to happen, although there were denials from both sides of any deals.

But that was how it worked out. Fulton, tired and obviously disappointed, huddled with his advisers after the fourth ballot and then declared himself for Stanfield.

And that was all the Maritimer needed for victory.

Fulton's strength in the four ballots he participated in had held steady—343, 346, 361 and 357.

He didn't tell his followers to vote Stanfield and he didn't have to. They got the message.

Fulton Went Out With Dignity

But Fulton went out with dignity. He declined to wear a Stanfield hat or button, or make an obvious show of his switch.

The news, however, raced around the Gardens and the forest of Stanfield signs grew thicker in the seats.

But Stanfield, and he did not have to underscore the strategy, walked over and shook Fulton's hand and expressed appreciation of the gesture.

It is calculated that about 150 Quebec delegates stuck with Fulton to the end and about two-thirds of them followed to Stanfield.

The majority of the Quebecers favored the bilingual Roblin over the unilingual Stanfield, but the Maritimer probably got at least a quarter of their more than 500 votes.

His big strength came from the Maritimes as his commanding 519 votes in the first round indicated, but Stanfield now has good representation in the party in all parts of Canada.

The other candidates were never in it. Wally McCutcheon, who got 137 votes in the first and 76 in the second, threw in

POOR SHOWING 'BITTER PILL'

Dief Quitting House?

Times News Services

TORONTO — John Diefenbaker is seriously considering quitting the Parliamentary arena, close associates said here today.

Mr. Diefenbaker gambled at the leadership convention here last week that he could regain his hold on the Conservative party and carry on as national leader.

He lost the gamble.

He also lost, by his action in entering the race, the opportunity to bring about the election of a candidate that he would have preferred to see take over the party.

NO HELP TO THEM

It is well known that Mr. Diefenbaker would have preferred to see Donald Fleming, Alvin Hamilton, Michael Starr or Duff Roblin elected national leader rather than Robert Stanfield. When Mr. Diefenbaker entered the race as a candidate he destroyed the chances of those candidates to beat Mr. Stanfield.

As a last minute gesture designed to bolster Mr. Roblin's strength in the race, Mr. Diefenbaker invited the Manitoba premier to confer with him publicly in the jam-packed, super-heated Maple Leaf Gardens arena Saturday as the voting neared the final ballot. Mr. Diefenbaker's gesture probably did Mr. Roblin more harm that good as it turned out.

Mr. Diefenbaker's poor showing in the race was a bitter blow to the "Chief".

The day after the convention he conferred with close friends and supporters in the Royal York Hotel. They passed the word that he was seriously thinking about retiring.

IN MAJOR DEBATES

However some were urging him to carry on as a "senior statesman" of the party and retain his seat in the Commons. They said he could make appearances in the House when major debates were underway or important pieces of Legislation were being considered.

It is understood Mr. Diefenbaker may return to Prince Albert to consult his constituents before making his decision whether to retire or continue.

A source close to Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan says Mr. Diefenbaker may be asked to become chancellor of his alma mater, the University of Saskatchewan.

Mr. Diefenbaker, after his

De Gaulle Quebec Visit 'Followed Up'

QUEBEC (CP)—Education Minister Alain Peyrefitte of France said today his current visit to Quebec is directly linked with the July visit of President de Gaulle, and the French support promised to French-speaking Canadians.

He made the statement to reporters on arrival at Quebec's Ancienne Lorette Airport to begin a five-day visit to the province.

"The visit I am making . . . is intended to bring concrete results to the visit of Gen. de Gaulle," he said.

"We must discover the wishes of our Quebec friends and find out how they fit in with ours."

During his three-day stay in Quebec City Mr. Peyrefitte is scheduled to study, with Quebec government authorities, the terms of cultural and educational agreements between Quebec and France which have been in effect since 1965.

SURVEYOR LANDS SOFTLY DESPITE LEAK

Quick Thinking Rescues Moon Mission

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—One satellite, with bees in its bonnet, and another, with bugs in its system, have fulfilled the dreams of U.S. space engineers just by landing in one piece.

The first, called the astrobug satellite, was snagged in flight over the Pacific Saturday as it came down from space after 30 trips around the earth.

The second, called Surveyor V, landed gently on the moon Sunday after scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here feared some leaks—the bugs—in a helium pressure system had killed the mission.

Surveyor Project Manager Howard Haglund told a press conference Sunday night the Surveyor V landed on a gentle slope, perhaps as much as 10 degrees off horizontal, about 18 miles northwest of its original aiming point in the dry Sea of Tranquillity.

The surveyor program manager, Ben Milwitsky, credited engineers with saving the mission after a valve stuck and caused a loss of the helium-used to force rocket fuel into three small braking engines that help guide the descent.

Milwitsky said the engineers who designed the flight pattern saved the mission by doing in 40 hours what usually takes a week of planning. He said they redesigned the mission after the helium problem cropped up. They held off firing the main retro rocket until the last second, saving every ounce of helium possible.

In the first pictures returned by the 600-pound craft, scientists saw a typical lunar landscape scene, loose-looking crater-pocked soil.

They hoped to start work on a new experiment right away, testing the soil to learn its chemical composition. By bombarding the lunar soil with alpha particles, then reading the reflected radiation, they hope to determine what elements are in the soil.

The quest for one element—iron—will be made with a magnet mounted on one of the craft's three legs. Lunar soil dropped on the magnet by a little electric scoop shovel will tell scientists if iron is present by showing whether particles stick or not.

The successful, if somewhat shaky, landing marks the third successful touchdown for the surveyor program. Two other craft apparently crashed into the moon at full speed, destroying themselves.

The astrobug satellite, known officially as Biosatellite II, was called an "unbelievable success" by scientists who gathered in Hawaii to greet the millions of bugs and plants inside the craft.

Dr. Samuel P. Johnson of North American Aviation noted his experiment with pepper plants indicates "we now have evidence that gravity really controls the orientation of a plant."

He said the leaves on the plants sent into space folded down, although such plants under normal gravitation fold the leaves up.

the towel and went over to Stanfield and put on a badge.

George Hees, who mustered just under 300 votes in each of the three ballots he contested, also threw in his hand in favor of Stanfield.

But it was Fulton's move that put Stanfield over the top—and it is speculated that he will become House leader and acting leader until Stanfield wins a seat.

It was obvious that enough of Fulton's followers would follow his move, but in the nerve-jangling type of day it was at the Gardens, nothing was sure until the counting was in.

Stanfield, sitting in the same front row of the "red" with his family, as he had from before noon on, was flashed the results by his followers minutes before it was officially announced.

'Wait for Official Results'

"Let's wait for it, let's wait for it officially," he murmured to his wife, son and daughter, and ecstatic followers.

In the hot, exciting Gardens, Stanfield never once lost his cool.

He maintained a glacial calm that added to his reputation as a cold fish, although he has a rich, dry sense of humor, but one that he does not dole out lavishly.

Some of his followers in the mob scene around him started to sing his special song to the tune "This Land Is Your Land."

There was a smaller crowd of reporters and cameramen around Roblin—it was obvious that only the most dramatic upset would give him the top post.

At 10:43 p.m.—actual voting started at 3:22 p.m.—convention co-chairman Eddie Goodman banged his gavel.

The noisy arena hushed.

"The result of the fifth and final ballot and the new leader of the Progressive Conservative Party and the man who will lead you to victory, "Robert Stanfield," cried Goodman.

And it was bedlam.

Lean Face Broke Out in Smiles

His craggy, lean face broke into smiles.

He held up his hands for cameramen and the crowds.

Bands blared, pipes skirled, people roared and from the roof of the Gardens floated down hundreds of balloons.

The crowd popped them as they descended and the pops sounded salvo after salvo across the Gardens.

Police cleared the way through the swarming crowds and led Stanfield and his party to the stage.

After a long and tension-wracked day, there was relief all round, mingling with the bubbling enthusiasm of the boisterous Maritimers who had witnessed their man do what they believed he would, but what many Conservatives and Canadians doubted.

This seemingly non-hero of a man in an undistinguished, crumpled blue suit, with an austere appearance and flat, measured style of speech, had won the day.

It had been stated by many before the race began that it was a lightweight field.

But Stanfield came through to the majority of his fellow Tories as a heavyweight—a man of substance and conviction.

When he had come to Toronto for the beginning of the race, he was figured by many to be the second choice with Roblin having a slight edge.

Stanfield Had Smooth Campaign

But in the days prior to voting, Stanfield's smooth campaign had gained in momentum, but money and strategy would not have mattered much if the man had not made an impression.

Going into the voting, he had clearly established himself a favorite.

The crowds swarmed into the voting area, which had been strictly controlled for voting delegates only during the day.

They jammed around the stage to see the final moments, the moments of victory while millions watched the proceedings on TV.

It was a Saturday night drama; but this involved real people, the political future of Canada that affects all, and it was an historic night—one of triumph and cheering, and of pathos and pity.

Roblin, a disappointed man, moved to the mikes.

Most of the other candidates were on stage, including Diefenbaker.

"Let this great convention greet its new leader," he cried. "Let this great convention meet the next prime minister. This party is on the move."

Old, Tired Man . . . Unbeaten

And then Diefenbaker moved to the mikes. He looked an old, tired man, defeated but unbowed.

The writing came on the wall last November when national president Dalton Camp won the decision to have the leadership meeting.

Camp had played a major part in Stanfield's campaign but had carefully stayed in the background during the convention.

And it was Diefenbaker's farewell. The voting showed that any further resistance—possibility of him forming a rump group in the House if the convention did not repudiate the two-nation concept—would be totally meaningless.

He looked out into the cheering mass and motioned eventually with his hands for silence. His wife Olive, standing behind him, never took her eyes off the man who will go down in history as one of the great political campaigners and battlers.

But now it was not the time to "Follow John."

"My fellow Conservatives," he said, and the crowd broke into more applause.

It was a most emotion-packed moment for him and his last hurrah. But he kept his emotions in check—there was no sign of a tear in the eye. The head was high; the chin jutted out.

He said he welcomed the new leader of the party, and there were more cheers.

"For him I ask above everything else, loyalty from the rank and file of all of us," Diefenbaker said.

The crowd listened anxiously. Diefenbaker's speech was important. The count made it obvious that he was no longer the man with the power to create great havoc, but he still was the man who could help or hamper party unity. He recalled that he, too, once had been hailed as the new Tory leader.

Dief said a leader could expect to be the subject of persistent attacks.

The crowd tensed, wondering what would come next. A man on stage muttered: "Don't blow it, Dief."

He went on to say that when the fires of controversy burned around the leader "don't add gasoline to that fire".

He lowered his voice: "My course has come ot an end.

Voices from the floor shouted: "No. No."

He said that the party had given him loyalty that had led to more victories for the party than from the time of Sir John A. Macdonald.

Continues 'One Nation' Stand

But, he said, he withdrew nothing from his stand that he wanted to see Canada "one country, one nation, my country and your country." There was applause.

"From the bottom of my heart I thank you for the opportunity of being able to serve in my day," he said.

"And to my successor I say to him, may you, with wisdom and forbearance, and with a record of success that you have had in the province of Nova Scotia, extend that success in the next election so that we in Canada once more shall have good government of, by and for the people.."

The band blared out "Hail the Chief" and there were three cheers.

Pipers moved to the front and Stanfield stepped forward to loud cheers. He put his arm around his wife standing beside him.

He told the crowd it had been a long day and he hoped it proved a good day for the party.

He joked that he just happened to have a few notes with him, and he pulled a piece of paper from his pocket.

Stanfield thanked the delegates for the great honor and great responsibility placed upon him.

"Many of you know me and there is no need for me to speak to you about my limitations because you have had a good chance to see them," he said.

Stanfield, cool and calm and still low-key despite the victory that could lead him to the top political job in Canada, said he had taken good advice when he took his wife campaigning with him across the country, something she had never done before.

There was a big hand for the smiling Mrs. Stanfield, a small, dainty woman.

Stanfield said he was sure that they would leave the convention in unity and in good shape.

It was not powerful stuff, but the crowd did not need stimulus.

And when it was all over the Stanfields made their way out of the Gardens, walking over torn up signs and placards that had reflected high hopes and aspirations.

It was well after 11 p.m. and the end of a long, long day.

But it wasn't over by celebration standards, and parties went on through the night in some cases, and Stanfield made a point of visiting the headquarters of all the other candidates.

He was a leader on his rounds.

suggestion he made on his arrival in Warsaw that the French and Polish governments be on the lookout for an opportunity to help end the war in Vietnam.

De Gaulle appealed to Poland on the issue because it is one of the three members of the International Control Commission set up to supervise enforcement of the 1954 Geneva agreements on peace in Indochina. Canada and India are the other members.

So, he suggested, the two could stay in contact "in case there should appear the possibility of their helping together to end the tragedy there, that is, the bombing and land war, then to remove the cause of it —which is foreign intervention —and finally to repair the odious ravages inflicted on this region."

Gomulka said:

"Poland and France are agreed that there must be an end without delay to foreign interference in the affairs of Southeast Asia and to assure the Vietnamese people the right to be independent and to decide its own fate."

But he did not respond to de Gaulle's plea for co-operation.

Blizzard Kills 2 Climbers

PARADISE, Mount Rainier National Park (AP) — Two of three climbers trapped overnight in a blizzard on Washington state's Mount Rainier were reported found dead today, dangling from ropes in crevasses into which they had fallen.

The dead are Elmer Post, 39, of Seattle, and his nephew, David Post, 19, of Tacoma, Wash.

Their companion was Jimmy Batrum, 19, of Tacoma, the middle man of the climbing group who spent the night on a snow bridge between the two crevasses into which the Posts fell.

He was roped to the two others but could not haul them up, even with the help of a Gig Harbor, Wash., youth, Jock Claringbould, who had joined the party after they had set out from Paradise Valley Sunday.

defeat was sealed Saturday, told his now-cheering party:

"Now that I am taking my retirement, I say this to you with deepest feeling, I have nothing to withdraw in my desire to see Canada one country, one nation."

From the experience of three bitter years of contention over the leadership, he advised his party:

HEIR TO STRIFE

Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia was heir to those years of internal party strife culminating in his election Saturday.

Eleven years ago the Prairie lawyer took command of the party. After a few months as Opposition leader, he spread the adulation of the party rank and across the electoral map to form a minority government in 1957 that ended 22 years of Liberal power.

He raised the party's fortunes to the pinnacle in 1958, winning the greatest Commons majority since Confederation.

After that, the brightness of his star began to dim. The 1962 election cut a record majority down to a minority government. Cabinet resignations, a mismanaged attempt to fire Bank of Canada governor James Coyne and a crisis over the government's refusal to accept nuclear warheads and over foreign exchange all contributed to the 1963 election defeat.

After that, internal dissatisfaction among powerful party figures broke surface. Mr. Diefenbaker fought down a move to have the party association vote non-confidence in him in 1965.

Leon Balcer, his Quebec lieutenant, demanded that the national executive summon a leadership convention. Again Mr. Diefenbaker won, largely through a well-timed vote of confidence from the party's 95 MPs.

PLAN OVERTHROW

A Toronto advertising man, Dalton Camp, planned carefully and at a party annual meeting last fall won an overwhelming majority for his demand for a leadership convention.

The 71-year-old chieftain was booed and hissed at the annual meeting before a national audience.

A surge of sympathy for Mr. Diefenbaker put new heart in him and he began to make fighting noises, never quite saying whether he would contest the convention.

Mr. Diefenbaker waited until the policy committee adopted a statement that Canada is "composed of two founding peoples (Deux nations) with historic rights."

He went before the convention to declare this "two-nations" policy would erect a Berlin wall around Quebec, make second-class citizens of 6,000,000 Canadians of neither French nor English origin and turn back the clock to a policy that had failed before Confederation.

His opponents accused him of misrepresenting the policy proposal in an effort to fight for the leadership on the issue of two nations or one.

THREATEN WALKOUT

By then, Mr. Diefenbaker was too deeply committed to running. He had appealed over the heads of the party to the nation for support of his one-Canada policy. His supporters were threatening to walk out and split the party.

The party gave its judgment Saturday. Mr. Diefenbaker's name was fifth among 11 on the first ballot and he lost ground steadily on the second and third before finally withdrawing from contention.

He had tasted defeat before — in 1925 and 1926 in bids for a Commons seat, in 1938 for the Saskatchewan leadership. But there were more victories in his record — election to the Commons in 1940, 1945, 1949, 1953, 1957, 1958, 1962, 1963 and 1965.

He failed in bids for the party leadership in 1943 against John Bracken and 1948 against George Drew, who both were present Saturday to witness his final defeat.

But from the time he won the leadership in 1956 he studded his own and his party's record with successes. These include a Bill of Rights now likely to be made part of the constitution, legislation to speed rural development, financial help to farmers, roads to open northern resources areas.

tee's report and background papers from the Aug. 7-10 Progressive Conservative "thinkers' conference" at Montmorency, Que. The package weighed about five pounds and Mr. Stanfield promised to study the documents carefully "but not today."

On party policy generally, Mr. Stanfield said a group composed of party leaders, academics and others of diverse interests would be established to consider recommendations for the policy convention. A co-ordination staff also would be set up to consider policy on a continuing basis. He hoped that some delegates to the Montmorency conference would be in the group.

The new leader said he had no plans to participate in forthcoming provincial elections—Saskatchewan votes Oct. 11; Ontario Oct. 17 and New Brunswick Oct. 23 — as a national leader normally does not intervene in provincial campaigns.

The new leader said he wants to take a little time off after his strenuous convention campaign but will soon meet the caucus of Conservative MPs, including Mr. Diefenbaker.

Prime Minister Pearson sent Mr. Stanfield a message of congratulations in which he said, "I shall look forward to meeting you as soon as convenient to you to discuss matters of mutual interest."

The premier said Sunday he had not received it yet but appreciated his good wishes.

"I will get in touch with him as soon as possible for a meeting at this convenience."

Mr. Stanfield held his first news conference as Conservative leader at his Toronto campaign headquarters Sunday.

PONDERS HOUSE LEADER

He said he doesn't know yet who the party's house leader will be for the parliamentary session resuming Sept. 25. There would have to be "a considerable degree of consultation" with his colleagues first.

As for a Quebec lieutenant who would be first among French-speaking Conservatives, he thought it was more important to have many such men who could fill cabinet positions and provide leadership.

He felt he had received good support from Quebec delegates in the convention voting.

The premier was non-committal on whether Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba, whom he defeated for the leadership, would be asked to take a cabinet post in a Stanfield government. That was one of the things that would have to be sorted out.

He hoped for Mr. Diefenbaker's support but declined to say whether he would offer his predecessor a cabinet position should the Conservatives win office under his leadership.

"I would not want to presume that Mr. Diefenbaker would want to serve under me."

DISMISSES REPORTS

He again denied reports that Dalton Camp, national president of the party, was the man who persuaded him to run for the Conservative leadership. "A goodly number" of people had influenced him.

He said Mr. Camp "made a number of suggestions from time to time." His campaign had been run by a group that included members of Mr. Camp's organization but over-all it had been a committee job.

He said Mr. Camp would make a good Conservative member of parliament.

Premier Stanfield said he considers price stability the most serious question facing Canada at the moment. Continued increases in the general price level during the last few years were having serious consequences.

Canada's competitive advantage in foreign trade created by dollar devaluation in 1962 had been eroded as a result. There was no sign the government was bringing the situation under control. The United States, on the other hand, had done a much better job despite the pressures caused by the Vietnam war.

He believed there should be a review of Canadian defence policy in the light of changing relations between the big powers but he was not in favor of unilateral decisions. Changes should be made in consultation with Canada's NATO and NORAD partners.

Canada Jet Down

OTTAWA (CP)—The pilot of an RCAF CF-104 jet fighter is missing and presumed dead after his aircraft crashed into the North Sea off the coast of The Netherlands, the defence department announced today.

'GREATER JUSTICE'

Erase Crime Records, Canadian Bar Urges

QUEBEC (CP)—The Canadian Bar Association ended its annual meeting Saturday by approving five resolutions aimed at giving suspects and accused persons greater justice in the process of arrest, trial and sentencing before the criminal courts.

The association also called for legislation to stem hate literature and an amendment to the Immigration Act to cut down the number of deserters from foreign vessels tied up in Canadian ports.

Last-day activity also included the election of A. Gordon Cooper, 58, of Halifax, as president of the 11,000-member association to replace Perrault Casgrain of Rimouski, Que.

COOPER

In the criminal process resolutions, the lawyers recommended that judges be allowed to impose a suspended sentence even if the accused has had a prior conviction and that a person's criminal record be erased on conditions to be fixed by Parliament.

One resolution asked that the Identification of Criminal Act be amended so that in cases where no conviction results or the conviction is later squashed, all records such as fingerprints and pictures in police mug files be destroyed.

Another recommended that no statement made by an accused or suspected person during police interrogation be admitted as evidence unless he was first advised by police of his right to have counsel present while making the statement.

The federal government's bill to outlaw hate propaganda was approved in principle. The bill, introduced before the Senate in May, will make it an offence under the Criminal Code to promote genocide or incite hatred.

As for ship deserters, the association passed a resolution asking that federal immigration officers be empowered to take action against deserters before their vessels leave port.

Lawyer R. C. G. Wilson of Toronto, chairman of the bar's maritime law section, said that between 8,000 and 10,000 foreign seamen are on the loose in Canada. Under existing legislation, he said, immigration officers are reluctant to declare a seaman a deserter until the ship is out of port.

The resolution would allow immigration officials to move in at the request of a ship's captain to take action against deserters before the vessel leaves port.

A resolution to make illegal all electronic eavesdropping except in court-approved instances was put off until next year's meeting in Vancouver because of lack of voting time Saturday.

The resolution would make all electronic eavesdropping a criminal offence except for law enforcement agencies acting with court permission. It would outlaw unconditionally eavesdropping of privileged communication, such as between man and wife or lawyer and client.

POLICEMAN'S BULLET KILLS NEGRO

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (UPI) —A young Negro was shot to death early today during a disturbance by more than 150 Negroes just eight blocks from where black power advocate H. Rap Brown spoke to a crowd a few hours earlier.

A policeman was stabbed in the arm while he watched one of half a dozen fires started by firebombs.

Police said Rosevelt Young, 18, was shot to death by a policeman as he fled an attempted arrest.

DON'T SQUEEZE PIMPLES

Squeezing pimples bruises the skin and leaves dark disfiguring marks. It's easy now to combat pimples and blackheads by clearing the skin with NIXODERM Soap and using antiseptic NIXODERM ointment at night while you sleep. Quickly dries and cleans out pimples and helps heal the skin softer, smoother, clearer. Ask druggist. Look better fast.

WHITES RETALIATE

Bottles, Bricks Rain on Police

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Hundreds of residents of the virtually all-white South Side were scattered by repeated rounds of police tear gas Sunday night in a near riotous aftermath to a Negro march in support of open-desegregated housing.

"Let's go to the North Side," shouted South Side youths milling along what they mistakenly believed would be the route of the Negro marchers. "North! North!"

Police, who tried to persuade the throngs to disperse, were pelted with wood, bottles and bricks. They retaliated with tear gas, firing down residential streets after whites who retreated there.

The 2,500 marchers, who had taken a different route through the South Side in a 14th straight day of demonstrations, already were back at their headquarters in the nearly all-Negro North Side when the white uprising started.

Nineteen persons were arrested and three were injured before it was over. Only minor incidents had occurred during the open housing march, held under heavy police guard.

An estimated 150,000 Polish-Americans live on the South Side, which has a population of about 350,000. Milwaukee has 86,000 Negroes. Almost all of them live on the North Side.

CAN'T KEEP THEM DOWN ON THE FARM

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's rural population declined by 249,736 between 1961 and 1966 as the shift to city living continued at a strong pace.

A report on the 1966 census shows that 736 out of every 1,000 Canadians were living in urban centres, compared to 696 at the census of 1961.

Only 264 of every 1,000 were rural residents last year, compared with 304 just five years earlier.

The report, issued today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, said the major gain in urban population occurred in cities of 500,000 or more which added 1,266,000 residents in the five-year period.

Malawi Link With Whites Brings Howls

KINSHASA, The Congo (AP) —Malawi broke with the black African policy Sunday, on the eve of an African summit meeting, by announcing it will establish diplomatic relations with white-ruled South Africa.

"I am aware that it will cause a hullabaloo in certain quarters of Africa," said President Hastings Banda. "Certainly people will howl and snarl like hyenas and jackals. But where the interests of my country are concerned, I am indifferent to hullabaloo."

Banda was expected to send no representative to the meeting of the Organization of African Unity opening today in Kinshasa. Among other things the meeting is expected to produce the usual attacks on South Africa's apartheid policy of racial segregation.

Malawi, a tea and tobacco producing nation of 4,000,000 people, is the first of the black African nations to establish diplomatic relations with South Africa.

It was expected to be the only one of the 38 OAU members not represented at the summit meeting.

U.S. Money Rejected

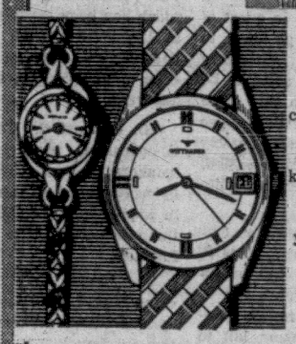

TOKYO (AP)—The Japanese Physics Society, one of the country's most influential scientific organizations, has decided not to accept future financial aid from U.S. military forces. Fearing it might be linked with military plans, the 7,400-member group took the action Saturday and expressed regret at having accepted $7,778 from the U.S. military last year.

End of the Course

IN ONE OF THE MOST DRAmatic episodes in Canadian political history, the Progressive Conservative Party of Canada last Saturday resigned from John Diefenbaker. The fighter who could not bring himself to quit found within the space of a few noisy, tragic hours that his party—and his century—had passed him by. Only after a shattering repudiation by more than 2,000 delegates could he force himself to use the phrase "my day and generation" in the past tense; only then could he admit "my course has come to an end."

In the closing act of the long day the shaken but self-controlled Chief received louder and longer cheers than leader-elect Robert Stanfield. They were cheers of real affection, of deserved tribute, of possibly disturbed conscience—but of inexorable farewell. Historians—and perhaps psychologists — will ponder the causes of the urge to political masochism that drove John Diefenbaker to undergo the public agony of offering himself for renewal of a leadership which he must have known would be denied him, and the added ordeal of sitting through the successive ballot counts which showed that only a dwindling handful of delegates were willing to give him votes.

He may have felt that he went down fighting, but nobody really was fighting him. Already, as the voting began, he had in effect become an onlooker, a historic but former figure. Applause and television lights fell upon John Diefenbaker, but the leadership contest was among his would-be successors.

At the last he could contribute only a few routine remarks, almost routinely offered: thanks for loyalty to him, a call for loyalty to his successor, a bitter-tinged reminder of his past glory in almost single-handedly revivifying the Conservative Party, and a sharp appeal not to throw gasoline on the fires of controversy around the new leader as, by implication, the flames around the old had been fed.

For Mr. Stanfield, despite his appeals for party unity and help, those fires may be uncomfortably hot. The final balloting between Mr. Roblin and himself was in part a measure of the Diefenbaker-oriented strength, for Mr. Roblin had been the unofficial heir of the former chief's support. A thorough reorganization may be in prospect. Mr. Stanfield is one of a number of men who have marched out of the Maritimes to become national figures, but as leader of the Party in a general election he will have much work before him. He is virtually unknown in the west, where much of the Conservative strength has lain, and he appears to have neither the color nor the warmth that Mr. Diefenbaker could project from a platform.

The Party will miss the Chief, and the Chief will miss the Party. But the unnecessary tragedy of his mode of departure should not be perpetuated. It is now up to Mr. Stanfield to win a seat in parliament as quickly as possible, and set about the job of restoring unity within the Party.

The Deciding Vote

ALL THE OPTIMISTIC READings by commentators and statesmen of the possibility of an early peace in Vietnam must be set against the continued hard line espoused by one of President Johnson's most influential advisors, Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

Even with the evidence from the recent South Vietnam election that the people of that unhappy country want peace—perhaps at any price—Mr. Rusk has continued to tighten up terms for negotiations with the Viet Cong and with Hanoi. When President-elect Nguyen Van Thieu indicated that his new government might ask the United States to halt the bombing of North Vietnam in order to get negotiations started, Mr. Rusk immediately made it clear that the United States would accede to such a request only if it were convinced that the North Vietnamese would halt their aggression. And by the weekend General Thieu was back-tracking on his campaign pledge to seek peace and had reportedly told American officials that he would make no more statements on the subject without consulting them first. So much for any pretence that Saigon has independence of action.

Secretary of Defence Robert McNamara's follow-up to Mr. Rusk, outlining the American plan to build an infiltration-proof barrier across the north-south border of the two Vietnams, was another indication that the Johnson administration is not thinking seriously—and doesn't want anyone else to think—that there is going to be an early breakthrough in the pattern of the war.

What will happen if the demand for peace talks becomes stronger in South Vietnam—as it probably will unless the newly-elected regime pulls down the democratic facade so painfully built and reverts to dictatorial rule by the military? Can the United States continue to prolong the war, to say in effect that for the South Vietnamese it is better to be dead than Red?

The Economic Coupling

CRITICISM OF CANADIAN and United States fiscal policy by the International Monetary Fund cannot simply be regarded as prying by outsiders into domestic affairs. By the very nature of its task, the IMF must be deeply concerned with possible weaknesses in member nations — particularly the United States, of course — and the views expressed in its just-published annual report must be considered in that light.

The IMF noted that last year the Canadian and American pattern of price stability was broken after a 10-year period of strong growth. "In both countries," the report said, "the authorities were concerned during most of 1965 about the maintenance of a satisfactory momentum in the domestic economy and fiscal policies were set on an expansionary course for the second half of the year." Implicit in the report is the question of whether or not these policies were wise, although it is admitted that there were great difficulties involved in economic forecasting.

In any event, the IMF stated, "The net result was a tendency for measures of financial restraint to be applied belatedly and to take the form primarily of a more severe tightening in monetary policy than would otherwise have been called for." The criticism here is more directed to the United States than Canada for this country, in truth, cannot move far ahead of the United States in fiscal control. Finance Minister Sharp initiated a modest tax increase but the refusal of the United States administration to raise taxes was a limiting factor.

The report of the 106-nation fund thus can be seen as further ammunition in the battle by President Johnson to get his current 10 per cent tax surcharge bill through Congress, for the objective of "restoring the economy's rate growth to its non-inflationary potential . . . is not only important to the United States in the current situation of widespread economic slowdown among the industrial countries, it also is in the interest of the entire world."

It may not be a pleasing prospect, but if the Johnson tax plan goes through, the chances are that it will open the way for another modest increase in Canadian taxes. By way of consolation, it must also be pointed out that this country cannot maintain price stability if the United States does not take the lead.

"... don't turn the box around that way, Harold ... you know your father can't stand all that French in the morning ..."

VISITOR TO THE NORTH

By MAURICE WESTERN

A Stir of Democracy Among the Eskimos

AT CHURCHILL we were introduced to the art of the Eskimos by Mr. Gabriel Gely who has both served the North and brilliantly interpreted it through his fine sketches of the people to whom the Arctic is home. One of his main points was that while government can assist, through the provision of tools, materials and an administrative framework, success or failure depends on the individual craftsman relying on his own skills and artistic heritage.

Western

This is probably true also in a very much wider sense. Government can and must help the Eskimo and Indian peoples of the north in their difficult passage into a modern society, but paternalism will not save them. In some respects it makes the problem much more difficult. In the end they must save themselves. One accordingly looks with some eagerness for signs of an emerging native leadership.

The main hope of government is in education. Very large sums have been invested in plant and equipment which, in larger collection centres, compares favorably with what one finds in the average southern city. Whether education is purposefully oriented (or whether there is some confusion of purposes) is a matter of more dispute. But the effort is certainly producing more and more visible results for the attention of competent evaluators.

More Education

Eskimo children, in competition with whites, Indians and Metis, are moving up through the school system. According to the area administrator at Churchill, there are now almost 60 in the Duke of Edinburgh high school. The department believes that the road to university has been cleared, at least of financial obstacles, and some young Eskimos are enrolled in college courses. One, Noel Carpenter, who comes from the Mackenzie delta, is studying medicine at the University of Manitoba. Another is a student of oceanography at the same centre.

Some others, graduating from vocational centres, are going on to become trade apprentices or nurses in Winnipeg and other southern cities. But what of Eskimos, long past school age, who cannot look to university but must somehow keep their feet (and their heads) in this era of bewildering change? It appears that there will have to be a higher priority for adult education — one would think with a very practical northern orientation.

In the case of the young, the deeper question is: What will become of them when they emerge from the school stream? Will there simply be a scatteration across the South in quest of opportunities or will many go back to provide a leadership elite? One hears reassuring answers but they seem to be compounded largely of faith and hope because no one knows what will happen to an Arctic economy so heavily dependent upon chance or, on occasion, upon world price movements quite beyond Canadian control.

Will the Eskimos accept the new young college-trained leaders? This is perhaps most doubtful in the areas where the need is most great. It is not in the tradition of a nomadic hunting race to defer to the young but to the old, experienced leader. But things may be different in mixed communities where the meaning of change has become more fully apparent to this most adaptive of peoples.

Many Signs

Of this adaptiveness, there are many signs: Eskimos in responsible positions on the Pine Point railway; the competent little Eskimo stewardess on our aircraft; Eskimo pilots; Eskimo foremen; an Eskimo special constable with the RCMP at Inuvik — incidentally the son of a man who was murdered while assisting the Mounted Police.

The first Eskimo area administrator for northern affairs is currently working out of Space Bay. There are now Eskimo councils everywhere in Keewatin and, with the growing community awareness, has come an awakening of the idea of self-government as we understand it. The eastern Arctic is, of course, represented on the Territorial Council, by its own elected member, the Eskimo Simonie. (He was elected, incidentally, after a hard fight decided only by the last polls.)

This is all encouraging. To a considerable extent, however, it represents the securing of niches within the Establishment.

Independent Spirit

Both the Establishment and the spirit of independence are most obvious in Inuvik. The term "Establishment" is not here used disparagingly because it would be difficult to find a more dedicated group than the officials presiding over this astonishing northern laboratory. One has the impression, however, that years of criticism have caused them to draw together defensively and in any case they occupy an exposed position because, to less fortunate Inuvik citizens, the Establishment with its million-a-mile utilidor and its Crown housing inevitably spells Privilege.

Outside the Establishment (though now drawing closer to it because the utilidor, in modified form, is being extended) is the housing co-operative. The president of this self-help venture which has been conspicuously successful, is Mr. Shingkau, an Eskimo. His predecessor was also an Eskimo, although co-op membership is open to citizens of any race.

(In contrast the Coppermine Eskimo Co-operative, producing carvings and handicrafts, is administered exclusively by whites because there is no Eskimo—in a population of 500—with the education or desire to take over management functions.)

The shape of interesting things to come is perhaps discernible in a curious episode which occurred during a reception in Inuvik. A government official delivering a gracious speech, was interrupted when he presumed to speak for all the citizens of the village, by an Eskimo who emerged from subsequent exchanges simply as "Billy."

It was not apparent from his interjection that Billy disagreed with the sentiments expressed. But he did assert in clear, emphatic English, that he was the leader of his community and that if the Eskimos had anything to say, they would speak, not through a "transient" but through him. From where, he demanded to know, had Inuvik's official greeter derived his authority?

Birds of Passage

To be classed as a "transient" must seem hard to northern administrators, some of whom have put in a fair span of hard-working years in Inuvik. But they are almost bound to be regarded as birds of passage by Eskimos who were born in the north and expect to die there. Some of the "transients," as one would expect, reacted defensively to Billy's outburst, for which they offered various uncharitable explanations. It was more interesting, and heartening, that some agreed with him.

After all, it is important to listen for the voices of dissent. In them are the first stirrings of democracy, in our sense, among the Eskimos of the North. This is one of the most important goals of policy; indeed it must be, if the people who first conquered the Arctic are to find their way in the strange new world which our civilization has thrust upon them.

Problems of Occupation

By JOSEPH ALSOP
From Tel Aviv

THE man himself is short, dark, elegantly compact and somehow immediately vivid, so that his mere appearance to lunch in a quiet restaurant is an event of sorts. The famous black patch, a hard-won trademark, naturally serves to underline the event, so that all turn to look. Yet no one could be further from the sort of self-dramatizing public personage who makes a stagey entrance. His manner, rather, is so calmly unobtrusive, so amiably down-to-earth that there is no real glint of the iron-hard resolution, the cool, formidable intelligence, until he begins to talk on a subject he cares about.

Alsop

Such is Moshe Dayan, the present minister of defense and most probable next leader of beleaguered and triumphant Israel. Not many people know it, as yet; but the fact is that the Old Lion, David Ben Gurion, actually opposed the decisions that led to the six day war. Thus Dayan, in some sense, has already inherited the leadership of the Old Lion's followers.

At the moment, however, Moshe Dayan's main interest for the outside world lies in the simple fact that he is far nearer to having a clearly thought-out policy towards Israel's main problem than anyone else one can discover here. That problem is quite different from all the Israeli problems that have been so exhaustively discussed by all and sundry since the great victory. It is, quite simply, the problem of remaining Israel with another million Arabs included within Israel's widened borders.

The problem was put to General Dayan in exactly those terms. Those, it at once appeared, had been the terms in which he had been thinking about the problem himself. He at once divided the problem into two parts: the Gaza Strip, on the Egyptian former-border, with its 400,000 people, and the west bank of the Jordan, where Israel now rules over another 600,000 Arabs, plus or minus.

Main Problem

"For now," he said a shade grimly, "there is not much we can do about the Gaza Strip. Those people have been there nearly twenty years, mostly living on UN relief. With money we can produce water. With water we can make land at el Arish. Some may want this land. Some may wish to go to former homes, which they are free to do. But for now, the west bank is the main part of our problem."

He added, crisply, that the problem's real essence was not the danger of Arab resistance on the west bank — a danger which he does not rate very highly. The real essence of the problem, rather, was to insure the right relationship between the west bank people and their Israeli occupiers. And it was on this subject that he was most lucid and most surprising.

"Take Hamdi K'nan, the mayor of Nablus," General Dayan began. "He doesn't like us — why should he? — but he is a good mayor. He came to me saying he must resign because he could not serve under an Israeli occupation. I told him that his resignation was something for the people of Nablus to worry about, that I could not stop him and that I would not replace him. If he and the Nablus people wanted no public administration in Nablus, I said, that was entirely their choice, and I would not interfere with it. So he thought for a while and did not resign."

Occupation without administration is the best summary one can offer of the singular formula that Dayan has adopted. All that Israel needs, he points out, is to insure that no enemy troops cross the Jordan; and for this purpose, Israel only requires the use of the main roads and a few strong points on the heights above the river.

Not Interested

"That much is easy enough to secure," he remarked, again with a certain grimness. "So it is not a question of their co-operation with us. I tell the west bank leaders all the time, 'We are not the British. Many things they cared about, we do not care about at all.' If they want to write protests or close their shops or schools, let them. I am not interested. But if they want fuel and teachers' salaries and electricity and everything else they need, it is up to them to co-operate with us in the very small way we need."

His motto, near-passionately spoken, is simple though strange. "We must not interfere, become involved, issue permits, make regulations, name administrators, become rulers. For if we do, it will be bad for us."

Did he then believe that this unique system could work forever, he was asked. "No," he replied crisply, it could not last more than two to four years. But that, he added with just a shade less certainty, should be long enough to gain the grand objective "which is peace."

"I do not care whether we make peace with King Hussein or with the Arab leaders of the west bank. Some of the west bank leaders are thinking about this already. Real peace will be a blessing to the west bank, for there are a thousand things Israel can do to make life better there. But whatever Israel does, the west bank people, or King Hussein if he likes, must manage their own affairs. In this way, if we are brave and patient, I think we can get the peace we need, at least on the west bank where it matters most."

A more original approach to the problem of the occupiers and the occupied could hardly be imagined. But it just might work.

DENNIS THE MENACE

From The Times, Sept. 11, 1907.

In view of the serious rioting in Vancouver between whites and Japanese, Mayor Morley has issued instructions to the police department to take every possible precaution in the way of preventing a local demonstration. He also asked through The Times for the co-operation of all citizens in preserving the peace of the city should any outbreak be threatened. The mayor made direct appeal to labor organizations of the city to view the Asiatic question with calmness.

Our Fate?

New York Times

New York City and the rest of the metropolitan area are on an air-pollution watch today and tomorrow because the winds that usually blow the foul air we breathe out to sea are stagnant. In pollution parlance a watch is not quite an alert, and no repetition is expected of last Thanksgiving's lethal smog. A small consolation.

The watch underscores how literally New York depends on life-saving winds. It is the man-made air that is choking when it is not killing us. But pollution is no respecter of geographical lines. Most big cities share New York's problem.

One Federal measure that holds some promise of eventual help is the Administration-backed Air Quality Act of 1967. It provides $700 million for fiscal 1968 through 1970, but national uniform emission standards for specific pollutants are still to be worked into the bill. It has passed the Senate, but in the House the senior Republican on the Commerce Committee, Representative William L. Springer of Illinois, naively told Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Gardner yesterday that "we don't know what the danger is."

This is hot air on top of poisoned air. The danger is in every lungful we inhale. The plumes of visible and invisible filth in the air around us demand Congressional action if the great cities of America are not to be put off-limits to people.

100 Years of Marxism

A Secular Religion Spread Over World

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW

(It was just 100 years ago that Karl Marx published his monumental "Das Capital" with profound effects on world history. Mr. Chankshaw, an outstanding expert on the history of Communism and on the Soviet Union, presents here in the first of two articles a fascinating view of Marx and the time in which he lived.)

This memorial to Karl Marx in London's Highgate Cemetery has became almost a shrine to Communists visiting Britain from many parts of the world, including Russians and Chinese who accuse one another of having distorted the words of the master.

Marxism is a movement unparalleled in secular history, which, in 100 years, has turned the world upside down.

Yet the general picture of Marx himself is vague and sketchy in the extreme, and his teaching in all its breadth has never been codified or concisely defined.

During his own lifetime Marx quarreled incessantly with his fellow - revolutionaries: All who were not wholly for him were against him. After his death in 1883 and until the triumph of Lenin there was also incessant and virulent disagreement among the Social Democrats of Europe as to the true meaning and the proper application of the Master's teaching.

The Russian Marxists, a minority party among the Russian revolutionaries of every color, quarreled with the German Marxist and no less bitterly among themselves. In 1903 they split irretrievably into Bolsheviks and Mensheviks. The Bolshevicks conquered and Lenin incorporated Marxism into the peculiar Russian national tradition.

It was thus Leninist-Marxism which held the field, challenged only ineffectively until the Chinese revolution of 1948. Now China, also claiming Lenin as its prophet, offers the Mao version of Marxism as the only true faith. Moscow is put on the defensive and the Soviet leaders are accused of mortal sin.

One day, indeed, Marxism may be Anglicized; one day perhaps Americanized. For it seems highly likely that the appalling social convulsions presided over in the name of Marx by Lenin and Mao Tse-tung will, one day, be seen as grand episodes in the history of secular religion which will, in some of its tenets, outlive all other political creeds of our day.

Heroes Come and Go

The heroes of Marxism come and go. The obscure, cantankerous figure of the founding father, fretting and fuming away his life in the wretchedness of exile in Paris, in Brussels, above all in London, remains. He was the father of revolution, and thus of our revolutionary age; but, paradoxically, some of the essentials of his doctrine have deeply influenced the very societies he sought to overthrow. We are, in many important respects, all Marxists now.

"Capital," a life work, the first volume of which was published only 16 years before Marx died, has been called the bible of the working-class; but the workers, with rare exceptions, have never read their bible. They would not be much wiser about Marxism as such if they had — though far better instructed about economics.

The full canon of Marxist teaching is not contained in "Capital" it is not contained in any single book. It is scattered through the writings of a lifetime, never neatly packaged, never defined and pulled together.

In this sense it is a muddle; but in this protean muddle is the strength of the myth. For Marxism is all things to all men — an odd condition for the fruit of one of the most dogmatic minds in history.

It is full of contradictions, so that each may find in it what he needs — as, indeed, is the bible itself. It invokes scientific method loudly and incessantly; yet Marx was certainly no scientist.

The 19th century was not a rational epoch: It was, indeed, an age of anti-reason. It was an age of boundless and unfounded optimism, of a belief in inevitable human progress. Marx was to social science in some ways what Darwin was to biology.

Darwin did not say that his theory of evolution implied progress towards Utopia; but he provided some scientific and theoretical basis for those who wanted to believe in the development of the human animal into a terrestial angel.

Vision of Perfectability

Marx, less of a scientist than Darwin, was himself seized with a vision of the perfectibility of man and dug deeply and widely into history and economics to discover the laws which must govern this advance to perfectability. He could argue like a rabbi. This is not surprising, since he came of a long double line of rabbis, German on his father's, Dutch on his mother's side.

The thing to grasp about him is that he was not first an economist, not first a historian, not first a social scientist, not first even a theoretician. He was all these. But first and foremost he was an apocalyptic visionary.

He did not seek the truth. He knew it: it was revealed to him, to him alone. He toiled among books, he debated, he split hairs, he quarreled, he suffered — not to uncover the truth and follow where it led, but to find the means to support his revealed truth with rational theory and historical fact.

His truth was that mankind, in the rough stuggle for economic survival, had become degraded and alienated from its true nature, and that only when this struggle should cease would humanity find itself again.

The struggle would not cease until there were no more class divisions, no more situations in which one section of the community exploited others. And the only way to do away with class divisions was to fight the age-old class war through to a finish, until the masses of the oppressed would come into their own and sweep away in violence the last exploiting class.

This ultimate exploiting class was the product of what appeared to Marx to be the final industrial revolution (he thought in terms of steam, not oil or nuclear energy). Its defeat would inaugurate an infinite era of classless harmony and concord. On this day, man, at last, would be himself: history would begin; all that went before would belong to pre-history.

Either one believes in this sort of dream, or one does not. It is a substitute religion for those who cannot live without a faith. There is no doubt that this bearded German savant of genius, Marx, was himself possessed by this dream: everything else was secondary.

Profound Confusion

But so immense was his erudition, so vigorous his debating power, so virile and penetrating his mind, that he came to be thought of not as an extraordinary mixture of dreamer and impatient man of action (which he was) but as rational philosopher (which he wasn't). Hence profound confusion.

Others before Marx, of course, had been stirred by the dream of universal social justice and saw the supreme evil in private property and the accumulation of wealth by the few.

Saint-Simon and Louis Blanc in France; the English mill-owner Robert Owen (in 1827 the first man to call himself a Communist or socialist: the words were long interchangeable).

"Property is theft!" exclaimed Pierre Joseph Proudhon, and Marx echoed him. But Marx went on to explain how the theft had come about, how the system of nationwide larceny worked—and, also inevitably, how it would come to an end.

His main instrument, or tool, was the dialectical method of the 18th-century German philosopher Hegel, who employed his metaphysics to justify, among other things, monarchy, particularly the Prussian monarchy, and to glorify the state at the expense of the individual.

Hegel taught that the development of all being (which included mankind, Nature and God) travelled by a zigzag path, which led ever upwards: the affirmation of a positive, its contradiction by its own negation, and then the synthesis of positive and negative on a higher plane; then further affirmation, further negation, further synthesis, in a sort of cosmic mountain climb—the whole universe not static but in a constant state of becoming.

Here is the "thesis, antithesis, synthesis" of the Marxists, with God left out and mankind striving ever upwards and forwards. But instead of Hegel's Idea (a concept woolly in the extreme) as the dynamo of the system, Marx substituted as its driving force economic necessity.

Those who, at any given period, controlled the means of production called the tune. The legal, political, cultural and religious systems of that period were all part of the apparatus whereby the ruling class sought to protect and preserve its ascendancy. But the rulers themselves were possessed by the system they had developed in their own interest:

"The method of production in material life determines the general character of the social, political and spiritual processes of life. It is not the consciousness of men that determines their being, but, on the contrary, their social being which determines their consciousness."

New technical discoveries are made, the methods of production improve, new demands are created; but then the old ruling-class, entrenched in habits and its own taboos, is unable to respond to change.

Synthesis Is Progress

By its very success, it has created new problems which it is unable to solve: it is defeated by its opposite, its negation—a new class arising in social upheaval to supersede it. The resultant new regime is the synthesis. This is progress.

The ruling class of 19th-century capitalists Marx called the bourgeois. They had been brought into being as the entrepreneurs of the Industrial Revolution. In the process they destroyed the power of the landed gentry.

But the capitalist bourgeois were themselves calling into being a vast class of workers, a proletariat, the fruits of whose toil they diverted to their own use, and who, driven to desperation by the misery of their lot, would, in their turn, rise to destroy the capitalists and wrest from them the means of production. The poet Shelley expressed this idea before Marx.

Marx then set out to demonstrate, with a mass of detail, the then conditions of the workers, and to prove his thesis. In so doing, he threw off, almost as by-products, many concepts which have passed into our own contemporary thought and understanding—e.g., the theory of surplus value.

Everyone knew that workers were exploited. Marx supplied an explanation of the system whereby millowners and steel-masters flourished while their workers shivered and sometimes starved. He gave them more: he gave them a slogan and a war-cry.

The war-cry to him was most real. His ambition, which first showed in his dream of being a great poet, was boundless. The millennium was at hand, and he, Karl Marx, was to preside over its birth-pangs. So, while by day he read and brooded, by night he planned and conspired.

The capitalist system was ripe for downfall. His idealistic young friend and disciple, Friedrich Engels, working in his father's business in Manchester and enthusiastically riding to hounds, privately was plotting against the system which gave him his wealth.

He supplied Marx with the evidence he needed, with first-hand stories of the degradation of the Manchester poor. It was the heyday of Victorian factory inspectors, whose revelations led Parliament to pass the Factory Acts.

Held in Respect

Marx held these men in great respect, although minions of a capitalist government. Perhaps it was he, more than any other man except Lord Ashley, later the Earl of Shaftesbury, who understood and profited most from these compilations.

"Capital" itself, the whole of it written in London, was a monument to the labor of these obscure and incorruptible Victorian officials.

But Marx, unlike Lord Shaftesbury, set no store by parliamentary action, or the principle of gradual amelioration—although it was, in fact, already beginning to operate through the growing social conscience, to say nothing of the deep instinct of self-preservation displayed by the capitalist exploiters, who were to prove clever at avoiding revolutionary situations.

Gradualism was not the way the grand dialectic worked: revolution, not evolution, was to be the order of the day.

And it was Marx's job to emerge from his study, from the womb-like recess of the British Museum reading room, to organize it.

(To be concluded.)

New Era for Mercenary Soldiers Opening in Undeveloped Nations

By ANDREW WILSON

LONDON — Nearly every "war" today in Africa brings newspaper headlines about the employment of mercenaries. There will be many more such wars before the end of the century, and mercenaries will have to be reckoned a permanent factor in them — not only in Africa but in other developing areas such as the Middle East.

Up to now the word "mercenary" has carried a disreputable meaning — and deservedly so. The tone was set in 1960 by the riff-raff recruited by the agents of Moise Tshombe in his breakaway Congolese state of Katanga. They came from a variety of countries: Rhodesia, South Africa, Britain, Belgium and France.

At first they were a poor-looking lot, rootless ex-servicemen attracted by the high pay more than by the prospect of danger. Later the war and the climate weeded them out. They became physically tougher, developed a cameraderie, and threw up leaders with initiative, if few moral scruples.

After Katanga had been brought back into the fold, mercenaries became an arm of the Congo's central government. They became more "respectable" and helped to restore order after terrorist massacres in Stanleyville and other parts of the Congo in 1965-66.

New Menace

But the menace of the mercenary, paid from unidentified sources and wielding power without responsibility, has again been dramatically illustrated by the Belgian Colonel "Black Jack" Schramme and his commandos in the Congo province of Kivu.

By the seizure of Bukavu and his demand for the reinstatement of M. Tshombe in the central government, Colonel Schramme, not only stoked the ready fires of tribal warfare in the Congo; he also jeopardized the lives of hundreds of Europeans who have been trying precariously to exist amid Congolese politics.

Now white mercenaries are being sought simultaneously by the government of Nigeria and the leaders of breakaway Biafra, chiefly to operate military aircraft which the former has obtained from Eastern Europe, and which the latter apparently hope to acquire in the private arms market.

What quality of men they will manage to recruit has yet to be seen. Attempts to engage ex-RAF officers in Britain have not had much success yet, despite reported offers of $3,000 per month pay and, on the Nigerian side, an assurance that there will be "no aerial opposition."

But one thing is certain. Europeans flying war machines to kill Africans can only sow a new harvest of racial bitterness for the future. This will be the case whether they are British, French, Swiss, American, Czech or Russian.

Another area in which mercenaries are being employed, but this time under more official auspices, is Saudi Arabia. These men are also pilots, recruited to fly British-made supersonic Lightning fighters for King Faisal's air force. Their contracts specify that they will do so only for instructional purposes: but obviously new contracts could be offered in the event of hostilities.

Recently the British government has allowed serving RAF officers to leave the service ahead of their time in order to take employment in Saudi Arabia. They are highly skilled men, a quite different category of mercenary from those in Nigeria and the Congo.

More RAF officers will probably be released under similar conditions to become instructors to the air force of South Arabia, when it becomes independent next year.

In these developments one can see the emergence of a new official attitude to mercenary employment. Why, governments are asking, should the leaders of developing countries be left in the position of shopping round for dubious soldiers of fortune, or turning to the Russians, when the organized forces of Western countries can offer trustworthy and principled men?

Three Purposes

The offer of such mercenaries can fulfil three self-interested purposes. First, it can secure the friendship of the aided government in the same way as official arms aid. Secondly, it provides an outlet for soldiers or airmen who may be made redundant by defence cuts at home. And thirdly, it provides an informal intelligence network through which to observe developments in the countries concerned.

The last purpose, though vigorously denied, may soon be the strongest incentive of all. For, as the capability of the big powers to intervene directly in local quarrels diminishes, so their need of intelligence, by which to know what the "Third World" is up to, will increase.

Irish School Floggings Brings Parents' Revolt

By IAN BLAKE
The Manchester Guardian

DUBLIN — Visitors here — especially those from England — have been intrigued by a tourist sideshow that Bord Failte (the Irish tourist organization) has not promoted.

In fact, it reflects so little credit on the country that it must be something of an embarrassment.

Displayed in a window of the Creation Arcade — a much populated shopping centre abutting Grafton Street — are a number of canes, punishment straps and other objects which are being used in lay and clerical Irish schools at the present time.

It is all part of a campaign by "Reform," a group of Dublin parents who are appalled at the frequency with which their children are beaten at school for inattention, poor work, lateness as well as bad behavior.

The closing of Court Lees approved school by the British Home Office has produced some wry comments. These may be summed up by a parent who said: "In England, they are anxious to rid their approved schools of corporal punishment. In Ireland, ordinary children who are not young criminals receive far more frequent punishment. God knows what goes on in our reform schools."

Considering "Reform" is just a month old it has already made its mark. Its first action was to buy up at a July closing-down sale a batch of 26 punishment straps. A week later a well planned and nicely timed demonstration took place at the doors of the department of education, when two petrol soaked straps were publicly burned at rush hour and a small but efficient parade appeared in a section of O'Connell Street with banners and placards.

This was widely photographed by tourists and given good press coverage. An editorial in the "Irish Times" called on the minister of education to end corporal punishment and the subject produced a series of letters.

In matters of protest generally, the Irish lack moral courage. It is only the exceptional man or woman who will sign a controversial letter to the papers or allow a name to be used in a newspaper article. But when conversation turns to punishment in schools, at any house, bar, or restaurant, it will produce a number of examples of brutality which are reminiscent or early 20th century English school stories.

Frank Crummey, a postman and father of small children is acting secretary of "Reform." He has stated publicly that on one occasion he was strapped 60 times in one day, has offered to name the school and the teacher concerned. He is in his early thirties, a small, quiet spoken Dubliner. Crummey's experience is by no means unique, as 10 minutes' conversation anywhere will reveal.

Dutch Army Finding Youth Weak in Legs

THE HAGUE — Holland is having trouble in her search for the 200,000 young men who will have to serve their compulsory 16 to 18 months in the country's defence forces.

Two main problems are those who cannot, and those who will not. There is also the problem of those who decide half-way through their period of service that this is not the life for them.

Last week the Dutch learned that one in three of the young men who come before the selection boards is rejected as physically or mentally unfit for the forces. This is a rise of 10 per cent in the last seven years.

The biggest rise is in the number rejected for mental rather than physical unfitness, but the apparent decline in the physical condition of Dutch youth in general has provoked more comment from the military authorities.

Weakness of the legs, known in Holland as motorbike sickness, is an increasing reason for rejection. Dutch youths, according to the military, spend too much time on wheels or sitting around watching television, and have forgotten how to use their muscles.

But the system is not infallible. Tiemen Groen, who was rejected by the selectors because of flat feet, last week won the world amateur road cycling championship.

It costs so little to make a photo talk

When a family grows up and goes its several ways, when a job that has to be done separates you by thousands of miles from near and dear ones, there's a gap left that photographs only partly fill. And yet, it takes only a minute—and costs so little—to pick up your phone and make that beloved photo talk.

As the years pass by, the telephone becomes one of the strongest links holding scattered families together. On birthdays and other special anniversaries—on occasions like Easter, Mother's Day, Father's Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas—a long distance call is "the next best thing to being there."

If you travel frequently on business or have to spend extended periods away from home, be sure to arm yourself with a B.C. TEL Long Distance Credit Card. It enables you to call long distance from any phone in the country to any other phone and charge the call to your personal or business account.

VANCOUVER—PRINCE GEORGE	$1.35
NEW WESTMINSTER—CALGARY	$1.50
VICTORIA—TORONTO	$1.95

(Evening, station-to-station calls, first 3 minutes)

The pleasure of a long distance call remains one of today's biggest bargains. Despite rising incomes and living costs, many long distance calls actually cost less in dollars and cents than 10 years ago. Use Long Distance for all it's worth!

In Victoria call 386-2211

DRAWING heavily on his cigar, Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba has just been notified he had been beaten by Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia for the leadership of the Conservative party. Roblin was given the final results three minutes before they were announced.

WHAT DIDN'T HAPPEN IN BACK ROOMS

Hamilton's Silence, Aloofness Hurt Roblin

By PETER NEWMAN

The magic ingredients that turned Bob Stanfield of Nova Scotia, in five wild days, from an underestimated also-ran into a shining winner, will be analyzed and argued over by politicians of all parties for many weeks to come.

But the mechanics of how the actual victory was achieved were dictated by two sets of frantic negotiations in the pokey backrooms of Maple Leaf Gardens.

Newman

The way the votes split, it turned out that in the final balloting the most important influence in the Stanfield victory was Davie Fulton and the most significant factor in the Roblin defeat was Alvin Hamilton.

It was Hamilton's mysterious refusal to withdraw after the third ballot which cost Duff Roblin his last chance to pull ahead and it was Davie Fulton's personal decision to throw his support to Stanfield after the fourth ballot which put the Nova Scotia premier over the top.

FORM ALLIANCES

All week the campaign managers of the big four candidates had been trying to negotiate alliances that might swing third and fourth ballot support of the other four contenders their way.

This was imperative, Because they realized that once the voting had started the format of the convention would not allow much chance to influence the drop-outs.

No formal deals were made, but there was an informal understanding that Senator Wallace McCutcheon would eventually swing his support behind Stanfield, which in fact happened.

The Roblin people thought they had an understanding with the Alvin Hamilton people that he would swing their way after the third ballot. Some of the men around Stanfield had also agreed with some of the men around Fulton that if one or the other was going down, they would trade support, but this arrangement was not sanctioned by either contestant.

Stanfield led easily in the first ballot (with 519) votes) but all of the other candidates had much less support than they had expected.

This was largely due to the last minute entry of John Diefenbaker, who took strength away from Alvin Hamilton, Donald Fleming, George Hees, Duff Roblin and Michael Starr.

BELOW ESTIMATE

Davie Fulton's vote (343) was also well below his first-ballot estimate of 450, but it held firm through the second ballot at 346. The Fulton strategists met briefly after the second ballot and decided to mobilize their maximum effort for the next vote.

They were approached by representatives of the Quebec supporters of both George Hees and Donald Fleming who agreed to swing behind Fulton, provided he could demonstrate an acceleration (at least 50 new votes) in the third ballot.

Fulton met Fleming in an effort to try and persuade him to withdraw in his favor (because his Quebec support was about to leave him anyway) but the former finance minister refused to budge.

In the third ballot, Stanfield forged ahead (to 717 votes) but Fulton remained static, with only 15 new converts. He now realized that he could not win despite his hard core support.

GRIM, TIGHT-LIPPED

Tom Bell, a New Brunswick MP who was one of his main advisers, suggested that Fulton should begin to consider his alternatives.

The Fulton strategists met, a grim, tight-lipped gathering by now, and decided that they would withdraw on the next ballot, if their support failed to grow. Sidney Spivak and Joe Martin, two key men in the Roblin entourage, contacted Brian Mulroney of the Fulton team, to say that the Manitoba premier would like to meet the former justice minister. But they were told that there would be no concession until after the fourth ballot.

DISAPPOINTED

Duff Roblin's candidacy was not at its crunch stage. He had fully expected Alvin Hamilton to swing in behind him, but even though he had not moved significantly upward from the first ballot, Hamilton remained silent and aloof from all attempts to woo his support.

Bitterly disappointed that John Diefenbaker had decided to contest the race, Hamilton stuck through to the fourth ballot in the hope of inheriting the chief's support, but had received only. 61 of his votes.

Had Hamilton withdrawn after the third ballot, he would probably have given the Manitoba premier enough of an edge to lead on the fourth ballot. At this point, Stanfield still had very little Quebec support. Stranded without the promised Hamilton votes, Roblin's managers now began an 11th hour bid for an alliance with Davie Fulton.

The crucial meeting of the Fulton organization took place immediately after the fourth ballot. To throw off pursuing reporters, the Fulton people met in a Maple Leaf Garden conference room (really a dressing room) which had originally been assigned to Donald Fleming. Present were all of the key members of the Fulton organization.

Dan Chilcott, an Ottawa lawyer and longtime Fulton worker, briefly reviewed the statistics of the contest which showed that the Fulton strength formed a solid core but had no potential for growth. He pointed out that at this stage in the race, Fulton support (357 votes) could put either Roblin (771) or Stanfield (865) over the top. There was a long debate over whether Fulton should now withdraw unconditionally or cast his support to either of the premiers.

At this point Roblin's key strategists held out a vaguely-worded promise of a cabinet position to Fulton and were desperately trying to arrange a meeting between the two men.

(In making their offer they were reflecting Roblin's thinking, but not acting on any specific instructions. When they had asked the Manitoba premier whether he would consider having Fulton in his cabinet, Roblin had merely replied: "What do you think?" and, when they had acknowledged that Fulton would certainly be a member of any Tory cabinet, the Manitoba premier, merely said: "Well, there's your answer.")

At the same time, Fulton had not been directly approached by any of the Stanfield lieutenants, except Pat Nowlan, who was trying to woo delegates away but never mentioned any possible offers from the Stanfield camp.

Faced with the choice of saying nothing (as Alvin Hamilton had done) or supporting either of the premiers, Fulton now, told his lieutenants: "I have a responsibility. Personally, I prefer Mr. Stanfield," and although Roblin was waiting across the hall from the Fulton dressing room, the two men never met.

Fulton went out, shook Stanfield's hand and most of his Quebec, B.C. and Alberta support, swung to his new ally.

Lowell Murray, Fulton's campaign manager, immediately moved onto the floor of the Gardens to hustle Fulton delegates to Stanfield, giving the Nova Scotia premier an 81-vote lead on the last ballot.

LIVELY DISLIKE

The Quebec swing to Stanfield was accentuated by the lively dislike most of Fulton's and George Hees' French-Canadian supporters had for Paul Trepanier, the main Roblin lieutenant in Quebec, and also by the fact that the avowed support for Roblin by the Diefenbaker forces made them hop on the opposite bandwagon.

This was the main manoeuvre that brought victory to Robert Stanfield but there was one other important factor which pushed the Nova Scotia premier up from fourth place when the week began to the top job by Saturday night.

Whil it was true that the format of the convention was such that no delegates could be publicly influenced by the withdrawing candidates, the delegates were influenced by the environment of impending victory that surrounded Stanfield throughout the entire week.

How much of his sweet aura of success was due to Stanfield himself and how much to Dalton Camp's advice no one can tell.

But there can be little doubt that the two men together have created one of the most formidable partnerships ever seen in Canadian politics.

WILL RESIGN AS PREMIER

Roblin 'Uncertain' On Future Plans

WINNIPEG (CP)—Duff Roblin, who finished second to Premier Robert Stanfield in the race for the national leadership of the Progressive Conservative party, said Sunday he definitely will resign as premier of Manitoba.

About 200 persons gave Mr. Roblin and his wife a subdued reception when they returned from the Conservative leadership convention in Toronto.

Asked at an airport press conference about his plans once he resigns as premier, Mr. Roblin said: "It's a matter for decision on another day."

He said the party has a "good man" in Mr. Stanfield.

Mr. Roblin said he will not resign as premier until a successor is selected. A provincial leadership convention is expected to be called soon.

Pearson Seeks Meeting

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson has told Robert Stanfield, new Conservative leader, that he wants to meet him as soon as possible to discuss matters of mutual interest.

Mr. Pearson sent Mr. Stanfield a telegram Sunday congratulating him on winning the leadership, and one of best wishes to outgoing Conservative chief John Diefenbaker.

The prime minister offered Mr. Stanfield "my sincere personal regards and good wishes as you enter on this new, enlarged and challenging opportunity of service to our country."

He said: "I shall look forward to meeting you as soon as convenient to you to discuss matters of mutual interest."

In his message to Mr. Diefenbaker and his wife the prime minister said:

"My wife and I send Mrs. Diefenbaker and you our very best wishes for the days ahead as you leave the leadership of the party which you have served over so many years with such devotion and distinction. Kindest personal regards."

HIS TASK TO INTERPRET 'TWO NATIONS'

TORONTO (CP) — Robert Stanfield, new national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, said Sunday one of his most important tasks will be to interpret Quebec to English-speaking Conservatives.

In an interview on CBC television, Mr. Stanfield said he had not found any resentment in English-speaking communities against the French.

He said much progress could be made in the interpretation of the "deux nations" concept—the two historical entities.

Nova Scotians Wondering How to Fill Bob's Shoes

HALIFAX (CP)—The tension is over for the moment, but rank-and-file Conservatives in Nova Scotia soon will face the same pressure that confronted more than 2,200 delegates in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens Saturday—the choosing of a new leader.

Although nothing has been said publicly there are indications of a three- or four-man fight for the job about to be vacated by Robert Stanfield.

Nova Scotia Conservatives must find a leader to maintain the tremendous magnetism at the polls generated by Mr. Stanfield in his 11 years as premier, during which he battered the opposition in four consecutive elections.

Last May 30 the Liberals managed to win only six of 46 seats while the NDP was shut out for the second straight time.

It's no secret the delight Nova Scotia Conservatives felt when Mr. Stanfield won the national PC leadership Saturday was quickly tempered with the worrisome reality that while the national party had gained a new leader, the provincial party had lost the greatest vote-getter in its history.

There were only two issues in the campaign for the May 30 provincial election—the Liberals and Robert Stanfield.

To find a successor promising Robert Stanfield's appeal at the polls won't be easy and individual Conservatives here were admitting, even before the premier's victory in Toronto, that it was a worry.

Observers here say G. I. Smith, the provincial finance minister and the premier's closest political associate, is obviously the No. 1 man in a race that hasn't officially started.

Mr. Smith, the premier's successful running mate in Colchester in the last six elections, is almost certain to get Mr. Stanfield's blessing at the provincial convention. He is seen by observers to have only one possible factor against him.

At 58, some in the party may feel the job should go to a younger man.

But the No. 2 man in the hypothetical race — Attorney-General Richard Donahoe—will be 58 this month. The only other man mentioned so far—Agriculture Minister I. W. Akerley—is 62.

Listed as men to watch: Labor Minister Tom McKeough, a popular 44-year-old physician from Cape Breton; and the youngest of all the PC members—30-year-old Gerald-Joseph Doucet, a Cape Breton Acadian whose stock has risen quickly since 1963 when he personally defeated then Liberal leader Earl Urquhart.

Meanwhile, the opposition parties have not been saddened by Mr. Stanfield's move.

The Liberals complained that the Conservatives were waging a "one-man" campaign in the last election and party strategists claimed several Conservatives were elected mainly because they were "Stanfield men."

The NDP is expected to accuse the premier of "betraying" the voters by turning to the federal field after denying so frequently that he had no interest in federal politics.

NDP Won't Contest Seat for New Chief

BURNABY (CP) — National NDP leader T. C. Douglas Saturday night urged newly-elected Conservative leader Robert Stanfield to enter the House of Commons as quickly as possible, and he assured NDP support to expedite his entry.

"He must have a forum to be heard," said Mr. Douglas in an interview.

"And even more important, he must be given an opportunity to indicate by vote where the stand on various issues and what his alternative policies are."

Mr. Douglas said he hopes some Conservative member of Commons will resign his seat so a by-election can be called with Mr. Stanfield as a candidate.

"We would do everything possible to see that we didn't oppose him," said the NDP leader.

"If the nomination was not contested, he could be automatically admitted to the House and be a sitting member by Christmas."

Socialist leader Douglas described Mr. Stanfield as having a first-rate intelligence and a capacity to clearly articulate his ideas.

He also called the new Tory leader "the rallying point" for the political rightists in Canada.

BACKED BY RIGHT

Mr. Douglas referred to the fact that runner-up candidate Dufferin Roblin of Manitoba had the support of John Diefenbaker, Alvin Hamilton and Michael Starr, while Mr. Stanfield was supported by rightists Wallace McCutcheon, George Hees and Davie Fulton.

All were leadership candidates.

He said the "rightist" development was a good thing for Canada and it could lead to a political realignment as advocated by Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta.

The two-party realignment would create a better political dialogue, with one party right of centre and one left of centre, said Mr. Douglas.

SOARING COSTS FIRST TARGET

SPECIAL TO THE TIMES

TORONTO — Soaring living costs and price instability help form the most urgent problem in Canada today, new Conservative leader Robert Stanfield said Sunday.

Stanfield said climbing prices in the last two or three years have had serious effects on consumers and producers alike.

He told a press conference less than 12 hours after his victory at the polls at his party's convention, that price stability in the U.S. was better than in Canada despite the costs of the Vietnam war.

Stanfield indicated that an attack on the government's handling of the current economic situation will be a key point in his direction of the official Opposition in Parliament.

He talked over a wide range of subjects, and this was the first opportunity for many newsmen to talk to him about things other than had taken up most of the time at the almost week-long Tory meet.

It was only a few hours after his greatest political win and he had been up much of the night after the nerve-wracking day in the Gardens, but Stanfield apologized to the reporters for interupting their Sunday morning.

He explained that many had wanted to talk to him following his win, but Saturday night had hardly been suitable, and he was now available.

NARY A FRACAS

Tory 'Whoop La' An Ad Man's Dream

By BOB TRIMBEE

TORONTO (CP) — The man who triggered the Progressive Conservative leadership convention — Dalton Camp — sat in the background last week and missed most of the public action in one of the most colorful political conventions in Canadian history.

It was an ad man's dream.

There were pretty girls, banners, bunting, placards, bands, singers, dances, liquor receptions, crazy hats, sign-laden buses and even a chimpanzee. Through it all nary a fracas marred the activity.

CAMP
. . . in background

As an advertising executive, Mr. Camp could appreciate the tactics used by the 11 candidates to win support and while he stayed out of the limelight he had the satisfaction of seeing his choice come through on top.

The emotional balloon burst at 10:22 p.m. Saturday night when co-chairman E. A. Goodman of Toronto announced Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia had won the party leadership on the fifth ballot after a close fight with Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba.

The band blared out the victory salute and Mr. Stanfield and his wife, Mary, took the accolade from the stage.

EMOTIONAL FAREWELL

Heart - tugging was the farewell just minutes earlier by John Diefenbaker, until Saturday the party leader and the man who swept the Conservatives into power in 1957.

With this issue decided, all party faithful in the Gardens gave him a wild ovation. Even the Stanfield victory cheer did not match it for pure emotion.

Saturday was a day of pathos for the 71-year-old Saskatchewan lawyer as much as it was one of wine and roses for the 53-year-old Nova Scotia victor.

Mr. Stanfield had Don Messer and his Islanders in Toronto for a shindig Wednesday night. His entourage was almost always led by a piper.

His supporters kept delegates abreast of the Stanfield campaign through a tabloid newspaper called The Delegate. Friday they handed out roses to anyone wearing a convention ribbon.

Others were just as busy.

Davie Fulton held twice-a-day "Ask Davie" sessions where he answered questions on any issue. Mr. Roblin preferred to move about while Donald Fleming held a two-hour conference at one hotel to answer questions delegates might pose.

Alvin Hamilton finished his campaign by being a guest on an open-line radio program Saturday morning.

N.S. TORIES FOUND THEIR MOSES

'Can't Speak, but He's Good'

By DON ANGUS

HALIFAX (CP) — "We're bringing a guy down to meet you. He can't speak but we think he's good."

This mild recommendation introduced Robert Stanfield to voters on Nova Scotia's Eastern Shore 20 years ago.

It was fitting, however, because understatement has become the trademark of the man who was to perform the miracle of ousting the Liberals after 25 years in power in the province.

A reluctant candidate for the national leadership of the Progressive Conservative party, the 53-year-old premier stepped into the crowded race as if he were dipping his toes into ice cold bath water.

In the days after he announced his candidacy July 19, his modest appraisals of his own chances bordered on self-depreciation. But campaigning, quietly and without flamboyance, warmed him up.

When Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin became the ninth candidate for the Sept. 5-9 leadership convention in Toronto, Mr. Stanfield declared:

"Mr. Roblin is a friend of mine, but I'm in this race to win."

Despite the terse statement of confidence and determination, Robert Lorne Stanfield doesn't take himself all that seriously.

SURPRISE DECISION

When he announced to a press conference that he would seek the leadership, a reporter reminded him that he once said he would consider federal politics in much the same way as he'd consider taking up ski-jumping. Would he now take to the slopes?

"I don't think so," the premier replied with a chuckle. "One bit of foolishness at a time is enough."

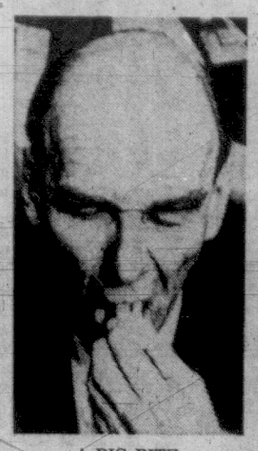

Mr. Stanfield said he had not really expected to enter the race and hinted there was strong persuasion involved. But he won't say who or what influenced him.

"Some of this centennial business washed off one me," he says. "Some people suggested that if I was a good Canadian I should be willing to put up with some personal inconvenience."

Premier Stanfield isn't unaccustomed to having his arm twisted. And he's used to starting from scratch.

Prof. Graham Murray of Dalhousie University was one of the Tory organizers who attempted the semi-apologetic courtship of the Nova Scotia electorate in the dark days of 1947. This handul of Conservative faithfuls knew the 33-year-old lawyer from Truro wouldn't win votes with eloquence.

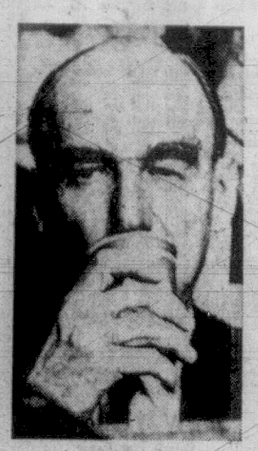

A few weeks before, Bob Stanfield had just been one of

A BIG BITE
Stanfield

. . . CHEW
waits

. . . WASH IT DOWN

the faithfuls pondering how to get a Conservative seat in a legislature almost swept clean by the Liberals of Angus L. Macdonald in 1945 — Liberals 28, CCF 2.

Prof. Murray recalls this party nucleus met all winter of 1947 "looking for some sort of Moses to lead us out of the wilderness," when "It suddenly dawned on us the fellow we wanted was sitting among us."

Robert Stanfield, with honors in political science from Dalhousie and a law degree from Harvard, "had the money, time, education, good family and background of leadership," Prof. Murray says. "He was probably groomed for this sort of thing anyway."

The grooming began with father Frank many years a legislature member and later lieutenant-governor of the province. Uncle John died a Conservative senator and elder brother Frank late president of the family underwear firm, Stanfield's Ltd., at Truro, N.S., served two terms in the House of Commons.

Robert was called "the non-political Stanfield" in his youth and Prof. Murray says he didn't seek out the leadership post. However, "immediately on being chosen he took off in his car and travelled from Sydney to Yarmouth" — from the north of Cape Breton Island to the mainland's southern tip.

Mr. Stanfield was elected president of the provincial Conservative association in 1947, then moved up to the party leadership a year later.

Support in the beginning was thinly spread. A rally in neighboring Dartmouth attacted three people — two organizers and the freshman leader; but by 1949 the rejuvenated Tories put Stanfield in the House with seven other party members and the tide began to turn.

In 1953 the Conservatives won 12 seats and three years later, two years after the death of Premier Macdonald, Robert Stanfield at 42 was sworn in as Canada's youngest premier.

He once said he entered politics because "there were too damn many Liberals around," and once in power Premier Stanfield was determined the 23-year Liberal reign would remain broken for a long time.

The Stanfield philosophy quickly evolved — a gospel of secondary industrial development and a spirit dedicated to economic expansion, diversification and planning.

He established Industrial Estates Ltd., to attract new secondary industry to a province where the economy had been pinned to thinning resources, and he enlisted businessmen, fishermen, farmers and lumbermen into the bootstraps-lifting program of voluntary economic planning.

HELPED FEDERAL PCS

Still behind other parts of Canada, Nova Scotians nevertheless felt their premier, with his honest, lincolnesque features, was putting them on the right road. They gave him a mandate of 39 seats in a 43-seat legislature in 1963 and 40 of 46 seats — three were added by redistribution — just seven weeks before he entered the national leadership race.

Federal Liberals also found out what Stanfield on the hustings can do.

The premier stumped across the province in the 1965 federal campaign and conservatives won 10 of Nova Scotia's 12 Commons seats, prompting one Liberal organizer in Ottawa to moan:

"We were creamed by the Stanfield machine."

A politician with a deep sense of integrity and duty to public office, Premier Stanfield offers no airy explanations for his success and possesses no secret formula.

"Call it pragmatic if you will," he says, "but my general approach is to look at a thing and do what is practical and sensible."

'Unusual' Routine Wins Youth Applause

Times Ottawa Bureau

TORONTO — Robert Stanfield doesn't waste words, or mince them.

In the final stages of the Conservative convention here, candidates generally were sweet-talking to the candidates and saying everything meant to please.

The Conservative youth delegates were getting the usual flattery about how their generation was so important, so vital and so destiny bound.

Stanfield walked in to talk to them.

He told them that youth was not really unique and that every one at some time had it.

And then he laid it on the line: "I am no more convinced about the invincibility of your generation than I am satisfied with the performance of my own."

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain futures prices were generally mixed in slow dealings on the board of trade today.

Soybeans prices were mostly lower.

While trade was light, corn futures moved in to seasonal lows in the four defered contracts.

WINNIPEG (CP)—Most activity on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today was again concentrated in oilseeds and particularly in flax which showed an irregular trend.

Early advances in flax were reduced or erased as the session proceeded.

Hedging sales appeared in flax and rapeseed with the rapeseed easing off under selling pressure. There was evidence of overseas support in rapeseed but no business was confirmed.

Oats and barley trade was mostly domestic as it continues to feel the pressure of the Great Lakes shipping strike.

The only suggestion of export business was in rye with indications of 1,000 tons worked out of the Pacific Coast. Japan was listed as the possible taker.

Cigarettes 'Deadly'; Kennedy Plans War

KENNEDY
. . . health issue

NEW YORK (AP)—Senator Robert F. Kennedy said today he will introduce three bills to regulate the cigarette industry because, he said, it is "peddling a deadly weapon" through what he called a largely ineffective self-regulation code.

His promise to introduce the bills in the Senate Tuesday was coupled with a declaration that cigarette companies are "dealing in people's lives for financial gain."

Kennedy made the announcement in a speech prepared for the three-day World Conference on Smoking and Health which opened today.

He said: "Cigarettes would have been banned years ago were it not for the tremendous economic power of their producers."

Two of his bills, he said, are aimed at countering some of the effects of advertising by the cigarette companies, which he said costs almost $300,000,000 a year.

The first would extend the 1964 law, so that all advertising would have to carry the message: "Warning: Cigarette smoking is dangerous to health and may cause death from cancer and other diseases."

The Federal Communications Commission would have the power under the second bill to regulate the times and types of broadcast programs on which cigarette advertising may appear, as well as the overall volume of cigarette advertising.

The third bill would establish a sliding federal tax on cigarettes to replace the present flat $4 a 1,000 to encourage the production of cigarettes with less tar and nicotine.

CPR Seeks Integration Of Transport

By DAVE MacDONALD

MONTREAL (CP) — A CPR official Saturday made a strong plea for integration between transportation systems and for the concept of monopoly ownership of different systems.

W. J. Stenason, vice-president of company services for the CPR, was speaking to trucking experts on the last day of a four-day meeting on transportation organized by the Transportation Research Forum.

It was the eighth annual and first international meeting of the forum, involving transportation experts from all fields in several countries.

Mr. Stenason said the CPR had achieved a high degree of co-ordination between its trucking and other transport operations.

SOLVING PROBLEM

Design of a fully-integrated transport system was in the process of solving a problem for the company on the West Coast.

The CPR ships by rail a large amount of coal to Vancouver for movement to Japan," he said.

"We found we had up to 2,000 cars loaded with coal sitting waiting for Japanese ships to come in and load it.

"To solve this, by 1969 we will entirely control the shipping of the coal from origin point to Japan. We have ordered bulk ships to carry the coal and we will control the bulk-loading facilities at the harbor.

"This will make Canadian coal a great deal more competitive in Japan than before."

NO MONOPOLY

He said railway participation in various modes of transportation "has not led to a railway monopoly in transportation, nor in any transportation submarket, nor has it led to predatory pricing policies by the railway-owned subsidiaries in other modes."

The "perpetuation of restrictive regulatory policy" on the basis of fears of the "monopolistic danger of multi-model ownership" was "an anachronism."

There should be no government restriction on the size of a company.

"Let the market decide how big a company should be," he said.

American Motors, Canada, Reports Deficit for Year

TORONTO (CP) — American Motors Canada Ltd. will show a loss for the year ending Sept. 30, president Earl K. Brownridge says. The company has never lost money before.

Mr. Brownridge said sales for the 1967-model year will be about 25,000 units, a 15 per cent decrease from 1966. He predicted sales of 1968 models would be 35,000, led by the company's new entry in the sport-car field, the Javelin.

Sales for the January-August period declined 17.5 per cent to 16,188 from 19,602 in the corresponding period of last year. Production fell to 18,186 from 18,412.

Mr. Brownridge said that American Motors Corp. of Detroit, which lost $48,000,000 in the three quarters ended June 30, will show a further loss in the final quarter.

Free Bargaining Said Best Answer

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister Nicholson said today the federal government should reject suggestions to rewrite its labor laws as long as labor and management can be helped to come to the bargaining table with a sincere desire to solve their own problems.

He told the opening session of the Canadian Association of Administrators of Labor Legislation that no other effective democratic basis for settlement of industrial disputes had been found to replace free collective bargaining.

This was the job of labor and management and government's role must be to assist the process and give leadership where it could to make it more effective.

"If we can succeed in helping labor and management to resolve their difficulties, if we can help them to approach the bargaining table with a better knowledge of the complex issues that they have to discuss today . . . then I think we can and should resist the suggestions that we in government should impose solutions by rewriting our laws to include all kinds of detailed provisions to cover specific industrial relations problems."

Grain Crop Above Estimates

WINNIPEG (CP) — Most of this year's Prairie grain crop now is in the bin. And a survey of agricultural observers indicates the total crops will be closer to average, and showing less harm from the summer drought, than preceeding reports had forecast.

Estimates from Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta show that grain crop yields will be considerably above all earlier estimates and approaching long-term averages. But the total wheat crop will be short of last year's record 844,000,000 bushels.

Manitoba crops are reported better than the other two larger grain-producing provinces. That province's forecast wheat crop is between 85,000,000 and a record 89,300,000 bushels.

WARRANTY CUT BACK TO FIRST 2 OWNERS

DETROIT (AP)—Chrysler Corporation says it is reducing its new-car guarantees to cover only the first and second owners of the vehicles.

Up to now, the warranty had been good for five years or 50,000 miles—whichever comes first—on the power train, wheels, steering gear and other major operating components and for 24,000 or 24 months on most remaining parts.

We're embarrassed to the tune of $3,286,680

—but you don't need to feel sorry for us. We're embarrassed because only a few weeks ago, we were proudly trumpeting that Victoria's Multiple Listing Service had broken all records by selling worth of property in one month. Now we find that this was nothing to be proud of. Out there in Ownerland, you've got the message and speed of selling is very important in most real estate deals. So all the smart people have started listing Multiple — and since one home in six sells within one week of being listed on MLS, changed hands in a hurry. And, of course, the more buyers who are told about a home for sale, the better price you get, and that's another reason why the total for the month of August climbed so fast

$3,286,680

Just because they get practically every real estate salesman in Victoria working for them (yet only the original listing salesman to deal with) extra advertising, wider exposure to buyers, and hence faster action and more money for their property, Victorians are listing more and more with MLS, the modern way

If you're thinking of selling, don't waste time (and money) by using old-fashioned methods. Go modern—go Multiple. Call your Realtor now about

WANT A 62-YARD FIELD GOAL? JUST ASK ZENON

Andrusyshyn, a sophomore from Toronto, who has never played American football, booted two from 57 yards after missing a couple of tries and then on his first and only try was successful at 62 yards.

"We just hope he can do something close to it in game pressure," said coach Tommy Prothro.

TIGERS TAMED

Horlen Tosses No-Hit Beauty

Joel Horlen capped a week-end of flambuoyance for Chicago White Sox and Detroit by pitching a no-hitter and beating the Tigers 6-0 in the first game of a Sunday doubleheader. The White Sox completed the sweep with three pitchers sharing the five-hit 4-0 night-cap victory.

JOEL HORLEN

The two victories moved Chicago into a third place tie with the Tigers, who only 24 hours earlier held on to a piece of the American League lead by rallying for seven runs in the ninth inning and a 7-3 victory over the Sox.

Minnesota Twins, meanwhile, remained in first place with a 4-2 victory over Baltimore Orioles and Boston clung to second place by beating New York Yankees 9-1. The Red Sox are a half game behind Minnesota and Chicago and Detroit both stands 1½ games off the pace.

In other American League games Sunday, Washington Senators rallied for three ninth-inning runs and a 3-2 victory over California Angels and Cleveland Indians split a doubleheader with Kansas City Athletics, winning 1-0 before losing 5-2.

In AL action Saturday, Washington shut out California 4-0, Kansas City defeated Cleveland 6-1, Boston downed New York 7-1, Detroit upset Chicago 7-3 and Minnesota edged Baltimore 3-2.

ALLOWS TWO RUNNERS

Horlen, a 30-year-old right-hander, allowed only two base runners, one on an error, the other on a hit batsman.

The White Sox gave him a quick five-run edge in the first inning with Wayne Causey's two-run triple, the key blow.

The Sox went about completing the sweep, Francisco Carlos, a 26-year-old rookie, won it with Hoyt Wilhelm and Bobby Locker providing relief.

Dave Boswell, 13-10, pitched a five-hitter for the Twins, who scored the tie-breaking run against Baltimore on a seventh inning error by the usually sure-handed Brooks Robinson.

Zoilo Versalles, who had opened the inning with a double, was on third with two out when Robinson booted Harmon Killebrew's ground ball.

George Scott and Mike Andrews each slugged a pair of doubles, Ken Harrelson had a home run and a single and Mike Ryan a bases-loaded triple to lead the Boston attack.

PERRY BLAMES SELF

Gaylord Perry, San Francisco's strong-armed right-hander, beat Chicago Cubs 2-1 Sunday with a three-hitter. But his string of successive scoreless innings was broken at 40—just 6 1-3 innings short of Carl Hubbell's National League record.

"I'm sorry it had to happen, but I'm glad I have no one to blame but myself," said Perry, whose two-base throwing error in the seventh inning set up the Cubs' run.

NOT JACK

Who's Idiot Now?

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Jack Nicklaus captured his third world series of golf trophy and the top prize of $50,000 Sunday when he shot a 37-33—70 for a 36-hole total of 144 and a one-stroke victory over Masters champion Gay Brewer.

His triumph was forged out of disgust with himself after shooting a four-over-par 74 in Saturday's first round rainstorm to trail the field.

"I had played like an idiot Saturday," said Nicklaus. "I have too much personal pride to allow myself to play that badly. I didn't care how much it rained, I had to figure out a way to hit the ball solidly again."

For the final round Nicklaus came out trailing the other three Series' golfers—British Open champion Roberto de Vicenzo by four strokes, Brewer by three strokes and PGA titlist Don January by one.

In the face of 25- to 35-mile-an-hour winds, Jack matched Firestone's par of 35-35—70, bagging five birdies in the process. Brewer finished second and earned $15,000 with a 38-36—74 and a 145 total. De Vicenzo took third money of $7,500 with 39-37—76 and 146 while January shot a 38-40—78 and 151, settling for $5,000 in the playoff of champions.

Surtees Wins Italian Prix

MONZA, Italy (AP) — John Surtees of Britain passed Australia's Jack Brabham on a curve just before the finish line Sunday and won the Grand Prix of Italy, a Formula One auto race counting toward the world driving championship.

Surtees, driving a Japanese Honda, completed the 68-lap, 243-mile race in one hour, 43 minutes, 45 seconds — two-tenths of a second faster than Brabham, the defending world champion who was driving a Repco-Brabham. The winner averaged 140.5 miles an hour.

HOW TO CATCH A FOOTBALL

No fancy one-handed Willie Mays' stabs for Ottawa's Whit Tucker. The sensational flanker demonstrates the classic way to catch a Russ Jackson pass—stretched out and both paws on the ball. But Saskatchewan Roughriders also had plenty on ball Sunday and whipped Ottawa 32-23 before 21,000 at Regina's bulging Taylor Field. (CP Wirephoto.)

KAPP-SIZING

Dawson Hits 15 In Row

Len Dawson has a new professional passing record — 15 straight completions — and Kansas City Chiefs needed all of them against a rugged Houston defence.

The Chiefs opened defence of their American Football League title Saturday night and had their hands full before pulling out a 25-20 decision at Houston.

San Diego beat Boston 28-14 in the other AFL regular season game on the West Coast.

In Sunday's games, Buffalo rallied for a 20-17 decision over New York and Oakland blasted Denver 51-0 in AFL regular season play. Cleveland whipped Minnesota 42-14 in an NFL exhibition. Joe Kapp, former B.C. Lion, saw only brief action for Minnesota.

Dawson's passing mark beat the NFL record of 13 straight set by Fran Tarkenton, then with Minnesota, and was four better than the old AFL record set by Dick Wood with New York in 1964.

For the evening, Dawson completed 17 of 19 passes for 189 yards, missing on one sideline attempt and being intercepted once. He passed for one touchdown, a 16-yard toss to Fred Arbanas.

Ticats, Roughies Assume Canadian Grid Thrones

Hamilton Tiger - Cats moved into first place in the Eastern Football Conference during the weekend following a 23-15 victory over Toronto that dumped the Argonauts into their familiar spot in the standings—the cellar.

The Argos, after a surprising two-game win streak to open the season, lost their fourth straight Sunday and now share bottom rung in the four-team conference with Montreal Alouettes, 27-26 victors Saturday over Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

The Ticats surprising move to the top—they have won four of five starts—was assured later Sunday when Saskatchewan Roughriders dumped Ottawa Rough Riders 32-23 in Regina.

The Tiger-Cats with eight points are two up on Ottawa and four ahead of Toronto and Montreal. All, with the exception of Argos, have played just five games.

SEE CUP REMATCH

A record shirt-sleeved Taylor Field crowd of 21,696 in Regina saw a virtual replay of last fall's Grey Cup final, also won by Saskatchewan, and a rematch of quarterbacks Russ Jackson and Ron Lancaster.

Lancaster, former Ottawa backup man for Jackson, directed the Western team 201 yards on the ground compared to 66 yards for Ottawa, and 223 yards in the air compared with Ottawa's 220. Both teams had 12 first downs.

Lancaster got two touchdowns from fullback Ed Buchanan, one an electrifying 85-yard gallop and the other on a 23-yard pass play, and one each from George Reed and Hugh Campbell. Jack Abendschan contributed two singles on wide field goal attempts and three converts.

Lancaster and a hard-rushing Ottawa defensive line contributed Ottawa's two first points when the Saskatchewan quarterback was driven over his own goal line for a safety.

Jackson passed for touchdowns to fullback Rick Black and end Margene Adkins, and got an unexpected six points when Larry Dumelie intercepted a Jackson pass intended for flanker Whit Tucker. But Dumelie bobbled the ball which Tucker alertly scooped up before stepping two yards over the goal line.

Ted Collins converted Black's touchdown and Moe Racine those of Adkins and Tucker.

Fumbles and funny happenings contributed largely to Montreal's victory as Roger Hamelin missed three Winnipeg converts—enough points to have won them the game.

EXCITING FOLLIES

In a game that offered about everything for 15,000 fans, Phil Brady of Montreal and Bill Cooper of Winnipeg traded touchdowns on punt returns—Brady for 70 yards and Cooper for 75.

Gerry Sternberg and Roger Murphy also scored touchdowns for Montreal while Ron Parson added three converts, a field goal and a single and two punt singles by Dave Lewis.

Dave Raimey scored twice for Winnipeg, once on a brilliant 95-yard gallop. Noel Dunford took a touchdown pass from quarterback Ken Ploen. Hamelin converted Raimey's first touchdown and rookie punter Ralph Schoenfeld added a punt single.

The fumbles all came late in the fourth quarter when both teams gave up the ball twice to lose fine scoring chances.

Hamilton got a pair of touchdowns from half Willie Bethea in the second quarter to key their victory with flanker Dave Fleming adding another and end Tommy-Joe Coffey contributing an 18-yard field goal and two converts.

Unconverted passing touchdowns by Jim Greth and Bobby Taylor, a single by punter Dave Mann and a conceded two points accounted for Toronto scoring as Hamilton dominated the statistics.

Quarterback Joe Zuger was good on 17 of 28 pass attempts for 230 yards while the Ticats moved 127 yards on the ground as Wally Gabler of Toronto completed 14 of 27 passes tried for 153 yards. The Argos gained 87 yards rushing.

CHINOOKS ALL SET TO ROLL

Victoria Chinooks, an out-of-the-running casualty in the Inter-City Junior Men's Basketball League chase last year, begin their 1967-68 season this week.

Chinooks drill Tuesday and Thursday at Central Junior High School gym at 7 p.m., Wednesday at 6:30.

They're looking for bodies—new and old.

Crash Claims Eight

RAFAELA, Argentina (AP) — Three accidents claimed eight lives and left 20 others injured Sunday in the 29th renewal of the 500-mile Rafaela auto race.

The worst of the accidents occurred on the seventh lap when driver Jose Manavella apparently lost control of his auto and swerved into the path of a car driven by Jorge Ternengo.

The two cars careered off the track, smashed through a wire fence and plunged into a group of spectators. Seven persons were killed, including Manavella, who was thrown from the vehicle.

Spectators were knocked into a grassy area nearby and several were critically injured.

Several others were injured in the second accident which occurred when driver Carlos Ruesch sideswiped a group of spectators.

HAPPILY, WRONG ONES WERE RIGHT

TORONTO (CP) — Art West of Toronto will never swear at another parimutuel clerk for giving him the wrong ticket.

A Woodbine clerk accidentally gave West, a former backfielder with Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League, a daily-double ticket for horses four and six.

West had asked for four and seven.

The mistake won $6,666.25 for West. He had been just about to toss away his five $5 tickets when he noticed the error.

West collected $1,333.25 cents on each of his tickets.

Talk About A Sleeper!

Lions, Esks Offer Cure For Insomnia, Tie 14-14

By HAL MALONE

VANCOUVER—Do you suffer from insomnia? Toss endlessly without avail? Lack tranquilizers?

Step right up. There's a ready remedy. Be at Empire Stadium for any British Columbia Lions-Edmonton Eskimos Western Conference Football League game.

If they don't put you into droopy-bye land, you have a problem.

Foolishly or otherwise at least John D. scrapped Saturday. The Lions and Eskimos put on a display that for sheer action can't compare with a good husband-wife debate — and they charged up to $5 for it. They were as thrilling as watching grass grow.

In 60 minutes of non-violence they went to a 14-14 tie before 28,266 at Empire Stadium.

With their point the Lions deservedly retained their lease on last place. They have three points out of a potential 14, one less than Winnipeg and two shy of Edmonton.

Both coaches viewed the outcome through rose-colored eyeballs.

Said the Lions' Jim Champion: "A tie is like kissing your sister, eh? Well, this was 10 times better."

Edmonton's Neill Armstrong: "I'll take it."

When you are living on welfare you don't throw anything back. Even crumbs.

The customers received their share.

Walk in the Tying Run?

Unable to score a touchdown by their offensive team (yes, offensive) in four WFC games, the Eskimos scored two against the Lions.

Down 13-7 the Eskimos conceded a single point which they didn't have to, forcing them to accept a tie. Can't you see Eddie Stanky intentionally walking in the tying run against Minnesota?

On the B.C. side, their major scores were split between offense and defence. The defence was split like Buster's breaches in the last quarter.

The Lions knew Edmonton had to pass to score and sat back and admired the Esks' tying touchdown drive which included nine completed passes in 11 plays.

Bill Munsey fumbled away a B.C. touchdown on the Eskimo two-yard line. And to prove he could do it again, Munsey dropped the egg on his own 34.

The Lions' offence produced 52 yards on the ground, 15 in the second half.

In sequence the scoring was B.C. 7, Edmonton 0; B.C. 13-0; B.C. 13-7; B.C. 14-7; and the final 14-14.

Without Bernie Faloney throwing the Lions wouldn't get in the stadium door. His arm is alright but the line in front of him would make any quarterback double his life insurance. They wouldn't leave an abrasion on a package of wet Kleenex.

Cosentino Played Catch . . .

If Faloney's arm falls (or is pulled) off the Lions better forfeit or take lessons in ducking ripe tomatoes.

Their one offensive team scoring play, a Faloney to Jim Young pass spanning 68 yards, occurred through Edmonton's excessive generosity. Young was in the sights of three Eskimos but nobody tackled him.

The Lions' second TD was an unexpected surprise. Deep in his own end Edmonton's Frank Cosentino pushed his pass. Intended for Trent Walters it hit the Lions' Norm Fieldgate in the breadbasket.

He lumbered 16 yards in non-track record time without an Eskimo near. Ted Gerala kicked his second conversion.

Then Cosentino, whom mastermined Armstrong had considered replacing "because we weren't doing anything," discovered that the middle of the B.C. secondary was unprotected territory. He began playing catch with Peter Kempf and Randy Kerbow and Art Perkins. Kerbow capped it off, standing in the end zone alone, for the touchdown toss. Kempf converted.

The Esks who will not always be accused of clear thinking, inexplicably gave up a point by conceding Gerala's wide 43-yard field goal try.

But Munsey matched that stroke of brilliance by dropping Faloney's handoff ("I don't want it, you take it — no, it's your's") and Consentino unlimbered the elastic band that is his right arm and began to throw.

Everybody in the place knew he would hang the ball up. So you either rush and petrify him or drop back and hang onto every Eskimo pair of pants in sight.

He wasn't harrassed; neither were his receivers molested.

Nine passes and one run took the Esks to the two and Cosentino simply hurled himself across for the Edmonton saviour — with 1:18 left in the game.

Champion said Munsey's fumble put pressure on the defence. He didn't say why the defence didn't apply a tourniquet to Cosentino's throat.

At Forest Hills

BILLIE JEAN, JOHN NET QUEEN, KING

By WILL GRIMSLEY

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP)—Billie Jean King, of Long Beach, Calif., beat a game and crippled Ann Haydon Jones, of Britain, for the women's singles crown Sunday but the United States' faint hopes of a singles sweep in the United States tennis championships were dashed on the destructive racquet of Australia's John Newcombe.

Newcombe, the strapping, 23-year-old new king of the amateurs, hammered Clark Graebner of Beachwood, Ohio, into submission with a crushing service and killer volley 6-4, 6-4, 8-6.

Mrs. King turned back Mrs. Jones in a bizarre and dramatic centre court duel 11-9, 6-4.

Mrs. King whipped Francoise Durr of France 6-2, 6-4 in an error-pocked match Saturday to enter the final. The left-handed Mrs. Jones defeated Lesley Turner of Australia 6-2, 6-4 in a baseline duel in her semi-final match Saturday.

Newcombe, already holder of the Wimbledon title and recognized as the world's No. 1 amateur, methodically disposed of the other U.S. threat in the men's division Saturday, downing Eugene Scott 6-4, 6-3, 6-3. Graebner entered the finals with a marathon 3-6, 3-6, 7-5, 6-4, 7-5 win over Jan Leschly of Denmark.

In the third game of Sunday's final, Mrs. Jones said, she felt a sharp pang from an old hamstring injury in her left thigh and by the seventh game she was hobbling around on one leg.

Graebner, who raised U.S. tennis morale by becoming the first American player since 1963 to reach the final here, was the victim of his own big service.

PREMIER DECORATES SON'S HORSE

You Can't Beat Those Bennetts

By HAL MALONE

VANCOUVER — Don't bet against a Bennett in B.C.

Robert Strachan knows the power of Bennett. So does Ray Perrault. And Davey Fulton.

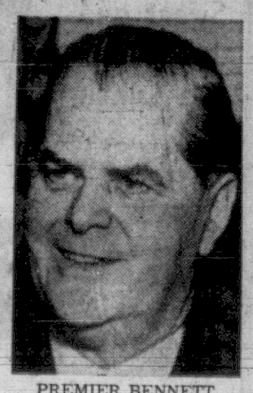

A Bennett named Russell saw his Flying Magic win the $12,500 Premier's Championship at Exhibition Park Saturday. In the winner's circle Russell received congratulations and a silver tea tray from the man after whom the race was named, his father, Premier W. A. C. Bennett.

In his other hand, the left one, the Premier clutched tightly two tickets—naturally on Flying Magic. They were worth $38.70 each. For a finance minister the Premier has good taste in wagering.

Flying Magic won by three quarters of a length over Westbury Road. Hanko was third by a head over Costa Rica. The winner covered the mile and one eighth in 1:50.2 — only three-fifths of a second behind the track record on a strip that was slow.

The Bennetts received boos from a segment of the 8,115 present. The Premier cooly waved at the dissenters and smiled his best $38.70-times-two smile.

What the dissidents forgot is that just a week ago Flying Magic was defeated only three lengths by Westbury Road. But the latter picked up three pounds (to a staggering 131) while Flying Magic came on at only 111.

PREMIER BENNETT
. . . best $38.70 smile

That discrepancy and a slight traffic tieup kept Westbury Road from validating his claim as a horse that can pack Mahalia Jackson and still win.

Flying Magic and Westbury Road were fourth and fifth with three-eighths of a mile to go. Jack Phillips who had wisely restrained Flying Magic off the sizzling early pace took his feet off the brakes and sent his horse to the front on the outside.

Dennis Tierney chose to save ground with Westbury Road. But the gap he sought to slip through disappeared when the pace-setting Jeff D felt his corns hurting and backed up.

Tierney had to check Westbury Road momentarily. Flying Magic was doing the flying carpet trick and bolted to a two-length lead. Westbury came after him in the stretch. With Tierney spanking Westbury's flanks, the big horse narrowed the distance inch by inch. They ran out of inches before the tape.

Before the race, a visitor asked Premier Bennett in the paddock, "what if your son's horse wins?"

The premier smiled.

"There aren't enough eggs in town to splatter me," he said.

Four Steelers Win Praise Despite Loss

BARRY TAYLOR
. . . injures leg

SAN JOSE, Calif.—When a football team is beaten by 27 points and the coaching leaders single out members of the defence corps for honorable mention, that must be considered high praise for the winners.

The winners Saturday were San Jose Apaches. Their warpath took them to a 29-2 scalping of Victoria Steelers in a hard-knocking Continental Football League game.

Indeed, the Apaches looked like very serious contenders for the Continental's western division championship.

Big and well-balanced, San Jose has a go-go offense that kept Victoria defenders working overtime. That's why Fred Forsburg, Steelers' linebacker and assistant coach, defensive back Dave Dillon, tackle Mose Watkins and defensive end Wendell Jones emerged as the brightest of Victoria's playing lights.

Quarterbacks Charlie Green and Chon Gallegos alternated effectively to direct a San Jose attack that gained over 400 yards.

Green completed 19 of 37 passes for 244 yards and two touchdown passes. His pivot partner went six-for-12, including another paydirt throw.

Victorians Missed Early Chances

Tight end Bill Peterson hauled in two of the touchdown heaves, including a 52-guard effort from Gallegos. John Reed picked off the other TD toss, a 23-yarder. Dick Tatley converted all three majors and added two field goals. A safety touch rounded out San Jose's total.

Victoria's only points came in the second quarter when Hayward Williams broke through to tackle Green for a safety touch.

Steelers had at least three good scoring opportunities early in the game. An interception nullified one bid and penalty calls halted two other Victoria marches.

BOTHERED BY INJURY

Forced into a passing game, the Steelers made it easier for San Jose's defenders. Neither a limping Terry Durham nor Frank Etter could get Victoria's attack untracked. Durham's inability to roll out further compounded Steelers' offensive plights.

Victoria's passers completed only eight of 25 passes for a mere 25 yards and two first downs.

Durham's leg injury was suffered in a game against Seattle Rangers the previous weekend. In addition, sophomore Barry Taylor came up with a knee injury Saturday.

Both, however, are expected to be ready for Steelers' next game — in Victoria — on Sept. 23 against Eugene Bombers.

The two-week layoff from league play is welcomed by coach Don McKeta.

"That will give us time to heal and to put some polish into our attack," he said.

Eugene 'Juiced' Again

(Times News Services)

Orange County Ramblers rolled to its second consecutive Continental Football League victory Saturday night, whipping the Eugene Bombers 47-13 in Eugene.

Six-foot-four Rhome Nixon gathered in three touchdown passes and accounted for 150 yards to lead the Ramblers.

Southpaw Jerry Otterson engineered the victory, hitting 11 of 18 passes for 212 yards.

The loss was Eugene's third in a row.

At Sacramento, Seattle's Kermit Jorgenson scored with just 1:50 remaining to give the Rangers a 23-16 victory over Sacramento.

Jorgenson took the ball on a fourth-and-one situation at the 50-yard line, squirted through the pack and loped into the end zone.

Sacramento led 6-3 at the half on two field goals by Jerry Circa, who added another in the third period.

George Fleming kicked three field goals for the Rangers — one a 50-yarder.

JOCKEY SET DOWN

CALGARY (CP) — Racing officials announced that apprentice jockey Bill Norris has been suspended for three racing days for careless riding aboard My Rose Ann in a race last week at Victoria Park.

Hornets, Timbermen Travel Shutout Trail

Victoria Hornets and Cowichan Timbermen took the shutout route Sunday to keep pace in the run for first place in the Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League.

Hornets, sparked by a standout defensive performance, blanked Oak Bay's Farmer Construction 8-0 at Carnarvon Park. Cowichan's domination was more impressive as they rolled to a 38-0 victory over winless James Bay Mustangs.

Greg McMartin led Timbermen with a 14-point performance on two touchdowns and two converts. Bob Dias also scored a pair of majors while Miles Dobson and Brian Mann each rambled for one at Macdonald Park.

Farmers out-gunned their rivals 271-189 in net yardage gained, but couldn't crack Hornets' tough defence when it counted.

Dave Granlin's 30-yard single in the opening quarter gave Hornets a 1-0 lead.

Speedy Rod Fiddick wrapped up the victory in the fourth quarter, breaking away around left end for a 50-yard touchdown sprint. Stu Wells converted.

Brierlys Spark Cowichan

It was a Brierly benefit.

Brothers Tim, John and Tom Brierly stood out Saturday as their bats carried Cowichan to a successful defence of the Victoria and District Cricket Association's knockout cup. Cowichan defeated Oak Bay 192-147 in the 24-over final at Beacon Hill Park.

Tim scored 21 runs, John added 18 but the real sparkler was Tom, Cowichan's team captain

John Brazier and Keith Bickmore each scored 26 runs to pace Oak Bay's batting.

Jom Longridge led Cowichan's attack, claiming six wickets for 54 runs.

SEATTLE NETTERS SPARKLE

Tom Gorman and Dick Knight of Seattle Sunday captured top honors in the annual Pacific Northwest men's invitational doubles tennis tournament at the Victoria Racquet Club.

In topping a classy field of 30 pairings, Groman and Knight defeated Bill Quillian and Jack Lowe, also of Seattle, 12-10 in the "short set" final.

Gorman and Knight breezed to an 8-2 win over Sam Lee and Claude Hockley of Portland in one semifinal. Quillian and Lowe made it an all-Seattle final by tripping Vancouver's Alan Skelton and Bob Moffatt, 14-12.

'PATTIE' READY

Intrepid Slight 'Cup' Favorite

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The world's most prized yachting trophy, the America's Cup, goes up for grabs Tuesday with the United States' Intrepid a slight favorite to extend this country's long domination against an Australian challenge.

Dame Pattie, designed by Warwick Hood and skippered by Jock Sturrock, is the Australian challenger in the best-of-seven series for 12-metre yachts.

Intrepid, designed by Olin Stephens specifically for this defense, will be skippered by Bus Mosbacher of White Plains, N.Y., a 46-year-old veteran.

The United States never has lost a series in 19 challenges dating back to 1851, and the silver cup has never moved from its stand at the New York Yacht Club.

Intrepid has had most of its trial runs in light to moderate winds. The one time it blew really hard during a cruise run, Intrepid was dismasted.

The races will be sailed over a 23.4-mile course seven miles south-southeast of Brenton Reef Tower in Rhode Island Sound. Races will not be sailed in fog or extreme calm or extremely stormy conditions. The yachts must finish by 6 p.m. EDT daily or the race will be called no contest.

Jack Keeps Tribe Alive

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Jack Cullen pitched magnificent three-hit relief over the final 4 2-3 innings, drove in one run and scored another Sunday as Spokane defeated San Diego 4-2 to narrow the gap against the Padres 3-2 in the best of seven Pacific Coast Baseball League championship series.

The Spokane Indians put together a three-run uprising in the seventh to defeat the San Diego Padres, leaving the Indians with back-to-back wins after dropping the first three in the best-of-seven eastern western series.

The Indians go after the tieing victory tonight, but their starter is anybody's guess. Tonight San Diego's pitcher will be Gary Wagner, 12-4 during the regular season and the winner in the second game of this series.

Does he take better care of your kids than you do?

He may.

He was concerned enough about the kids he drives to install a set of new Goodyear polyesters on his car.

And they're not even his kids.

This doesn't mean school pickup operators are rich. This man only paid about $30 a tire for his Goodyear polyesters. Yet they're among the safest tires you can buy at any price.

This is a new kind of tire. It's considered the most significant improvement in 20 years. The difference is in the cord; new polyester cord. This is an incredibly strong synthetic cord that has all the advantages of nylon and rayon combined, with none of the disadvantages.

It's another first from Goodyear.

The major car manufacturers have selected Goodyear polyesters as original equipment on their new cars. And safety isn't the only reason.

These polyesters are also longer wearing.

They've practically eliminated the problem of cuts and impact breaks.

They're smoother riding, and they're quieter running too.

They won't 'flat spot' overnight. So, no morning thump.

They'll even improve your gas mileage.

Talk to your Goodyear man soon about polyester tires by Goodyear.

And next time you take your kids for a drive, take a look at your tires. If you think maybe the kids would be better off in the school pickup, you know what to do.

O'Keefes Show Grealy Their Best and Worst

By JIM HUME

It took Victoria O'Keefes 53 minutes to find mid-season form Saturday and defeat New Westminster Labatts 2-1.

Sunday, in the slashing rain of Topaz Park, they never did find it so far as finishing goes. But they did manage a 1-1 tie with Victoria West.

The back-to-back exhibition series did several things for manager-coach Frank Grealy.

On Saturday he saw his club play its worst and best soccer.

On Sunday with half-a-dozen sure-fire veterans out of line-up he was able to watch would-be first stringers go all the way with a greasy ball on a greasy pitch with only a handfull of fans to cheer them on.

RETREAT FROM MOSCOW

At times it looked more like the retreat from Moscow as forwards tangled with their own halfbacks and the halfbacks trod on the toes of the fullbacks.

Adding to the confusion during the 45-minutes of furious backpedalling were constantly out of position wingers and inside forwards with a marked reluctance to kick the ball.

For the last 45-minutes of play Victoria took command.

In the second half the entire team decided to have a go for victory.

That was at the 26-minute mark and was sufficient to send 524 Royal Athletic Park fans home happy.

'GOALIE' SCORES

In the miserable Sunday game Grealy started Hamilton in goal "to see what we've got in the way of back-up" and without Menzies, Stothart or George Paul.

DAVIS LEADS BROOKLIN INTO MANN CUP FINAL

BROOKLIN, Ont. (CP)—Brooklin Redmen defeated Brampton Excelsiors 9-6 Saturday to win the Ontario Lacrosse Association championship in the last game of the best-of-seven series.

Brooklin now goes against Vancouver for the Mann Cup. The Canadian championship series will be played in Vancouver, starting Tuesday.

Terry Davis, one-time Victoria Shamrock performer, paced Brooklin to the victory with three goals. Bob Hanna, with two, Tom Conlin, Elmer Tran, Don Craggs and Ken Crawford scored other goals for Brooklin.

Flory Tomchyschyn scored twice for Brampton while Gord Thompson, Don Arthurs, Brian Ahearne and Wayne Thompson added single goals.

Nanaimo Drops Three Straight

BRANTFORD (CP) — A six-goal performance by Roger Smith spearheaded Brantford Warriors to the Canadian Senior B Lacrosse championship here Saturday. The Warriors whipped Nanaimo Luckies 20-10 to sweep the best-of-five final series in straight games.

Warriors took a 9-4 first period lead and were in front 16-6 after two periods.

'Bellies Extend Series

OSHAWA (CP) — New Westminster Salmonbellies outshot and outscored Oshawa Green Gaels 12-5 to take the fourth game in the Minto Cup junior lacrosse finals Saturday.

Salmonbellies' close checking in front of the steady goaltending of Terry Garrett limited Oshawa's shots on goal to 29. Westminster lobbed 43 shots at Oshawa goalie Merv Marshall.

Fifth game of the series will be played tonight.

Defenceman Al Lethwaite led New Westminster scoring with three goals and one assist. Wayne Goss and Paul Shmyr each scored twice. Single Salmonbellies' goals went to Ken Winzoski, Barrie Bolton, Kerry Gallagher, Ed Goss and Steve D'Easum.

Oshawa's high-scoring Gaylord Powless, a doubtful starter because of injuries he suffered in last Thursday's game, never got past the New Westminster defence, but was credited with two assists.

Intuition Pays Off

(Times News Services)

A last-minute choice as a starter scored three goals Saturday and sparked Oakland Clippers to a 4-1 victory over Baltimore Bays and the National Professional Soccer League championship.

Dragan Djukic, recently acquired from Los Angeles Toros, justified coach Alex Obradovic's intuition by scoring three goals in the first half.

St. Louis, runnerup in the western division, defeated Philadelphia Spartans, the east's second-place finisher, 2-1 Saturday on first-half goals by Norb Pogrzeba and Rudi Kolbi to move into the cup final.

Soccer Squabble Carried to Court

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Professional Soccer League, alleging a conspiracy to drive it out of existence, filed an $18,000,000 suit in federal court Saturday against the United Soccer Association and two governing soccer organizations.

Named in the suit, besides the rival league, are the United States Soccer Football Association and its parent body, the International Federation of Football Associations (FIFA).

The suit alleges that, in violation of federal anti-trust laws, the defendants have entered into a conspiracy to drive the NPSL out of professional soccer, hopefully before the 1968 season.

The suit asks for damages totalling $18,000,000 and injunctions which would prevent any club affiliated with either USA or USSFA from playing any game in the United States or Canada unless and until the NPSL and its members are granted recognition.

The suit comes after there had been talk of a merger of the two leagues. The idea fell through.

RACING ROUNDUP

Two-Year-Olds Earn $185,875

Times News Services

T.V. Commercial won the first division and Vitriolic took the second Saturday in the Arlington-Washington Futurity — billed as the world's richest thoroughbred race with a combined gross of $371,750.

T.V. Commercial took the lead on the home turn and zipped to a 3¾-length victory over North Star Ranch's Gin-Rob. The two horses were co-favorites, at 2 to 1.

Royal Cap was third.

At New York's Aqueduct track, Queen of the Stage, Ogden Phipps' unbeaten two-year-old filly, made it six in a row with an easy four-length victory in the $104,090 Matron Stakes.

Gay Matilda and Syrian Sea, the Meadow Stable entry and the 4-to-1 second choice, came on to finish second and third, respectively.

At Del Mar, Estambul II outlasted five other horses to win the $15,000 Escondido Handicap.

Hunter Rink 'Spiel Champs

Gilbert Records Third Totem Win

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — W. J. (Bud) Gilbert of Mount Vernon, Wash., Saturday won the 37th annual Totem Pole golf championship.

Gilbert, who won the championship in 1961 and again in 1963, defeated L. P. (Pat) Martin of Seattle 3 and 2 in the 36-hole final.

In the women's 18-hole championship final, Mrs. C. W. Coffen of Portland, Ore., defeated Mrs. A. K. Snell of Edmonton.

O.C. CRICKET

LONDON (Reuters) — Close-of-play scores in Saturday's cricket matches:
Kent 215 for 9; Pakistanis 142.
Yorkshire 145, MCC 132.

He Walks Alone

BERWICK, Pa. (AP) — Ron Laird, 29, a Pomona, Calif., draftsman, won the National Senior AAU 15-kilometre walk Saturday for the fourth time in the last five years.

STOPPED IN SIXTH

Haslam Speeds Away With Roy White Trophy

RICHER by $24,000 today is U.S. Auto Club champion Mario Andretti (above), who won Hoosier Hundred race at Indianapolis on Saturday. A. J. Foyt was second. Andretti's strongest challenger was a surprising rookie, Bruce Walkup, 23.

Roy Haslam started rolling slowly, shifted to second and then, as expected, was moving in high gear by the time Saturday's main event was completed at Western Speedway.

Third in the trophy dash, the sensational young stock car pilot came in for second-place money in the fast heat.

He was home first in the 40-lap feature race for the coveted Roy White Memorial Trophy, nosing out Fred Isaacson and Mel Marshall. It was Haslam's fifth main-event victory of the season at the Langford oval.

Barb Reimer won the ladies' powder puff derby, beating Dianne Powell.

Four rollovers provided added excitement for the benefit of 2,812 fans. Involved in the spills were Barry Little, Bill Carnegie, Fred Best and Randy Ouellette. Apart from minor scratches, no one was seriously injured.

Complete results:

"A" trophy—1. Rick O'Dell, 2. Gary Kershaw, 3. Roy Haslam.

Cookie Crocked

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Fullback Cookie Gilchrist of the Denver Broncos American Football League team was placed on the injured wajver list Saturday and will undergo exploratory surgery today for a knee injury.

DETROIT — Al Blue Lewis, Detroit, knocked out Don Toro Smith, Pittsburgh, 3.

Victorian Tops Class At Games

MONTREAL (CP) Doug Wilson of Vancouver was chosen the best male athlete Saturday at the windup session of the Paraplegic Centennial Games.

Wilson's selection as the top male athlete earned him the Schenley Trophy and he was also chosen the top athlete in the games class C section.

Wilson picked up a gold medal earlier in the day when he won the 50-yard dash with a time of 11 seconds.

Vancouver won the Brigadier de Lalande trophy as the top team in the three-day competition.

Irene Miller of Winnipeg won the Brik's trophy as the top female athlete. Tony Bagnato of Toronto was the top athlete in the class "A" section, Wilf Parsons of Victoria was tops in the "B" class and Gordon Kirland of Edmonton headed the "D" class.

Athletes were divided into groups according to their disabilities.

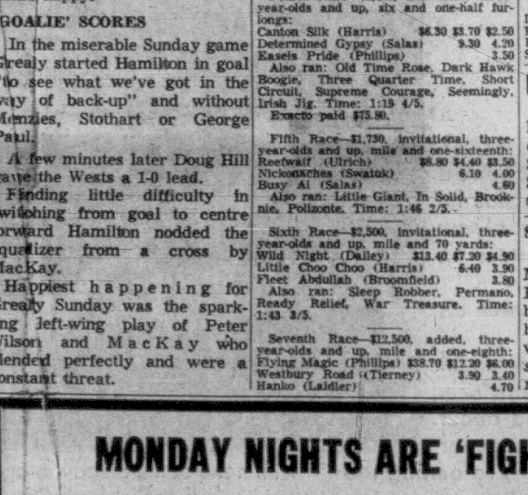

Penguins Get Bassen

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Penguins of the new National Hockey League division have obtained veteran goalkeeper Hank Bassen from Detroit Red Wings in exchange for Roy Edwards, their second goalkeeping pick in the expansion draft.

Reduce Penalties Says Drug Expert

VANCOUVER (CP)—Ingeborg Paulus, an internationally-known researcher in the field of narcotics and psychedelic drugs, called last week for easing of penalties for marijuana and LSD convictions.

Miss Paulus made the recommendation in a report on psychedelic drug use in Vancouver — primarily among the city's growing hippie community — prepared for the Narcotics Addiction Foundation of B.C.

In an interview following release of the 119-page report, Miss Paulus said marijuana should not come under the jurisdiction of the Narcotics Control Act—the same act that governs use of heroin and other strongly addictive drugs.

"The penalties are much too severe considering that marijuana is not physically addictive and has much milder effects than the true narcotics," she said.

"Marijuana used in moderation may be no worse than alcohol used in moderation," she said.

In her report, Miss Paulus stressed that she does not favor unrestricted availability and use of marijuana — or LSD.

"If marijuana was freely available, it would be abused by the same type of person who now abuses alcohol and the concomitants of such heavy use would contribute to the overall physical, psychological and social deterioration of these users."

Miss Paulus said use of LSD in Vancouver is lessening in the Vancouver area and that in her view, it no longer poses a social threat. The report said LSD is an extremely dangerous hallucinatory agent.

"In the case of LSD, untoward reactions can be experienced by anyone. It is a highly unpredictable drug, its effects depend on too many uncontrollable variants."

She said its use should only be condoned under strictly controlled clinical settings.

Miss Paulus added, however, that jailing LSD users for extended periods of time is not a solution to the problem.

She said she based her report on questionnaires and interviews with 53 male and 19 female volunteers from the ranks of the city's marijuana and LSD users.

Cleaner 'Sniffer' Can't Stop

A youth who pleaded guilty to stealing a bottle of nail polish remover to "sniff" was remanded for sentence to Sept. 15 when he appeared in central court Friday.

Woodward's security officer Mrs. Margaret Campbell said that James Rumney, 18, of 536 Hillside, took the 43-cent bottle of polish remover from the drug counter and told her he was going to sniff it.

His eyes were swollen and red, Mrs. Campbell said. The accused told her that he had just come from sniffing polish at Topaz Park and couldn't stop.

Magistratae Willim Ostler said it was "hard to imagine a more dreary affliction for a young man" and that he would need outside help.

Service Brakes To Be Required On Trailers

Mobile homes, commercial trailers or family weekend trailares must be equipped with service brakes after March 31, 1968, if they weigh more than 3,000 pounds.

An order in council passed Friday amended the Motor Vehicles Act to make the new provision mandatory for trailers using any highway in B.C.

The law says there must be a brake on each exle, unless the trailer has three or more axles, in which case it may be operated without brakes on one of them.

An exception is made if the gross weight of the trailer is less than 50 per cent of the weight of the towing vehicle, or if the trailer consists of a piece of construction machinery towed by a truck having a rated capacity greater than the combined weight of truck and trailer.

Develop A Powerful Memory?

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, how much they could influence many people do not realize others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear, or read. Whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training method in a new booklet "Adventures in Memory," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Send your name and address to: Memory Studies, 835 Diversey Parkway, Dept. 142-219, Chicago, Ill. 60614. A postcard will do.

Cut Provinces to 5, Urges Senator Hays

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Senator Harry Hays proposed Friday night that Canada be a nation of five provinces.

—That British Columbia be one province all the way to Alaska;

That Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba be joined as one province stretching to the Arctic Ocean;

—That Ontario and Quebec remain individual provinces;

—And that the three Maritime provinces and Newfoundland form the fifth province.

Not only should there be only five provinces, but their boundaries should be reassessed every 10 years, he added.

FOUR-LEGGED GUARD of honor welcomed Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes to Cowichan Exhibition Saturday. In true military fashion the retired general inspected the troops, commenting on their neatness and precision. The horses were among hundreds which took part in a wide variety of events at the fall fair. In addition to horses from Vancouver Island there were many entries from the Mainland. At right, the Lieutenant-Governor presents 1st prize ribbon to Wendy Lister, captain of winning team in tandem jumping event.

9,903 ATTEND 100-YEAR-OLD COWICHAN EXHIBITION

Fair Wins Race With Downpour

DUNCAN—Cowichan Fall Fair was just 12 hours ahead of the weather Saturday.

Saturday night when the gates closed the heavens opened and the rains came down.

But not before attendance for the centennial show had almost reached the 1965 record of 10,000.

Combined attendance for Friday and Saturday was 9,903.

Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes and Mrs. Pearkes spent all Saturday afternoon on the showgrounds.

The lieutenant-governor and his wife were also honored at the display of Polish folk dancing by members of the Zgoda Society of Vancouver.

Mr. Pearkes was invited to the platform to make the first cut in the exhibition's 100th birthday cake.

Centre of a lot of attraction Saturday were competitions and demonstrations by 4-H Club members.

PONDERING what to turn his hand to next is Cowichan Exhibition director Bill Jaggers. He didn't have time to don his full Centennial garb but just grabbed this oldtimer's top hat. Bill was a leading prizewinner in the fruit, vegetable and flowers classes.

Show results from Saturday were:

Rescued Hunter On Last Raisin

LAKE COWICHAN—Down to his last raisin—the only food he'd eaten for 36 hours—hunter Jack Nelson stumbled out of the bush here Saturday night.

Jack, of 1145 Verdier, Brentwood, had been tramping in the woods in dense fog since early Saturday.

Shortly after setting out the fog closed in and Jack was unable to get his bearings.

Realizing he may be lost for some time he eked out the little packet of raisins and half pack of cigarettes he'd brought with him.

For a few hours during the night the torrential rain let up and Jack, without any rain gear, managed to get some sleep.

Meanwhile his partner had raised the alarm and late in the afternoon RCMP officers got a fix on the lost man by pin-pointing his rifle fire.

For what its worth to Jack, he's probably the first hunter of the season to be lost. The deer season only opened Saturday.

THE WAR WAGON
Victoria Premiere
Coronet Theatre

Out of the rolling West comes a familiar, hard-bitten figure — John Wayne in a red-bleached shirt and ten-gallon hat — and once more we are riding the dusty trail in a new horse opera from Universal City studios.

On a recent visit to Universal City, I saw a large corral of frisky horses and was told they were kept in reserve for the ever-popular Westerns.

"You can't go wrong with a good Western," a studio executive said: "They rarely fail at the box office and no one objects to them on moral grounds."

War Wagon is definitely a good Western. It is tautly dramatic and moves with surprising force and pace through a story that is more vigorous than original. The give-and-take dialogue is bright and breezy and old-timers John Wayne and Kirk Douglas sustain interest in two full-size Western characters.

Wayne is a once-wealthy rancher whose gold-rich land has been stolen from him. Back he comes with four men foolhardy enough to help him in a dare-devil scheme to restore his riches — a leathery gunfighter (Kirk Douglas), an outlaw Indian (Howard Keel), an alcoholic kid (Robert Walker) and a wagon-driving double agent (Keenan Wynn).

After the usual palaver between friendly Indians and ruthless white men, the avengers descend on the villains' war wagon — an armor-plated, heavily-guarded stage coach, full of gold dust.

With the help of explosives and a band of Kiowa Indians, the villains are killed and the wagon pillaged — but the loot is lost when runaway horses spill barrels of it across the landscape.

There is more to the story than that and much of it is involved in the piquant relationships between John Wayne and Kirk Douglas.

Recovery Weeks Off For Pope

vatican city (UPI) — Doctors today said it may take Pope Paul VI several weeks to recover from a kidney infection. In a dramatic window appearance the Pontiff himself predicted a return to health "soon."

The Roman Catholic church leader's doctors were reported sure that anitbiotics and much rest would allow Paul to resume normal activity by his 70th birthday on Sept. 26.

But qualified sources said only the Pope's firmness cause the physicians to step aside Sunday and allow him to appear at an open window of his Vatican apartment.

His appearance electrified a crowd of 20,000 which had gathered with little hope of receiving the traditional Sunday noon benediction in St. Peter's square.

The Pontiff thanked them "from the heart." he said, "we are happy to be able to do so in person, despite the illness that suddenly struck us and which it seems we will soon overcome."

His voice was hoarse. Aides said he was paler than usual and has lost weight since falling ill last Monday. But the word was enough for the crowd.

Lynda Bird to Wed Capt. Charles Robb

WASHINGTON (AP)—A White House wedding in early December is planned for Lynda Bird Johnson and Marine Capt. Charles S. Robb, who met the president's daughter in the line of duty.

The young couple flew back from Texas Sunday night aboard the presidential jet plane after President and Mrs. Johnson announced their engagement from the LBJ ranch.

Lynda, 23, the Johnson's older daughter, showed off her diamond engagement ring, but ignored photographers' requests to kiss her 28-year-old fiance, from Milwaukee, Wis.

The surprise announcement of Lynda's engagement ended continued speculation over the romantic interest of the president's daughter. She had numerous beaus through the years and broke an engagement to a young navy lieutenant three years ago.

Until Robb came along, Lynda had been dating Hollywood actor George Hamilton more than anyone else. A few weeks ago, though, Hamilton declared "marriage is not in the immediate future."

Robb, who plans to make the marines his career and is scheduled to go to Vietnam in February, first met Lynda a little more than a year ago when he was assigned to the White House as a military social aide. She called on him to make a fourth at bridge.

They didn't start dating steadily, though, until the last four months.

THE SOLDIERS

Churchill Family Can Block Play

LONDON (AP)—The lord chamberlain has ruled that Rolf Hochhuth's controversial play, The Soldiers, cannot be publicly performed in Britain unless written permission is given by the family of Sir Winston Churchill and others it is said to malign.

The play, by the German playwright who raised a storm with his earlier work The Deputy, about Pope Pius XII, was rejected by the National Theatre Board last April because it portrayed Churchill as being concerned in a plot to kill the Polish leader, Gen. Wladyslaw Sirkorsky. It also criticizes the wartime prime minister's action in the bombing of Dresden.

This weekend the lord chamberlain, Lord Cobbold, told Sir Laurence Olivier and Kenneth Tynan, who had intended staging the play in London's West End, they could not do so unless they had written permission from Churchill's family; surviving relatives of Lord Cherwell, Churchill's scientific adviser; Lord Alanbrooke, former chief of staff, and Dr. George Bell then Anglican bishop of Chichester. All appear as characters in the play.

The lord chamberlain has jurisdiction over public stage performances in Britain.

$5,000 Offered In Prizes To Students

Canadian high school students will win $5,000 in prizes in a centennial writing contest announced today.

The contest, open to secondary school students, will accept entries of up to 2,500 words on "any subject that make you eager to talk on paper."

The contest is sponsored by Canada Permanent Trust and entries will be judged by a panel of writers headed by poet Earle Birney.

Prizes will range from $1,500 to $25.

The contest closes Nov. 1 and prizes will be awarded Dec. 15.

Meeting Tuesday On Prospect L. Water Referendum

A public meeting will be held Tuesday night on the $229,455 Prospect Lake water referendum to be held Saturday.

Representatives of the engineering and planning departments and the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health will be present. Meeting starts at 8 p.m. in Prospect Lake Community Hall.

QUEEN of beauties is the new Miss America, Debra Denes Barnes of Pittsburg, Kansas. She is 19 years old with the crown coming only three days after her birthday. She's five feet nine inches tall, weighs 135 and her measurements are 36½-24-36½.

MINI-SKIRT OK IN U.K.

LONDON (AP)—Mini-skirts win again.

Patrick Gordon Walker, the new education minister, said Saturday girls returning to school in Britain this fall will not be forbidden to wear mini-skirts as long as school heads approve.

Gordon Walker, 60, and a father of three grown daughters, said he had no intention of copying French Education Minister Alain Peyrefitte's recent ban on short skirts in school.

Nothing Wrong With Youth Say Pioneer Medal Holders

Young people today are no worse or better than those of past generations.

That was the opinion of the majority of View Royal pioneers who were guests at a centennial reception at All Saints Church parish hall Friday.

The 10 pioneers who have lived in Canada for 75 years or more, received centennial medallions from Lawrie Wallace, chairman of B.C. centennial commission.

All were frank on their views on today's young people.

Mrs. Winnifred Hebert Pope said grown-ups have complained about the behavior of young people for generations.

"MARVELOUS"

Mrs. Pear Adsit, 78, who was born in Edmonton, said she thought young people of today "marvelous."

Frederick William Campbell, who was born on Prince Edward Island in 1887, said today's young people take longer to mature.

"We learned to take on responsibility at a much earlier age," he said. "I would plow my father's field at 14 and was expected to do my share of work."

Mr. Campbell was a locomotive engineer for the CPR for 43½ years. He retired in 1952.

The group also seemed to think western Canada's golden years were the years preceding the First World War.

Calgary-born Maj. Walter R. Critchley, 76, said the main reasons they were golden years was because wealth was more equally distributed.

"Nobody had too much," he said. "This made people more friendly—brought people closer together."

The pace was also slower, he said, and people enjoyed themselves much more. There was plenty of fishing and hunting and trespassing presented no problems.

"OLD DAYS"

"Give me the good old horse and buggy days," said James Henry Barker, 72.

Others who received medallions were: Mrs. Isabella Black Wallace, Roy Dunsterville Chandler, Colin K. McKenzie, Joseph Pottinger Petch and Ernest Stancil.

Mrs. Ruth Pearce accepted a medal on behalf of her late father, Duncan Douglas McTavish, who died earlier this year.

Janet and William Walters also accepted a medallion and gift for their grandfather, William J. Napier McNeely, who was not well enough to attend.

The reception was chaired by Al Beasley, chief of the View Royal Volunteer Fire Department. In charge of the reception was Mrs. Morris Aldersmith, chairman of the View Royal Centennial Committee.

Apart from each receiving a gift, the pioneers were entertained by the Sweet Adeline singers and the Can-Can dancers, Sheila Turner, Sharon Power, Nancy Little and Nancy Ratcliffe, all from Esquimalt High School.

CABINET WRONGDOINGS

Alberta Probe Opens Tuesday

The commission will investigate charges brought before the spring session of the legislature that a cabinet minister and a former cabinet minister used, or attempted to use, their public offices for personal gain.

The charges were made by Garth Turcott, then New Democratic Party member for Pincher Creek - Crowsnest, against E. W. Hinman, former provincial treasurer, and A. J. Hooke, then municipal affairs minister and now welfare minister.

The commission is headed by Mr. Justice W. J. C. Kirby of the Alberta Supreme Court. Commission counsel is Carl Clement of Edmonton, who says the inquiry should last a month, but it could last longer because of the number of counsel involved.

Represented by counsel are Mr. Hooke, Mr. Hinman, Mr. Turcott and Alberta NDP Leader Neil Reimer, the NDP, the provincial government, the Progressive Conservative party, the Liberal party, and Dr. C. A. Allard, an Edmonton doctor and businessman.

The inquiry first convened June 15 and was adjourned until Tuesday after receiving 124 exhibits.

Many were documents introduced into the legislature by MR. Turcott during a series of events that began almost a year ago.

MOTION FIRST REJECTED

A year ago at a special session of the legislature, Mr. Turcott tried to get the matter debated, but his motion was rejected.

During the throne speech debate at the regular spring session, he introduced some of the documents and called for a judicial inquiry.

After five weeks, the government announced the documents contained "no evidence of wrongdoing," and Mr. Turcott was challenged to bring in specific charges and supporting evidence.

He followed up with more documents and the inquiry was called.

Mr. Turcott won his seat in Pincher Creek - Crowsnest in a 1966 byelection, but lost it in the May 23 provincial general election. Mr. Hooke survived the election and was switched to the welfare portfolio in a cabinet shuffle caused by the election defeat of Education Minister McKinnon.

Mr. Hooke, 62, has been a member of the cabinet 24 years and represents the rural constituency of Rocky Mountain House in western Alberta.

Mr. Hinman, 61, had represented the Cardston constituency in southern Alberta since 1952. He was provisional treasurer from 1955 until 1964.

Cabin Fire Claims Four Children

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Four small children died Sunday when a cabin home was destroyed by fire while their father was in jail and their mother was away visiting friends.

The children were identified as Gloria Laboucan, 6, her sisters Beverly, 5, and Anita, 3, and a brother, John, 2. They were the children of Mr. and Mrs. George Laboucan.

RCMP said Mr. Laboucan had been arrested on an intoxication charge several hours before the blaze broke out at 4 a.m. Mrs. Laboucan was located at a friend's home.

There was speculation the fire began near a coal-wood stove, which the children might have lit. Police said there were no windows in the bedroom and only one door in the three-room cabin.

An investigation has been ordered.

100 BOATS DESTROYED IN BLAZE

KINGSTON, Wash. (AP)—A boathouse and nearly 100 pleasure boats were destroyed by fire Saturday night at Point No Point beach, near this community on the west side of Puget Sound.

Firemen from Kingston, Hansville and Squamish fought the blaze until 2:30 a.m. Sunday and timbers still smoldered Sunday afternoon.

Many of the boats destroyed were outboard rentals. But others were privately owned. There was no estimate of the damage.

The cause of the blaze was not determined Sunday.

ADVICE AVAILABLE . . . . . . BE WISE AND SEEK IT

Home-Buying: Nightmare or Joy?

By JIM HUME and ROGER STONEBANKS

This is the last of a four-part series by Times reporters Jim Hume and Roger Stonebanks on housing problems in Greater Victoria. Today's article deals with pitfalls which face the potential home-buyer.

Buying a house is full of potential pitfalls.

But advice for the unwary or the unknowing is available.

It is always wise to consult bank or credit union managers and Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation for information on financing.

And this week, the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners announced a free house inspection offer.

"The carpenters' union offers the services of their inspection committee at no cost or obligation," said union vice-president Jim Sawyer.

"This committee is composed of first-class tradesmen who are familiar with all phases of house building.

"They are prepared to inspect your house under construction or even if it has been built within the last 12 months.

"They are also prepared to give advice on your best method of building and choosing a contractor.

"This is only one of the services that the carpenters union offers to members as well as the general public but it is one which you should take advantage of."

Mr. Sawyer said the inspection service is only for "genuine cases" and not where someone just has a "whim."

The Victoria Home Builders Association, a contractors' group, also offers an inspection service.

President Jim McLaren welcomed the carpenters union inspection offer.

"Anything that upgrades the standard of housing is more than welcome to us," he said.

There were 916 new houses completed in Metropolitan Victoria last year and 520 were started in the first seven months of this year.

Mr. Sawyer said the problem of providing more new housing "must be left with the senior levels of government to solve."

Adequate housing, "or the lack of it," was a problem here as elsewhere in the country.

But "families who will be fortunate enough to move into available new housing are also facing some real problems, of which they are not even aware."

There was a choice between being one's own builder or getting a contractor to put up the house.

"Either plan has its perils but a lot of them may be eliminated with proper advice," he said.

He mentioned that the local adult education program offers a winter course called Build Your Own Home.

If you become your own contractor, you can do the work you know how to do and either hire others or subcontract the rest.

"The problems here, however, can be many and costly.

If this is your first home-building experience you are not likely to be familiar with any of the various sub trades or they with you.

"As a one-house contractor, you are not likely to get the same low price or attention that the established multi-house builder can demand with the promise of continuing business.

"Nor will you get the prompt service that a general contractor can demand. The result is that you can add a couple more months to your estimated completion date.

"As these sub-trades don't know you, they are more likely to demand prompt pay on completion of work or before. You won't get the opportunity to sort out the best of these subs on a trial and error system as has the established general contractor.

"And finally as your own contractor you will experience great difficulty in securing any redress in the event that some parts of your house go sour," said Mr. Sawyer.

Three Teen-Agers Die In Highway Crashes

Killed Instantly In Separate Mishaps

Three teen-agers died in separate highway accidents on Vancouver Island Saturday.

Dead are:
Richard Simmonds, 17, of Chemainus.
Robert McDonald Wallace, 18, of New Westminster.
Barry William Abrosimo, 19, of Parksville.
All died instantly.

Abrosimo was killed when his car went out of control in the early hours on the Alberni-Parksville Highway.

It slammed into a guard rail nine miles west of Parksville four times before stopping.

Abrosimo's parents live in Vancouver.

Wallace was killed when the sports car in which he was a passenger slammed into a telephone pole on Maple Bay Road just outside Duncan.

Police said driver of the car was Harold Thomas Miskiman, 22, of Apt. 402, 118 Menzies Street, Victoria.

He was taken to King's Daughters' Hospital, Duncan, suffering cuts and bruises but was released the same evening.

CAR DEMOLISHED

The car was demolished in the 6:30 p.m. mishap. An inquest was to open tonight.

Two younger passengers escaped unhurt.

HOME FROM FAIR

RCMP said the three were on their way home from Cowichan Fall Fair when tragedy struck.

The driver lost control and the car skidded across the road into the trees.

Simmonds had just started Grade 12 at Chemainus secondary school and only Friday was elected class president.

He is survived by his parents Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Simmonds of South Chemainus Highway. An inquest was to open tonight.

'Bad Shape'

CLOSURE FACED BY PARK

Royal Athletic Park will probably be closed to all sporting activities before the end of the year.

Parks administrator Herb Warren said this morning the playing field of the stadium, opened just a few months ago, is already in bad shape and deteriorating rapidly.

"I would say that before the end of the year something drastic will have to be done," Mr. Warren said.

"We made the same mistake they made in Vancouver at Empire Stadium," he said. "They put down a clay-based turf and ran into expensive problems."

When the stadium was being built Mr. Warren was a strong advocate of seeding the playing surface.

PRESSURE

But various sporting groups in the city exerted pressure on city council and the final decision was to turf the playing field to have the stadium ready for a spring and summer sports schedule.

Mr. Warren said it would appear the turf will now have to be ripped out and the playing field seeded as originally planned.

If that decision is forced on council the seeding must take place late this fall to have the park ready for a full playing season next spring.

$5,000 COST

Mr. Warren said he could only give a rough estimate of the cost of removing the turf and seeding the playing area.

"I would figure at around $5,000," he said. "But that has to be very elastic figure because I really don't know what the final cost could be."

Total cost of the playing field to date is about $56,000 with $22,500 of that sum the cost of the purchase and the laying of the clay-based turf.

In addition $14,000 was spent on topsoil, $8,230 for a granulated base and $9,500 for drainage.

Since the turf was laid an additional expenditure of $2,200 has been made in an attempt to aerate and sand the playing surface to provide better drainage.

Mr. Warren said the attempt to save the turf had achieved little.

Dr. ROY LESLIE
. . . starts July 1

Scot Named to Head English Department

The new head of the University of Victoria's department of English was named today by president Malcolm Taylor.

Dr. Roy Leslie, 45, now teaching at the University of Wisconsin, will take over the department next July 1.

Dr. Leslie, a Scot, served in the RAF during the Second World War and later received his doctorate from the University of Manchester, where he taught for 14 years.

He moved to the University of Wisconsin in 1964 where he teaches history of English language, old and middle English literature.

BOOKS PUBLISHED

He has published several books on old English poetry. He also has lectured on phonetics, and given extension courses on modern poetry and the development of the English novel and English drama.

He is secretary of the English department's executive committee at Wisconsin, and the chairman of the area committee on English language and medieval literature.

PETER NAMED

Dr. John Peter, a member of the English department at Uvic since 1961, will serve as acting head until Dr. Leslie's arrival.

Dr. Peter returned to Canada this summer after spending a year at Oxford as a Commonwealth Visiting professor.

Three-Way Accident Hospitalizes Driver

One man was admitted to hospital and two others were treated for minor injuries following a traffic accident involving a car, an ambulance and a cement-mixer truck Saturday.

Percy Doswell, 53, of 351 Robertson, the car driver is in fairly good condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital today with back injuries.

SIREN GOING

Saanich police said the Doswell auto was northbound on the Pat Bay Highway at Royal Oak and in front of the cement truck driven by Edward Gait of 4317 Shelbourne when the two vehicles collided as the southbound ambulance approached, siren sounding.

Driver of the ambulance, which was not directly involved in the crash, was David Jensen of 1134 Pandora.

Damage to the truck and car was estimated at $1,800.

Police said the ambulance was transferring a patient to a city hospital.

Three people were treated for minor injuries at Royal Jubilee Hospital after two cars collided at Haultain and Fernwood Sunday evening.

City police said a car driven by Lum Seck Kow of 1168 North Park was eastbound on Haultain when it was in collision with an auto headed north on Fernwood and driven by Walter Soper of 1520 Gladstone.

Mr. Lum suffered face cuts and his passengers, Sit Chow, 33, and Byron Chow, 7, both of 1426 Pembroke, received minor cuts and abrasions.

Damage in the crash was estimated at $1,500.

MINOR ABRASIONS

Patricia Wagner, 3, of 1382 Hillside, suffered minor abrasions Saturday night when she ran into the path of a car in the 2800-block Cedar Hill.

Driver Walter Graff, 2827 Cedar Hill, was southbound on the street at the time.

Hit, Run Driver Pays $175 Fine

Sarwan Singh Sihota, 21, of 624 Gorge East, pleaded guilty to failing to remain at an accident, careless driving and driving without a licence.

Court was told Sihota was checked by Oak Bay police on Haultain a few minutes after the hit-and-run accident.

He told officers he was going to get his brother who spoke better English before he reported the accident.

Youth Guilty Of Stealing, Crashing Car

A youth who stole a car Friday night and later spun it into a utility pole will wait in jail until Tuesday, Sept. 19, to be sentenced.

Ronald Washko, 18, of Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt, pleaded guilty to the auto theft, to careless driving and to driving without a licence when he appeared in central court this morning.

Police said the car was stolen from the parking lot of the Royal Canadian Legion at 622 Admirals Road close to midnight Friday.

STRUCK POLE

About an hour later the accused fled after the car received between $1,200 and $1,500 damage when it hit the pole on Finlayson.

Washko was arrested early Saturday after he was seen prowling near parked cars at the Mayfair Shopping Plaza.

Arrested for being drunk, he admitted he was intoxicated when he stole and crashed the car.

RAINFALL WASHES OUT WATERING RESTRICTION

Watering restrictions for the Greater Victoria District were formally lifted this morning.

Chief water commissioner Ron Upward said the heavy weekend rains had lifted reservoir levels to the point where the month-long ban on sprinkling could be forgotten.

"The lifting of the ban is just a formality," Mr. Upward said. "Who needs to sprinkle after Sunday's rain?"

Mr. Upward said roughly an inch of rain fell in the watershed during the weekend.

The first sprinkling ban was imposed on August 12 in the face of a threat of serious water shortage.

Permits Issued For Slash-Fires

It's been 2½ months since Victoria had as heavy a rain as fell during the weekend.

Weather officials say one-quarter to half an inch fell throughout the capital region—the most since June 22.

Since that time the city and district had measurable rain only on eight occasions.

The weekend rain was spread over most parts of the province, damping down forest fires after the worst fire season on record.

There was some sun today but there is indication there will be more rain in Greater Victoria before Tuesday night.

Forestry officials said there have been no real fire problems on the Island since Labor Day and the newest rain has made slash burning feasible. Permits are required but are easily obtainable.

Smoke seen on the Island is from slash burning.

Travel and recreation restrictions have been lifted in Kamloops area although some restrictions still exist in the Nelson and Peace River areas.

$6 MILLION

The fire season in B.C. is ending with a bill of close to $6 million for firefighting but the acreage destroyed was relatively low—just over 200,000 acres.

"Preliminary surveys indicate saleable timber loss will be very low," said a foresty spokesman.

Most damage occurred in the Shuswap area.

There were 3,000 separate blazes this summer, 1,065 in the Kamloops area, 874 near Nelson, 409 in Vancouver district and 413 in Prince George area.

The worst previous season was in 1960 when firefighting costs reached $4.7 million.

There were no deaths in the fires but five aerial deaths were attributed to them indirectly.

Police Forces Team Up To Get Speeder

City and Saanich police cars finally overhauled a speeding driver early Sunday after a chase on Douglas Streets at speeds up to 80 miles an hour.

Herbert Newton, 22, of 2676 Foul Bay Rd., was fined $100 and barred from driving when he pleaded guilty today to careless driving.

"That's how people get killed," Magistrate Ostler told Newton after hearing a city police car had to call on two Saanich cruisers to help catch the speeding car.

Newton was arrested after his auto was finally stopped at Douglas and the Trans-Canada Highway.

Sellout Forecast For Two Nights Of Hit Musical

Everyone loves Anne.

The box-office reported a continuous line-up during the morning with over 80 per cent of the tickets sold.

The Charlottetown Festival has played three consecutive seasons of 90 per cent capacity houses in the Prince Edward Island city.

SOLD OUT

One of the Centennial Commission's touring companies of Festival Canada productions, the national tour opened in Winnipeg last Wednesday to a complete pre-performance sell-out of all five nights.

The musical is an adaptation of the well-beloved book by Lucy Maud Montgomery which tells the story of an orphan girl growing up with foster parents in the Prince Edward Island countryside.

A 15-piece orchestra accompanies the show.

Victorian Wounded, Shot by Companion

Vincent Orr, 18, of Victoria, was in good condition in Campbell River Hospital today after he suffered a gunshot wound in the leg Sunday.

Police said the youth was shot accidentally by a companion during target practice at Woss Camp, 60 miles northwest of Campbell River.

Every Dog Has His Day

Judged best-in-show Friday night was a miniature Poodle—English, Canadian, American and Bermuda champion Tophill Orsino.

THEY'RE WIDELY APPRECIATED, SAYS CENSOR

'No Personal Objections' to Sunday Movies

Sunday movies are quite acceptable to British Columbia's movie censor R. W. McDonald.

"I have no personal objections. They are widely appreciated.

"For many people a movie is a wonderful thing on a Sunday afternoon," Mr. McDonald said in an interview. Afternoon movies don't interfere with church attendance, he added.

Mr. McDonald was expressing his personal opinion between sessions of the Seventh Conference of Censors of Moving Pictures of Canada.

Vancouver has Sunday movies and they are well attended.

The city was able to make its own decision on the question because it has its own charter. Victoria and other B.C. municipalities are governed in this regard by the Municipal Act which now regulates against Sunday entertainment.

The UBCM convention at Prince George Sept. 20-22 will consider a resolution proposing Sunday sports and movies for paid admission. Final say rests with the provincial government, however.

TAKES WIFE

Mr. McDonald, who views 700 pictures a year and still takes his wife to the movies, says they offer the best entertainment value.

An ex-navy man, he is no prude. More and more movies appear that feature partial nudity. This is in keeping with changing public tastes, he believes, and the censors try to go along with the changes.

"There is a greater public tolerance of sex, brutality and violence," said the censor.

Even the bared female breast, seen in many modern movies, no longer brings complaints.

"The bared breast in itself is a plain fact. It is how it is used (in the movie) that is important."

If it is part of the story theme and removal of the scene would destroy the movie story line, it is acceptable to censors.

"But to employ it as a peep show would not be right," he added.

Anyone who might be offended by such scenes has advance warning through the "restricted" tag on film advertising. Then such persons can decide whether to attend.

The conference was to hear a speech by Attorney-General Robert Bonner at an Empress Hotel dinner at 7 tonight. Further deliberations, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, will take place in Vancouver.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Parents Usually Know What's Best

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Like most people who write to you, I have a problem. I have been tossed out of my girl friend's house on my ear. Her mother said we were getting in too deep for our own good. (She had proof.) Her parents decided that we weren't to see, write to, or contact each other for a year.

Then, if we still felt the same way about each other, OK. I really can't blame them for trying to keep us apart, because they had good reasons, but Abby, I think a whole year is too long.

It has been five months now, and I really miss the girl. I have tried dating others, but none of them compares to her. I love her, and I'd be willing to do anything in the world if I could see her sooner. What should I do? Try to talk to her parents and ask them to shorten the probation time? I've just got to see her. It might help to know our ages. She is 18 and I am 19. Thank you for any advice you can give me.

MISERABLE.

DEAR MISERABLE: Sweat out the balance of time, Romeo. It will help to establish you as a more mature and responsible person in her parents' eyes. (Impatience and unwillingness to accept restraint typify adolescence.) I think your girl friend's parents are far more understanding and forgiving than most parents would have been under the circumstances.

And once you're off probation, don't do anything to earn their mistrust again.

DEAR ABBY: Recently I attended a piano recital at a small community music hall. While listening to the concert I became aware of a very attractive, nicely dressed young woman seated near me. Our eyes met several times during intermission and also after the concert as we were leaving.

I wanted to introduce myself, but she was with an older woman and I didn't want to intrude. Now I am sorry, for I think I may have cheated myself out of something worthwhile. I would go to that same music hall again if I were sure she'd be there, as I would love to meet her.

Should I have been more brazen? What does an earnest man do under the circumstances?

DON.

DEAR DON: Under the circumstances an earnest young man might have directed an appropriate remark to the young lady concerning the concert. Her reactions would have either opened the door for further conversation, or closed it.

DEAR ABBY: In March of 1965 I wrote to you saying I was a widower who was very fond of a lady who had two cats, and I hated cats.

I asked you if you thought I should ask the lady to choose between me and the cats, and you said, "No, if you are fond of the lady, try to learn to like her cats."

Well, Abby, I took your advice, and we were married in April of '66. And now I actually like those cats, and I love the lady. Thank you.

PITTSBURGH CATNIK.

DEAR CATNIK: Would that all my advice turned out to be so purrrrrrr-fect!

DEAR ABBY: Although I am only 21, and "young" in your eyes, I am a mature man, having lived fully and seen a great deal of the world.

There is so much said about "sex" these days. Can you tell me what is wrong with sex for sex's sake if I do not harm anyone?

MATURE

DEAR MATURE: The answer is obvious. It harms you. Promiscuous sex will gradually transform you into a selfish, pleasure-seeking creature, incapable of loyalty or of loving another.

Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Broughton Hall, 756 Haliburton Road, announce the forthcoming marriage of their elder daughter, Carol Marlane, to Mr. John Wesley Edwards, Jr., only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Edwards, of Vancouver. The wedding will take place in St. Mary's Anglican Church, Kerrisdale, on Saturday, September 16, at 2 p.m. Rev. Kelly will officiate. The bride-elect received her bachelor of arts degree from the University of British Columbia this year. (Campbell, Vancouver).

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

We are living today in an age of miracles; atomic energy, space travel, jet planes, miracle drugs, wonder figure molding and nutrition magic. In these days of almost limitless discoveries in all fields sometimes we tend to forget the simpler tenets of health and happiness. But really, they are as sound as they ever were, and it might be a good plan for us to review a few of them.

Lowman

The woman who is interested in her health and wants to keep a youthful appearance long past the usual age for fading—and don't we all—must follow a few rules. These may seem unimportant but they are vital to prolonged youthfulness and health.

1. Get sufficient sleep. This is the body's time for rest and repair. Inadequate sleep will not only be reflected in your skin, eyes and hair but in your energy and personality.

2. Exercise every day. The proper form of this must be determined by the individual. Proper exercise is the perfect antidote for pervous tension and will build health. If possible, get some exercise outdoors.

3. Learn about nutrition if you aren't informed on this important part of everyday living. Check the foods you consume each day and determine whether you are getting the essentials. A well-balanced diet will give the fine nutrition needed and help you avoid the chronic diseases of middle age and keep you younger longer.

4. Cleanse your face twice daily. Don't neglect daily lubrication. This latter is especially important for the woman who is middle-aged or older.

5. If you can find the time, massage your scalp once every 24 hours.

6. Cultivate new interests.

7. Take several short rest periods each day.

8. Try to develop the "light touch" so that you can take life a bit easier.

A New You by Emily Wilkens

There is an old Spanish saying which goes: "All women are created equal until they begin to use fragrance." Perhaps our Spanish friends have a point. Few things do more to add to your femininity, self-assurance and the total impression you present, than the fragrance you wear.

The appeal of a pleasing scent is as old as history itself. Marie Antoinette spent a fortune a year on perfume alone. Napoleon sloshed on two bottles a day (his favorite was Spanish Jasmin). Louis XIV decreed that his court sport a different scent every day of the week.

Perfumes come in various types, each of which imparts a different aura. There are single florals (such as carnation, gardenia, rose, lily of the valley); floral blends or bouquets (usually combined with musk, vetiver and amber); fruity blends (clean and citrusy); spicy blends (combinations of spices you'd find at the chemist's or sometimes in your own kitchen); forest scents (sandalwood, rosewood, cedar); the orientals (heavy, exotic fragrances made of animal extracts like civet and musk, often combined with sandalwood).

The modern blends, which are neither floral nor oriental, owe their delightful, almost indefinable odor to aldehydes. Included in this group are the costly "great" perfumes. Most famous couturiers market their own signature brands.

Over fifty per cent of all perfumes are purchased as gifts. It's flattering to be presented with an enormous bottle of toilet water or perfume, but selecting the scent that's right for you should be a well thought out and tried out, personalized decision.

Whatever type you choose should be appropriate for your personality and way of life. A heavy oriental perfume, for example, would be utterly out of place in an office.

Body chemistries vary. It's absolutely impossible to tell how a particular perfume will smell on YOU by sniffing an opened bottle or following your friends' inclinations.

Dab a drop on the inside of each wrist. (Don't attempt to try out more than one fragrance at a time.) Leave it on for a while before buying.

You'll never go wrong if you choose your scent "on the light side". A whisper is generally more effective than a shout.

Buy perfume in small bottles, using it while it's fresh. Keep it in a dark spot which is neither too hot nor too cold.

Besides perfume, strongest and most concentrated, there is toilet water (midway in strength between perfume and cologne) and cologne (alcohol-diluted and lightest of the three).

Apply perfume to all pulse spots: wrists, temples, throat and backs of the knees. Soak a piece of cotton in scent and tuck it into your bra.

After emerging from bath or shower, spray on toilet water or cologne generously

Midget Diet-Watcher Helps Luncheon Date

By PENNY SAVER

The other day a friend and I decided that we'd give ourselves a treat and go out to lunch. Both of us have been dieting diligently for several weeks and we were wondering whether or not we dared to take along our calorie counters to tally up the total count from our lunch orders. Naturally we couldn't do this, and from past experience we've both learned that calorie guesswork on fattening foods is proven disaster for the weight-watcher. We were going to settle for good old tomato juice and a simple salad when my friend remembered seeing a marvellous dieting aid on a recent shopping trip.

The item she'd seen is really two gadgets in one — a key-chain and a calorie counter. The calorie-counter is only three inches long and one inch wide, but in spite of it's small size it's the perfect answer for anyone on a slimming plan . . . it's a tiny book. It contains a list of the usual serving proportions of every possible food, and it gives their caloric content. On the cover of the book is a tabulator which allows you to keep track of how many calories you eat per day. The great feature of this key-chain is that you can take it everywhere and inconspicuously keep track of weight-watching.

Our family has two secret food addictions — cheese and onions. If you've ever tried storing these in the refrigerator, you know that it is only the most airtight container that will prevent these food odors from tainting other foods being stored. If you have this problem you need a refrigerator air conditioner I found in one store. This tin prevents odor transfer and allows you to keep butter, meat, milk, melons, onion, cheese and other foods without any problem. It's also great for preventing "off taste" ice-cubes.

To use this gadget all you have to do is open the tin container and place it on the top shelf of the refrigerator—it will operate for 90 days. Buy several tins of this product and they will keep indefinitely when not in use. One tin costs 59 cents, and you'll find that it will remove any odor traces from bread boxes, kitchen cupboards and cabinets, too.

If you'd like to know where I found these items, please give me a call at 382-3131.

Cooking Can Be Fun

By Mary Moore

CHICKEN FLORENTINE PLEASES VIP

In December, 1965, I made and gave my readers the recipe for Chicken Florentine and many raved over it just as I had.

I had forgotten about it until suddenly my sister Peady asked for the recipe and made it for a VIP world-travelling guest. After VIP's first bite all conversation stopped because, with fork in mid-air, she exclaimed "This is wonderful!"

Moore

Peady said to me, "You know there are a lot of young brides who did not see this recipe in your column two years ago." So here it is again.

CHICKEN FLORENTINE
(Serves 6)

Cream Sauce Ingredients

One-quarter cup butter; 3 tablespoons flour; ½ teaspoon salt; 1¾ cups whole milk (or half milk and half 18 per cent cream); ½ or ¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese.

Cook whole chicken in water to barely cover with lid on, until it will nearly fall from bones. Cool in the broth. When cold lift from broth and with very sharp knife slice breast meat as perfectly as possible—to use later for top slices. If inner breast meat resists slicing neatly, lift it off in your fingers to keep pieces intact. Slice dark meat as well as you can.

Cook cleaned spinach in water which clings to leaves until barely tender and still bright green. Drain thoroughly and chop and add salt and pepper.

Arrange in bottom of shallow large baking dish. Cover with imperfect pieces of chicken, reserving best slices to cover top.

Pour over Cream Sauce: Melt butter, blend in flour and salt, then stir in milk until thick. Pour evenly over top.

With your spoon gently push chicken aside without disturbing its finished appearance to let sauce flow through to bottom in several places.

Sprinkle all over with Parmesan cheese and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 25 to 30 minutes or until an attractive deep gold. Serve at once.

Small parsleyed potatoes and tangy tossed salad are recommended as an accompaniment.

Note: Chicken Florentine may be made in advance, chilled, but not more than 24 hours, and baked at party time.

NUN DONS HARD HAT

VANCOUVER (CP)—A rooftop nun on occasion, Sister Winifred McCarthy swings a hammer with the best of them.

In 12 months since she came here she has clambered over roofs, done a bit of welding and learned to accept a hard hat as part of her wardrobe.

Her purpose?

Sister Winifred is heading towards missionary work in Peru. A member of the Sisters of Charity of the Immaculate Conception of Saint John, N.B., she decided to enrol at the University of British Columbia's industrial education course because there isn't one in her own province.

Sister Winifred is determined to be able to give practical as well as spiritual help wherever she goes.

ANXIOUS TO PRESERVE FAMILY LIFE

New Leader's Wife Faces Many Questions

TORONTO (CP) — For Mrs. Robert Stanfield the big question is answered. Her husband is the new leader of the Progressive Conservative party.

But for Mary Stanfield a wife and mother there is a brand new batch of questions, all without answers.

The day following the party's leadership convention, Mrs. Stanfield said she does not know when the family will move to Ottawa. She does not know whether the younger children who are still in school will go with her and her husband. She does not know how much personal, family touch she will be able to add to Stornoway, the opposition leader's official residence in Ottawa.

"If there is much change in our family life I will regret it."

Mrs. Stanfield looked fresh after only about six hours sleep, though she said she was tired and still excited.

She was wearing a green plaid suit that has been part of a three-outfit basic wardrobe she has relied on since she started the campaign July 27.

She said she has only been home for four days since.

She also said she is heartily tired of her campaign clothes and would be delighted to put them all in the bargainbox when she gets home. When that will be was another question.

"I hope we're going tomorrow, but I don't know. I'm going home when my husband goes home. I expect to have Tuesday and Wednesday there, then go to Montreal for women's day at Expo, and after that I don't know.

"I can't even make a rough guess yet when we will move to Ottawa."

The two oldest Stanfield children, Sarah, 25, and Max, 20 were at the convention.

Tall and sandy-haired, Max looks a bit like his father. He spent the summer working on tug boats and is going to Dalhousie University in Halifax. He said he doesn't know what he wants to do when he graduates, but isn't at all sure it will involve politics.

Sarah, also tall and slender, is quiet spoken and attractive. She said she quit her job as a children's librarian in Kingston, Ont., because she wanted more than two weeks off to share the excitement. She said she is not sure where she will resettle.

Tht two younger children, Judy, who will be 17 next month, and Mimi, 14, were at home.

Mrs. Stanfield said, "I thought they ought to be in school. They didn't think so, of course.

"Last night, when it was over, I said, I'm going right home and phone them and my husband said, 'do you realize it's after one o'clock in Halifax?' I haven't had a chance to call today, I'm going to as soon as I can."

Judy is in grade 12 in a private school in Halifax, Mimi in public school. Mrs. Stanfield said she hasn't talked to them yet about where they want to live.

"I thought if nothing happened, there would be no point in saying, 'would you like to got to school in Ontario?'"

Mrs. Stanfield has always lived in Nova Scotia, and always in a political atmosphere. She is the daughter of the late Judge W. L. Hall, a one-time Conservative leader in the province and MP for Queen's.

She married Mr. Stanfield in 1957. His first wife died in a car accident in 1954.

She said she thinks there will be a great difference in being the wife of a national leader rather than a premier's wife.

"There I was at home in my own town, in our own house, among people I had known all my life.

"I had a much more private life than, at the moment, it looks as if a national leader's wife has. Of course, I don't know, I've never been a national leader's wife."

Mrs. Stanfield said she cares very much about making a home in Ottawa, about the change from the family's 100-year-old old home in Halifax to the official residence, but she isn't sure what the arrangements are.

"I can't possibly move for months and months anyway, can I, Sarah? It would take months and months to move us out of our house."

At the end of the long, long day of voting Saturday, the new party leader paid tribute to his wife in his victory speech to the delegates.

He said she had never really campaigned with him in Nova Scotia because she wanted to be home with the family. Then he said one of the wisest things his advisors had suggested to him in this campaign was that she travel with him.

She said Sunday that her whisper to him after that was almost her first word with him.

"I'm not sure what I said. It was something like I never thought he'd admit it. Now he says he shouldn't have said it, it's gone to my head."

Mrs. Stanfield, Sarah and Max all sat through the 11-hour day in a box in Maple Leaf Gardens. Mrs. Stanfield said she had many reasons to feel she wouldn't be too disappointed if her husband lost, but after the tension of the balloting and his lead from the start, losing would have been a terrible let down.

IT'S BEEN A LONG DAY—Mary Stanfield, wife of the new Progressive Conservative leader, touches her hand to her head just after her husband's victory was announced. It took seven hours of balloting to elect the new leader. (CP Wirephoto.)

ENGINE FAILURE

If You're Doing It Right . . . You Have More Than 6 Minutes

This is the eighth in a series of articles by Times reporter Terry Izzard on "Learning to Fly."

By TERRY IZZARD

It's something every pilot fears.

The comforting drone of the engine changes.

To a passenger it may not even be noticeable.

But to the man in control it's clearer than a clap of thunder.

The engine. The lifeline without which even the most experienced pilot is at the mercy of the elements.

It seldom happens. But it happens.

One minute the invisible propellor is biting greedily into the void ahead. The next it is as useless as a soldier who stands to attention but refuses to fight.

In a light plane at 3,000 feet the pilot has just six minutes before hitting the ground.

His actions in that all-too short time will mean the difference between life and death.

First the plane is put into a gliding descent to maintain air speed, the pilot at the same time searching the ground below for a possible landing spot.

Next a thorough check of all controls to try and determine what caused the engine failure. Possibly carburetor icing; a switch accidentally turned off; wrong fuel mixture . . .

In a small craft the number of things which can go wrong and be remedied from the cockpit are few.

EVERYTHING OFF

Assuming the engine cannot be started, the pilot switches everything off and devotes his entire attention to choosing the best possible landing spot.

An open field is the obvious choice. If luck is with him and a field is within gliding distance he follows the normal routine for landing.

Given enough height he should fly down-wind parallel to the path on which he intends landing. At the point where he plans to touch down the plane is turned 45 degrees towards the emergency runway.

When he judges he is at the right height to land bang on the point he has chosen, then is the time to turn towards the field.

Full flaps are applied to bring down the landing speed and ensure the shortest run after touchdown.

Short of unseen obstacles, the landing should be almost as smooth as on a tarmac runway.

Of course smooth grass isn't always handy. In which case the pilot must make the best use of the ground below him.

A lake or the sea is an obvious choice, though strangely enough most pilots would as soon crash their plane into tree tops as land on the water.

As Jack Ellard, chief instructor of Victoria Flying Club puts it: "That water is every bit as hard as the ground when you hit it. Even if you put her down safely there's the danger of being trapped inside or the plane sinking before you have a chance to get out."

Fortunately, 97 per cent of pilots will never have to do either.

SHORT LANDING

Another form of landing which every pilot must know is the precautionary landing.

On approaching the runway, full flaps are applied to bring the air speed down.

To counteract the stalling effect this has, sufficient power is applied to keep up the revs while not substantially increasing speed.

Aim to undershoot the runway if anything. This can be corrected when the time comes by increasing power slightly.

When over the end of the runway cut all power and the plane lands within a matter of yards.

HOME GARDEN

Plants Don't Die; They Only Pass On

By JACK BEASTALL

Just about 2,000 years ago a fellow named Titus Leucretius Carus, better known to historians as Lucretius, wrote what has been called the world's greatest didactic poem.

The purpose of the poem was to free his readers from the fear of death, a fear closely bound in the popular religion of his day.

Jack

In this poem is a statement of particular interest to the home gardener. Freely translated it reads: "Nature resolves everything into its component parts, but annihilates nothing."

There is probably no hobby of the masses in which the truth of the words is more amply borne out than in gardening.

PASSED ON

We speak of plants as having died when in actual fact they have only passed from one useful phase to another.

In an uncultivated area, each plant that has served its purpose as a living entity is, in the words your philosopher, resolved into its component parts and becomes the life stream of another plant.

At no point is the circle broken. Each generation of plants provides the soil from which the succeeding generation is nourished.

When man enters the picture and cultivates the soil the picture changes. His fastidious nature compels him to remove and destroy that which offends.

He says the plants are dead, their period of usefulness over, and their remains are a blot on the beauty he has created.

CIRCLE BROKEN

The plants are therefore annihilated and the life stream of future plants is stopped. Nature's circle is broken, the gardener's soil reverts to sand and clay, the plants no longer thrive, pests and diseases take over.

Two thousand years and many generations of gardeners have passed, and we still break nature's circles and then search for a man-made remedy for our failures.

Help Give Death A Holiday!

By DOROTHY FRASER

Earlier this summer a man we'll call John Jones, age 39, was busy mowing his lawn when suddenly he was seized by an agonizing pain in his chest . . . so excrutiating that he collapsed. A doctor, who was hastily summoned, diagnosed a coronary attack—and John was rushed to one of our big city hospitals, where he was treated and seemed to be recovering . . . yet within three days John Jones died . . . due to lack of equipment which could summon help, keep his heart beating when it began fibrillating. He was one of some 80 Victorians who die UNNECESSARILY each year in hospital from coronary attacks. Think of it . . . this young man, breadwinner and father of a young family . . . might have been your husband! Needless loss of life from heart attacks is now about to be cut in half through the setting up in both St. Joseph's and Royal Jubilee Hospitals of Intensive Coronary Care complexes with sophisticated electronic equipment that will monitor heart beats . . . keep failing hearts alive far faster than humans could spring into action . . . at a time when every second counts. Some of this equipment has already arrived . . . and is responsible for saving a life within the past weeks. The Victoria Kiwanis Club, as its centennial project, has undertaken to raise money for the purchase of this electronic equipment, and is asking you to help NOW! If every adult reader of this item gave only $1 . . . the cost of this heart-saving equipment would easily be met! So please be generous . . . remember, the heart you save may be your own! Send contributions to: Kiwanis Heart Equipment Fund, 221 Linden Avenue, Victoria, or leave message at 388-7777.

ITALIAN PRESIDENT STARTS CANADA VISIT

OTTAWA (CP) — President Giuseppe Saragat of Italy arrived here by air today to begin a one-week state visit to Canada.

He was met by the Italian ambassador, Alessandro Farace di Villaforesta, and the Canadian co-ordinator for state visits, Lt.-Gen. R. W. Moncel.

Mr. Saragat will go to Expo in Montreal Wednesday for Italy's national day at the world fair, then visit Quebec City and Toronto before leaving Canada September 18.

Fraser Valley Crash Claims Five Lives

CHILLIWACK (CP) — The death toll in a Trans-Canada Highway crash Sunday near this Fraser Valley town 50 miles east of Vancouver rose today when a fifth vidtim died in hospital.

The crash, which involved two out-of-province cars, occurred in heavy rain, police said. A westbound car apparently skidded on the highway, crossed a narrow median and slammed broadside into an eastbound car.

All victims' names were withheld by police except that of Mrs. Ruth Evelyn Landry, 57, of Saskatoon, who was travelling with her husband to visit a daughter in Burnaby, a Vancouver suburb.

Mrs. Landry's husband was the only person involved in the crash still alive. He was in serious condition in hospital. One of the other victims is from Toronto and another from Quebec, police said.

China Builds Rail

HONG KONG (Reuters) — China has signed an agreement with Zambia and Tanzania concerning the construction of a 1,000-mile rail link between the two African countries. China has offered to construct and finance the railway to the extent of $300,000,000. No details are given of the Chinese involvement.

1917 MODEL CAR DREDGED FROM FRASER

Unknown Motorist Lost His Life

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) —An elderly gentleman now living in a Vancouver home for the aged has popped up as the owner of a 1917 Hudson Super 6 touring car that was dredged this week from the silt after 47 years in the Fraser River.

When the car was found, it carried 1920 British Columbia licence plate 23-692. Motor vehicles branch officers in Victoria traced it to Hyman Pelman.

Mr. Pelman, now 78, recalled owning the car, but not much of its history.

A vintage car expert, Gerald Hobbis, who now has the seven-passenger vehicle, has a theory on how the car came to be in New Westminster harbor.

Mr. Hobbis believes an unknown motorist lost his life when the brakes failed, and the car, its driver and his dog, plunged helplessly into the river.

"There was evidence that the cable had broken and the brakes failed," said Mr. Hobbis.

"The driver must have escaped, but I think his dog must have been trapped in the car. The dog-collar we found there was still fastened."

Mrs. Pelman, recovering from a stroke, hasn't the faintest recollection of how it could have got into the harbor.

Beauty Hint

To give your complexion a delightful bloom use this simple beauty trick. Damp a cloth in lemon Jelvyn freshener and press over your face moulding it to your features. Lie back for a few minutes whilst the lemon tones and refines the skin. Now to vitalize and hold the bloom, smooth on your oil of Olay and keep it there always under your make-up to protect against wrinkle-dryness and to give the skin a day-long dewy look.

OUR BESSIE WILL RENEW AN OLD FRIENDSHIP TONIGHT

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Tonight I'm going to renew acquaintance with a young lady I met long ago. I've thought of her many times in the intervening years. I've talked about her on occasions and even quoted her. More recently I learned something else of her when I was on Prince Edward Island and visited the places where she came to life.

Forbes

Now I'm going to meet her in a different way and perhaps in a different image. Nevertheless I'm certain I will remember and see her as the same young lady I knew so long ago.

Her name? I imagine you have guessed it by now. It's Anne of Green Gables. And I hope to find her again in a play of the same name at the Royal Theatre tonight.

I don't suppose there are many women of my generation who did not meet Anne when they were in their growing years. Nor are there many who have not passed on the book in which she lives to their children and grandchildren.

That book has been read and re-read. And to thousands of girls (perhaps I should say millions) it has been a symbol of much that is exciting, imaginative and daring.

Reason for this is the fact that the book is so written that it hasn't become dated. It isn't a period piece. It could have been conceived yesterday or even today.

Readers grow up and unhesitatingly pass it on to their children. Mothers read it again. Fathers read it, too.

Why? Because those who read realize (to use the author's own words) "that youth is not a vanished thing but something that dwells forever in the heart."

All Lucy Maud Montgomery's writings, perhaps with the exception of her poetry, were for girls. There were books on Emily, on Pat and on Jane. And there were other Anne novels.

These were printed in 36 languages and they carried the story of Prince Edward Island, its countryside, people and their customs, into millions of homes around the world.

It's a safe bet that in her stories Lucy Maud wrote in veiled words of her own girlhood and of those who peopled her own community. The places she describes were known to her when she was growing up on "Abegweit," the Indian name she loved to use for "the island."

When I was down there several years ago I visited Cavendish County where the author lived (until she was married and moved to Ontario) and where the people of Prince Edward Island now maintain a museum in her memory.

Situated on a hillside and now almost surrounded by a golf course, this place was once owned by Lucy Maud's friend, Mrs. Ernest Webb, and still earlier by her MacNeill relatives.

As a child and as a young woman she spent much time there and its rooms and its everyday living no doubt contributed to the author's story of Anne and her world.

I saw the East Gable bedroom (Anne's room) with its windows looking out toward Lover's Lane, where she walked with old Matthew from the house to the back pasture to get the cows. Nearby was The Lake of Shining Waters, the Dryad's Bubble and The Haunted Wood.

Over at Clifton Corners, New London, I found the two-storey clapboard house where the author was born on St. Andrew's Day, Nov. 30, 1874.

Those who had lived long in the district told me that Avonlea (in another Anne book) is really Cavendish "to a certain extent"; White Sands is "vaguely" the little settlement of Rustico and the Shore Road is "very definitely" a part of the present Park Highway between North Rustico and Cavendish.

From all this and from the author's own creative thinking the immortal Anne was born. The girl "whose spirit was so often far away in some remote, airy cloudland, borne aloft on the wings of imagination."

At Green Gables in Cavendish County, the Historic Sites and Monument Board of Canada has erected a monument to Lucy Maud Montgomery's memory.

Her greatest memorial, however, will always be the lasting quality and the ageless appeal of Anne.

Run From Police Costs Man $250

Henry Klat, 22, of 1615 Belmont, was fined $250 in central court Friday on a charge of escaping lawful custody.

The charge arose from an incident June 17 when Saanich police arrested Klat in the parking lot of a drive-in for intoxication and he escaped.

Two other people were charged in connection with the incident.

'Rock' Favors Ties With U.K.

GIBRALTAR (Reuters)—There was singing and dancing in the streets of this British colony today after a referendum in which its residents massively rejected joining Spain.

But there also was fear that the Spanish might impose further restrictions on Gibraltar in retaliation for Sunday's referendum, which has been criticized by the United Nations. Spain claims the vote was illegal.

Ninety - nine per cent of the 12,762 votes cast were in favor of maintaining Gibraltar's 250-year-old link with Britain. Only 44 people opted for the rock to become Spanish.

The turnout was 96 per cent of Gibraltar's registered voters, official figures showed.

Crowds sang God Save the Queen and roared "Viva Britain" when the figures were announced early today at referendum headquarters. Singing and dancing in the streets followed.

Gibraltar Chief Minister Sir Joshua Hassan told the residents:

"You have voted in a free and most democratic way worthy of the most civilized and best-conducted community in the world. You have decided about your future.

"But I want to tell you that the battle is not near the end. We might have to put up with more restrictive measures from Spain."

The crowds replied by singing for He's a Jolly Good Fellow, then burst into God Save the Queen again, cheering and waving British flags.

The voting was a climax to an extraordinary display of pro-British feeling in Gibraltar which Spain ceded to Britain under the Treaty of Utrech in 1713.

Hotel Owner Denies Underworld Control

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP)—A royal commission investigating gambling in the Bahamas closed its hearing Friday after taking more than 8,000 pages of testimony.

Ben Novack, president of the Fontainebleau Hotel in Miami Beach, said Friday he knows a number of American underworld figures but denied they control him or the Fontainebleau.

Novack also said the Bahamas cabinet rejected his casino licence application because it did not want a third casino in the colony, not because of police reports on his character.

Novack testified that he had agreed to pay Peter Graham, Nassau lawyer who was then a cabinet member, $375,000 for handling the application. Graham took the stand again briefly Friday to deny it.

3-Month Term On Third Charge

A third impaired driving offence sent a Saanich man to jail for three months when he pleaded guilty to the charge in central court today.

Police said Reginald Stevenot, 6 Catin Place, was seen driving erratically along Davin Street.

He admitted previous convictions in 1960 and 1964.

A licence suspension was ordered.

We asked Mrs. B. Y. Hilke of Gold River what she likes best about Electric Heating:

"I think the room-by-room temperature control must be the reason. No heat is wasted. Our electric heating system gives even, draft-free heat, too. We're really happy with it." The people who have electric heating say it's economical.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

CBC-TV's slogan this new television season is "get into the act" but it failed to follow its own advice with its second-rate coverage of the Conservative convention in Toronto.

The public corporation ran a poor second to CTV in all areas.

Stephen

Canadian had been aware of the leadership convention for months. It commanded the front pages for all of that time so the corporation can't say it wasn't conversant with the fact.

While CTV had pulled out all stops in its plans to cover the convention, until two weeks ago the CBC was still planning football game coverage interspersed with convention bits on the day the Tories were to pick their leader.

This was changed fortunately when cooler heads obviously prevailed.

On the night John Diefenbaker spoke out for unity, both networks were on hand. However, at the end of the speech CBC went to Tom Gould and Norman De Poe for analysis while CTV did the smart thing and went to the floor for immediate reaction from such as Dalton Camp, Robert Stanfield and others.

Then CTV went to Charles Lynch, Charles Templeton, Pierre Berton and Harvy Kirck, armed with material gleaned from Dief's speech plus reaction, for analysis.

It proved to be the superior product.

On this night too, CBC suffered from lack of cues between floormen and anchormen; floormen in the wrong places at the wrong time plus equipment which failed at strategic times.

CTV also worked the convention in color while CBC, living up to its coverage, was in insipid black-and-white.

Why? The corporation surely has the equipment, the men with know-how and the money to do the job properly. It spared no expense with coverage of the Pan-Am Games. Wasn't this Tory convention as important as a sports event in the eyes of those who direct CBC affairs?

A suggestion might be that the corporation is so filled with heavy-handed bureaucrats that their indecision allowed the CBC to fail to do the job it should have done for the benefit of all Canadians.

LARGE HOME PLUS HUGE COMMERCIAL GREENHOUSE

GROWING things for a hobby or an ideal spot for a full time gardener or landscaper, here is a REAL OPPORTUNITY for someone with business sense. The VERY ATTRACTIVE lot is OVER 1 acre and the greenhouse has a BIG hot water heating plant as well as a SOIL STERILIZER (STEAM). The HOME is large and has 4 Bedrooms (TWO with wall to wall carpeting) a large beautiful bathroom, a SMART living room (over 20 ft.) with a BIG fireplace, KNOTTY PINE kitchen with an EATING AREA for the whole family. The FULL HIGH basement has a RUMPUS ROOM with Fireplace and a SHOWER bathroom (Plus plenty of additional work area.) There is an attached garage as well as a DOUBLE carport. And, to top it all, a SEAVIEW that will improve shortly.

If you HATE seeing traffic, DON'T call me, you won't like it, but it is just far enough that it won't create excessive noise. This is AN EXCELLENT BUY at just $25,000.

SPINNAKER BALLOONING, the 6-metre Buzzy III, skippered by Vic Palmer, of Maple Bay, leads Victoria's Juno, with Ez. Horne at the helm, to win in its class in the Centennial yacht race Sunday.

BRISK AT FINISH

Big Tide, Wind Lack Hamper Race Start

Too much tide and not enough wind spoiled the start of the Centennial Yacht Race Sunday morning but conditions improved as the race progressed and a brisk wind filled the sails long before the winners drove across the finish line.

Skippers encountered almost every type of yachting condition. They ran into pouring rain, fog and still air which forced them to seek out patches of wind to keep the boats moving.

GOOD RUN

The prevailing winds sprang up true to form on the second leg from Albert Head to the Scrogg Rock marker and the yachts, as expected, flew their spinnakers and made a good run.

As if trying to make up for their lack of co-operation at the start the gods of the weather changed the course of the winds and the boats were again able to fly spinnakers on the third and final leg for the run home.

First to cross the finish line in 6-metre class was the Maple Bay boat, Buzzy III, skippered by Vic Palmer of the Maple Bay Yacht Club, followed by L. E. Horne's Juno, RVYC, with Alarm, skippered by Charles Baynes of the Seattle Yacht Club, in third place.

In division four, for large boats with an over-25 rating, a new boat Tandem II, skippered by Theo de la Mare, RVYC, was first. Rolf and Glen Higgin's 40-foot sloop Sea Smoke from the Turkey Head Yacht Club was second with Hammerhead, owned by Max Young, RVYC, third.

Lollipop, skippered by Vancouver's Hunter Vogel, and the first entry to be received, crossed the line first in the division three for 22 to 25 rating boats. E. Woodcock's Miramar from RVYC was second and Ken Lowe's Bris was third.

Three Victoria men were leaders in the division two class. Owl, skippered by R. Grundison was first followed by Ned Ashe in May D II and Peter Moon's Hilunga.

Another Victoria trio led in division one.

WEATHER CONDITIONS

Several boats found they couldn't beat the tide at the beginning of the race and didn't start. Others saw that weather conditions were beating them in mid-race and changed course for home.

First to complete the course was the catamaran, Bow Jang, skippered by Doug Beer. Only two catamarans took part but didn't compete for Centennial trophies because five are needed for an official class.

The Buzzy III led the fleet for most of the race but outside Victoria Harbor the catamaran moved ahead.

Stanfield Becomes Number 6

TORONTO (CP) — Robert Stanfield is the sixth provincial premier since Confederation in 1867 to become national leader of a Canadian political party. He is the fourth Conservative leader to come from the provincial field.

One of the former provincial premiers to become prime minister was Sir John Thompson. Like Mr. Stanfield he was from Nova Scotia. He became prime minister late in 1892. Two years later he died.

The former provincial premiers who headed the Conservatives sat on the platform during last week's Conservative convention:

John Bracken was Liberal-Progressive premier of Manitoba from 1922 to 1943, then left to lead the Conservatives. In 1948 he was succeeded as Conservative leader by George Drew, who had been Ontario premier for five years.

T. C. Douglas, CCF premier of Saskatchewan from 1944 to 1961, is current leader of the New Democratic Party.

. . . HOUSING

Regarding sub-contract labor, there is a "lot unqualified but a majority are qualified. The members of our association, using sub-contract or union labor, will back up the work done."

How to choose the right contractor to build the house?

Mr. Sawyer said there are scores of general contractors in the area, mainly in the housing field. A licence may be acquired for as little as $15.

"Any person, qualified or unqualified, reliable or otherwise, can set himself up as a general contractor.

"Yours could be the very first house he has ever built or in fact the very first anything. This type of general contractor will invariably subcontract all the labor involved in your house.

"About his only consideration regarding sub-contractors is that their price be low and their work gets past the various inspectors."

Qualified tradesmen have been "forced out of the field, leaving it mainly to handymen or people not sufficiently skilled to hold down an hourly-paid job."

The saving, "if any," in labor costs was not passed on to the customer "but goes into the pocket of the so-called general contractor."

Mr. Sawyer said "without taking a thing away from the building inspectors" there were too few of them to adequately inspect all of the building in their areas and there were "virtually no regulations as to the quality of workmanship."

Mr. McLaren said he has "a lot of faith" in the municipal inspectors "and they are doing a good job."

Mr. Sawyer's advice: Engage a bona-fide contractor who "operates legitimately, hires his qualified workmen by the hour and is responsible for their work. Any other trades that he may engage are likely to be of the same high quality."

Such a contractor "will also welcome any inspections of the house while under construction" providing it did not interfere with the progress of work.

Mr. McLaren said members of the Victoria Home Builders Association hire "good qualified labor" whether in the union or not.

The third alternative in house acquisition is to buy one already built but Mr. Sawyer warned this is "where the unwary can come a cropper."

These houses could have been owner-built, or by the owner engaging a contractor, or by a speculator or by a promoter.

"A coat of cheap paint can disguise a multitude of building sins from the untrained eye, the price is high enough to lull the slightest suspicion that things are not what they should be.

"Don't hesitate to ask the realtors. If they have nothing to hide they will welcome any questions or inspections."

Mr. Sawyer said the point of his warnings is "although a man's home is his castle, don't let yours be full of creaking ghosts.

"The contention is that contractors employing properly-qualified hourly-paid workmen produce a superior house at no extra cost.

"It would be ridiculous to suggest there are no qualified carpenters who are not members of the union.

"But it must be pointed out that the rate of pay established by the union for qualified carpenters working under an agreement is $4.45 per hour including fringes.

"Therefore, does it seem reasonable that a properly-qualified carpenter would be prepared to work for less than the established pay and conditions?"

Mr. McLaren said there are a variety of jobs to be done in house construction and "one or two qualified" men are needed.

But there was room for grading of carpenters according to ability because not every carpenter is as capable as the next.

He said one or two qualified men, with helpers, can "produce as good a house as a full qualified crew."

Scout Registration

Registration for the eighth Camouson Scout Troop (boys between the ages of 11 and 14) will be held Tuesday, 7 p.m., at First United Church, Balmoral Road.

GARDEN SHOW

Exhibits, Visitors Show Boost

An increase in the number of exhibits and visitors was recorded Saturday at the 13th annual Gordon Head Garden Club fall show.

Mrs. M. Gelling won three trophies: the Hudson's Bay Challenge Trophy for the highest aggregate in the show, open class; the McMullen Challenge Cup for the highest aggregate in the show, members only; Wrenshall Rose Bowl for the highest aggregate in decorative arrangements.

11 FIRSTS

Mrs. Gelling won 11 first prizes for miniature dahlias, zinnias, african marigolds, acidanthera and arrangements of flowers in a container, indoor planter, and beans and onions, shallots and strawberries.

She also won 19 second prizes in a variety of other categories.

Peggy Waterton won the W. J. Pynn Challenge Trophy for the highest aggregate in the junior section. She was awarded firsts for her exhibits of driftwood and flower arrangement and a second for centennial motif.

The Wightman Trophy for the highest aggregate in the vegetable section went to H. W. Gardner who won three firsts for scarlet runners, cabbages, potatoes and seven seconds for corn, yellow onions, largest onions, broccoli, shallots, exhibit onions, parsnips and vegetable marrow.

Other multiple winners included: Miss A. M. Williamson, Mrs. N. E. Sargeant, A. E. Whittaker, Don Gayley, E. Renouf, Mrs. S. Fourbister, Mrs. W. Rowan, Mrs. A. M Renouf, J. Doe, Miss Marie Sutherland and Mrs. D. Wrenshall.

Tories 'Missed Opportunity'

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta says the Progressive Conservative party missed "a great opportunity" to look at fundamental political realignment during its national convention.

Premier Manning said in an interview Sunday that "from anything I've read or heard it doesn't appear they even considered the matter. It appeared they didn't get down to anything fundamental and they were going to continue to be all things to all men."

Premier Manning said the Conservatives must "face the fact of a crying need in Canada to get back to meaningful alternatives.

"There was no indication from the convention that they dealt with anything but the leadership."

Earlier in the week Premier Manning sent a telegram to John Diefenbaker congratulating him on his stand for a "strong and united Canada." The entire matter of the two nations concept was one of specific policy and not of realignment, he said.

Nightmare Now Over

TORONTO (CP) — Dalton Camp, national president of the Conservative party, said Saturday night he takes no credit for the successful campaign of Premier Stanfield for the leadership.

Mr. Camp, a Stanfield backer and campaign manager, told reporters: "Bob won on merit. it was a hard, honorable fight.

"I said several months ago it would be a nightmare to try to pick between Bob Stanfield and Duff Roblin. This was a kind of nightmare.

"But we all had to do what we thought was right. I must say I'm very satisfied with the events tonight."

Mr. Camp said he does not believe the Liberals will call a snap election.

"We've got a lot of momentum going for us. It's more likely the Liberals will slow down. We're ready for a vote right now."

Casals Selected For Freedom Award

NEW YORK (AP) — Cellist Pablo Casals has been selected by the board of trustees of Freedom House to receive the annual Freedom Award next April 8, it was announced Sunday.

Board chairman Paul H. Douglas said Casals, 91, was selected "for having perfectly harmonized the freedom-supporting acts of his life with the rich artistry of his music."

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Rammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20 volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Nancy Garcia, age 12, of Elmhurst, New York, for her question:

Where do mosquitos spend the winter?

Sometimes it seems as though nature does not care a hoot about our convenience. Summer is the season for picnics and fun outdoors. It is also the season of pesky mosquitos. When winter is too cold to enjoy picnics, the mosquitos have departed from our favorite outdoor places.

It is some consolation to know that most of the mosquitos that haunted your summer picnics will have perished by Christmas. Of course, in most places, the Christmas season is no time for picnics — but it is still a bit cheering to know that the wintery weather is fatal to those squadrons of enemy insects. To a young naturalist, this, of course, poses a problem. If all or almost all the flying mosquitos perish in the late fall, how in the world can nature produce a new crop to pester us next season?

The truth is that the wretched creatures are in hiding through the winter. Insects do not grow up bit by bit from babyhood as cats and dogs do. Intead, their life cycle is a series of different stages. The mosquito goes through a process called metamorphosis. This dramatic process transforms it into an entirely different creature. In winter, next summer's mosquito is in an unrecognizable dormant stage in a very unexpected hiding place.

The mosquito is an amphibious insect, spending three quarters of its life in the water and the rest as a winged flier in the air. Mrs. Mosquito lays a raft of eggs on some lake or lazy stream. The floating raft is made from 50 to 200 small, white, cone-shaped eggs, standing on end and packed together side by side. The eggs may spend the winter in this dormant stage. After a few warm days, they hatch and become small water bugs with hammer-shaped heads.

Floats on Water

The mosquito larva is a fierce little tiger, greedy for bits of plant and animal debris. It is a good swimmer, always eager to attack its neighbors. But unlike other water dwellers, the mosquito grub is an air breather. It must come to the surface to get oxygen. In a week or so, the grub is ready to advance to the pupa stage. It rises to the surface once more, and seals itself inside a leathery chrysalis. There it rests, hanging with its tail end down. After a few sunny days, a transformation takes place inside the chrysalis. It cracks open and out struggles a winged adult mosquito.

Our worst enemy is Mrs. Mosquito, for the male insect cannot sting us. What's more, it is the female who lays the eggs for more of her kind. During the summer, she produces brood after brood. The last batch of eggs stays dormant until spring, floating innocently on some watery surface. In Alaska, hordes of dormant mosquito eggs hide under winter snow.

The squadrons of flying mosquitos that annoy us in summer also are unpopular with the Board of Health. We can down them with sprays of insecticides. But experts say there is an even better way to eliminate them. In spring, they spray oily films on water surfaces which may be harboring the young mosquito larvae. The oily film suffocates the air-breathing larvae, and the pesky dive-bombers are destroyed before they change into airborne adults.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Rose Hutson, age 15, of Spencer, Oklahoma, for her question:

Is it true that a hippo sweats blood?

Some of our zoos have special quarters for a hippopotamus and visitors crowd around the special attraction. After all, Mr. Hippo has the biggest mouth in the world and we want to see it. His zoo home, as a rule, is a glass-walled chamber of moist, warm air with a hippo-sized pool for dunking and an area of dry slabs for sun bating. When out of the water, the hippo's skin tends to glisten with pinkish dew and the poor fellow seems to be sweating blood. But this is not so.

In the wilds he spends most of his time in and under the water of a river. And you know what a long dunking does to your skin. The water steals its natural oils and moisture. Your skin protests with wrinkled puckers and becomes very dry. The hippo has extra oil glands in his skin and they secrete an oily dew that happens to be tinged with pink. When in the river, this rosy brilliantine stops the water from stealing moisture from his skin. When sun bathing, the same pinkish oil protects his water-soaked skin from drying out in the air. His special skin lotion oozes from oil glands and not from sweat glands. And the chemical that tinges it pink does not come from the hippo's blood supply.

Arthritics Can Build New Hope

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

For some time laboratory workers have been finding in the blood of patients with rheumatoid arthritis a so-called "rheumatoid factor." This suggests there is in the body some chemical that has to do with the production of the disease. There seems also to be a hereditary factor in the production of this terrible affliction.

Alvarez

I can remember a girl of 16, one of the first patients I saw with rheumatoid arthritis when I started practice. Many years later her older sister got it. Interesting is the fact that sometimes a person with rheumatoid arthritis will get systemic lupus erythematosus, or a person with generalized lupus erythematosus will get rheumatoid arthritis. This exchange strongly suggests the two diseases have the same cause —perhaps an auto-immunity or a condition in which one part of the body becomes allergic to all other parts, and in the process becomes injured.

Sometimes, in its earliest stages, rheumatoid arthritis is hard to diagnose. A few times I have diagnosed it in ailing people whose joints were not yet definitely diseased. I remember some had a blood sedimentation rate of around 50, which is typical of rheumatoid arthritis.

In this test, blood to which is added a chemical that prevents clotting is put in a long narrow glass tube and an hour later the laboratory worker measures the distance through which the red blood cells have fallen. The farther they fall, the worse the patient's illness is likely to be.

Sometimes a physician can diagnose a beginning rheumatoid arthritis from X-ray films of the joints which show injury to the ends of the bones. Curiously, rheumatoid arthritis can sometimes flare up and later quiet down and go away for a while.

Occasionally, I have seen the disease clear up rather suddenly. I can remember back in 1930 or so when the great expert on arthritis, Dr. Philip Hench, used to tell me how some of his patients with rheumatoid arthritis would get much better if they became pregnant or became jaundiced.

Some day we are going to identify some chemical that is formed during pregnancy or jaundice which can give relief to people with rheumatoid arthritis, and then perhaps we will be able to work miracles.

Hunter, Sons, Low Bidders On Test Station

A low bid of $333,926 was submitted by E. J. Hunter and Sons Friday for the motor-vehicle testing station in Saanich which will serve southern Vancouver Island.

Six other bids were made for the work, with the highest $385,550.

Award for the work will be made shortly. The testing station, with three lanes and a one-storey administration building, will be built at Borden-McKenzie-Cedar Hill.

Work is expected to be completed early next year allowing for compulsory testing of all motor vehicles to start then.

20% OFF BULLDOG VICTURA Premium Quality Tires

124
Bulldog Victura tires are built to "Premium Quality" specifications. The casing is stronger, heavier . . . and the tread is deeper than most new car tires. You get extra safety . . . plus extra mileage with Victura.

- EXTRA STRENGTH
Victuras are constructed with 4 plies of pressure tempered nylon cord . . . pound for pound it's stronger than steel. Heavy-duty construction like this virtually eliminates blowouts.

- EXTRA MILEAGE
Victura uses tough, long-wearing "Poly B" tread rubber. Victuras tread is deeper than new car equipment tires with more rubber on the shoulders where the wear is greatest.

NORTH PORT WRECKED BY U.S. BOMBERS

SAIGON (CP) — United States navy planes virtually knocked out Cam Pha, North Vietnam's third biggest seaport, in the first raid on the previously restricted target, the U.S. command announced today.

Cam Pha, only 46 miles northeast of Haiphong, the biggest northern port, is a major outlet for valuable coal exports to China and Russia that help pay for arms.

Until the raid Sunday, the port, which is used by Russian coaling ships, had been on the Pentagon's list of restricted targets.

On the ground, bloody battling again raged between outnumbered U.S. marines and nearly 3,000 North Vietnamese, with both sides taking heavy casualties.

BORDER INCIDENT

China-India Fight Erupts

NEW DELHI (CP)—Indian and Chinese forces clashed on the Sikkim border with Chinese-held Tibet today.

The Indian defence ministry said Chinese artillery and small arms fire killed some Indians and wounded others. China claimed 25 of its troops were killed or wounded.

Both sides blamed the other for starting the fight, the second in five days in the area high in the Himalayas.

As protector of Sikkim, India is responsible for its defence.

Independent accounts in New Delhi were that eight Indians were wounded and a smaller number killed.

FIRING IN MIST

All India radio reported the Chinese troops opened fire in mist on Indian forces guarding Nathu La Pass. It said the shooting started with rifle and machine-gun fire and then was followed up with artillery and mortars.

From Peking, the New China news agency claimed the Indians crossed into Tibet at the pass, attacking Chinese frontier guards under cover of artillery fire.

All India radio said a few Indian soldiers were wounded in the exchange.

The Chinese broadcast dispatch said the Indians were seeking to "provoke an even larger scale border incident."

The two forces clashed at Nathu La last Thursday and each side later accused the other of intruding across the border. The Chinese claimed then that two of their soldiers were wounded by Indian bayonets.

Sikkim is an Indian protectorate.

End Split Of Europe —De Gaulle

WARSAW (CP) — President Charles de Gaulle urged Poland today to join with France in the creation of a united Europe reaching from the Atlantic to Russia's Ural Mountains.

Speaking to the Polish Parliament, near the end of his six-day state visit, de Gaulle urged an end to the Europe of two opposed blocs.

"Destiny," he said, "offers to Poland and France the possibility to work together in a close and privileged way. We are ready to undertake this with you Poles."

De Gaulle in his 15-minute speech said that "real security for our countrymen and for each country of our continent cannot of course result from the confrontation of two blocs, facing one another with forces on the alert and opposing pacts.

"On the contrary, let there be established among us from the Atlantic to the Urals a deliberate policy and practice of relaxation of tension, understanding and co-operation."

De Gaulle was followed to the rostrum by Polish Communist Party leader Wladyslaw Gomulka, who urged that co-operation replace "the dangerous division imposed upon Europe by blocs."

RIGHTS 'EQUAL'

But he said the existence of two German states with equal rights must be accepted as "the only way to regularize the German problem to serve the cause of peace."

De Gaulle also repeated the

Greece, Turkey Agree On Cyprus Settlement

ALEXANDROUPOLIS, Greece (AP) — Turkish Premier Suleyman Demirel and Premier Constantine Kollias of Greece say they have agreed to settle the Cyprus problem peacefully.

No concrete steps were listed in their joint communique, however, as the two leaders ended talks Sunday night. Observers on both sides had not yet been found.

Cyprus, whose 600,000 population is 80 per cent Greek and 20 per cent Turkish, was the scene of large-scale fighting between Greek and Turkish residents in 1963. A UN peacekeeping force including several hundred Canadians is still on duty.

The Greeks want Cyprus united with Greece. Turkey opposes this, and it is generally believed that the island's Greek-Cypriot president, Archbishop Makarios, is not enthusiastic about it although he has endorsed the unity movement, known as Enosis.

Nova Scotia MP Offers Seat For Stanfield in Commons

ROBERT STANFIELD . . . New Conservative Leader

Resigning Right Away As Premier

(Times News Services)

Cyril F. Kennedy today announced he is prepared to resign from the House of Commons to offer his Colchester - Hants seat in Nova Scotia to Robert L. Stanfield, new national leader of the Progressive Conservative Party.

Mr. Kennedy, 52, said in a brief statement he would resign the seat he has held since 1957 if the new leader wants to seek election there. Mr. Stanfield, still premier of Nova Scotia, was elected to succeed Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker at a leadership convention in Toronto Saturday.

See Stories On Pages 6, 7

Mr. Kennedy said he had not discussed his move with Mr. Stanfield and did not know if the premier would accept the offer. This town is Mr. Stanfield's birth place and Colchester-Hants is familiar political ground for the 53-year-old leader.

ELTCTED IN 1949

Mr. Stanfield was first elected to the Nova Scotia legislature in the provincial riding of Colchester in 1949, a year after he was elected provincial PC leader. He and Finance Minister G. I. Smith have been re-elected in the two-member constituency with sizable majorities since then.

Mr. Kennedy was re-elected in Colchester-Hants in the 1958, 1962, 1963 and 1965 general elections.

The new leader was scheduled to leave for Halifax at 5:30 p.m. EDT by chartered plane. He said he plans to resign immediately as premier of Nova Scotia and will begin Tuesday the process of turning over the Nova Scotia government to new hands. He did not amplify his statement on this point.

MAY BE CHANGES

The new leader told Toronto newsmen a Conservative policy convention will be called within 15 months.

He said the controversial statement on policy adopted by a committee at last week's leadership convention will be given continuing study, along with policy recommendations from the constituencies, by a group to be set up for the purpose.

The committee report, adopted as a series of recommendations for party policy for the next federal election, contained a recommendation that the party favor a two-nation concept for Canada. This was opposed by Mr. Diefenbaker.

The new leader would not say that the committee report would be adopted by the study group without change.

"It is not necessarily a work of perfection," he said. "There may very well be changes in the report."

Mr. Stanfield received from William Davis, Ontario minister of education and chairman of the convention's policy committee, copies of the commit-

FOR NEW TORY CHIEF

Maritimes Rolling Out Red Carpet

By Times Ottawa Bureau

TORONTO — Robert Stanfield goes home to Halifax today and the roaring welcome given a conquering hero.

The red carpet is being rolled out for the man from the Maritimes who captured the Conservative Party crown.

He came out of relative political obscurity as the 53-year-old premier of an Atlantic province to lead the field in all five ballots Saturday at Maple Leaf Gardens.

After seven hot, action-packed, spine-tingling hours of the highest political drama, it was Stanfield by 1,150 votes to 969 for Manitoba's Duff Roblin at the finish.

And also finished was John Diefenbaker.

Nine days before his 72nd birthday, the man who had led the Tories to the greatest Parliamentry strength in Canadian history, was cut down.

He went down battling in an obviously hopeless struggle, and cold-bloodedly the voting machines counted him out.

His total rejection was proof that the convention did not agree with his interpretation of the party's two-nation policy for Canada, and did not see it as the death blow for Canada that he did.

Depended on Old Loyalties

In the first ballot—and his hopes lay in strength in this one when he was depending on old loyalties—he mustered only 271 votes out of 2,233.

The numbers showed that Diefenbaker, "The Chief" for 11 years, had outlived his political usefulness, and politics can be cruel when this time comes.

He withdrew after the third ballot when his strength had dwindled to only 14 votes.

And although he came out in his farewell speech still opposed to the two-nation policy, he also came out for party.

He made a speech that helped close the rift that has badly hurt the Tories in the dying years of his regime.

Man With Balance of Power

And although he did not get the job he so badly wanted, B.C.'s Davie Fulton wound up the man with the balance of power.

After the fourth ballot, Stanfield had 865 votes; Roblin 771; Fulton, 357, and Alvin Hamilton was knocked out as low man with 167.

But the word had got around the excited, perspiring crowds in the Gardens—at least those in the know—before the third ballot began, that Fulton, if he had not made gains by the third or fourth, would pull out after the fourth and throw his support in favor of Stanfield.

Many observers predicted early in last week's convention that this was going to happen, although there were denials from both sides of any deals.

But that was how it worked out. Fulton, tired and obviously disappointed, huddled with his advisers after the fourth ballot and then declared himself for Stanfield.

And that was all the Maritimer needed for victory.

Fulton's strength in the four ballots he participated in had held steady—343, 346, 361 and 357.

He didn't tell his followers to vote Stanfield and he didn't have to. They got the message.

Fulton Went Out With Dignity

But Fulton went out with dignity. He declined to wear a Stanfield hat or button, or make an obvious show of his switch.

The news, however, raced around the Gardens and the forest of Stanfield signs grew thicker in the seats.

But Stanfield, and he did not have to underscore the strategy, walked over and shook Fulton's hand and expressed appreciation of the gesture.

It is calculated that about 150 Quebec delegates stuck with Fulton to the end and about two-thirds of them followed to Stanfield.

The majority of the Quebecers favored the bilingual Roblin over the unilingual Stanfield, but the Maritimer probably got at least a quarter of their more than 500 votes.

His big strength came from the Maritimes as his commanding 519 votes in the first round indicated, but Stanfield now has good representation in the party in all parts of Canada.

The other candidates were never in it. Wally McCutcheon, who got 137 votes in the first and 76 in the second, threw in

POOR SHOWING 'BITTER PILL'

Dief Quitting House?

Times News Services

TORONTO — John Diefenbaker is seriously considering quitting the Parliamentary arena, close associates said here today.

Mr. Diefenbaker gambled at the leadership convention here last week that he could regain his hold on the Conservative party and carry on as national leader.

He lost the gamble.

He also lost, by his action in entering the race, the opportunity to bring about the election of a candidate that he would have preferred to see take over the party.

NO HELP TO THEM

It is well known that Mr. Diefenbaker would have preferred to see Donald Fleming, Alvin Hamilton, Michael Starr or Duff Roblin elected national leader rather than Robert Stanfield. When Mr. Diefenbaker entered the race as a candidate he destroyed the chances of those candidates to beat Mr. Stanfield.

As a last minute gesture designed to bolster Mr. Roblin's strength in the race, Mr. Diefenbaker invited the Manitoba premier to confer with him publicly in the jam-packed, super-heated Maple Leaf Gardens arena Saturday as the voting neared the final ballot. Mr. Diefenbaker's gesture probably did Mr. Roblin more harm that good as it turned out.

Mr. Diefenbaker's poor showing in the race was a bitter blow to The "Chief."

The day after the convention he conferred with close friends and supporters in the Royal York Hotel. They passed the word that he was seriously thinking about retiring.

IN MAJOR DEBATES

However some were urging him to carry on as a "senior statesman" of the party and retain his seat in the Commons. They said he coould make appearances in the House when major debates were underway or important pieces of Legislation were being considered.

It is understood Mr. Diefenbaker may return to Prince Albert to consult his constituents before making his decision whether to retire or continue.

A source close to Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan says Mr. Diefenbaker may be asked to become chancellor of his alma mater, the University of Saskatchewan.

Mr. Diefenbaker, after his

De Gaulle Quebec Visit 'Followed Up'

QUEBEC (CP)—Education Minister Alain Peyrefitte of France said today his current visit to Quebec is directly linked with the July visit of President de Gaulle, and the French support promised to French-speaking Canadians.

He made the statement to reporters on arrival at Quebec's Ancienne Lorette Airport to begin a five-day visit to the province.

"The visit I am making . . . is intended to bring concrete results to the visit of Gen. de Gaulle," he said.

"We must discover the wishes of our Quebec friends and find out how they fit in with ours."

During his three-day stay in Quebec City Mr. Peyrefitte is scheduled to study, with Quebec government authorities, the terms of cultural and educational agreements between Quebec and France which have been in effect since 1965.

SURVEYOR LANDS SOFTLY DESPITE LEAK

Quick Thinking Rescues Moon Mission

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—One satellite, with bees in its bonnet, and another, with bugs in its system, have fulfilled the dreams of U.S. space engineers just by landing in one piece.

The first, called the astrobug satellite, was snagged in flight over the Pacific Saturday as it came down from space after 30 trips around the earth.

The second, called Surveyor V, landed gently on the moon Sunday after scientists at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory here feared some leaks—the bugs—in a helium pressure system had killed the mission.

Surveyor Project Manager Howard Haglund told a press conference Sunday night the Surveyor V landed on a gentle slope, perhaps as much as 10 degrees off horizontal, about 18 miles northwest of its original aiming point in the dry Sea of Tranquillity.

The surveyor program manager, Ben Milwitsky, credited engineers with saving the mission after a valve stuck and caused a loss of the helium-used to force rocket fuel into three small braking engines that help guide the descent.

Milwitsky said the engineers who designed the flight pattern saved the mission by doing in 40 hours what usually takes a week of planning. He said they redesigned the mission after the helium problem cropped up. They held off firing the main retro rocket until the last second, saving every ounce of helium possible.

In the first pictures returned by the 600-pound craft, scientists saw a typical lunar landscape scene, loose-looking crater-pocked soil.

They hoped to start work on a new experiment right away, testing the soil to learn its chemical composition. By bombarding the lunar soil with alpha particles, then reading the reflected radiation, they hope to determine what elements are in the soil.

The quest for one element—iron—will be made with a magnet mounted on one of the craft's three legs. Lunar soil dropped on the magnet by a little electric scoop shovel will tell scientists if iron is present by showing whether particles stick or not.

The successful, if somewhat shaky, landing marks the third successful touchdown for the surveyor program. Two other craft apparently crashed into the moon at full speed, destroying themselves.

The astrobug satellite, known officially as Biosatellite II, was called an "unbelievable success" by scientists who gathered in Hawaii to greet the millions of bugs and plants inside the craft.

Dr. Samule P. Johnson of North American Aviation noted his experiment with pepper plants indicates "we now have evidence that gravity really controls the orientation of a plant."

He said the leaves on the plants sent into space folded down, although such plants under normal gravitation fold the leaves up.

Service Brakes To Be Required On Trailers

Mobile homes, commercial trailers or family weekend trailares must be equipped with service brakes after March 31, 1968, if they weigh more than 3,000 pounds.

An order in council passed Friday amended the Motor Vehicles Act to make the new provision mandatory for trailers using any highway in B.C.

The law says there must be a brake on each exle, unless the trailer has three or more axles, in which case it may be operated without brakes on one of them.

An exception is made if the gross weight of the trailer is less than 50 per cent of the weight of the towing vehicle, or if the trailer consists of a piece of construction machinery towed by a truck having a rated capacity greater than the combined weight of truck and trailer.

Develop A Powerful Memory?

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, how much they could influence many people do not realize others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear, or read. Whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training method in a new booklet "Adventures in Memory," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Send your name and address to: Memory Studies, 835 Diversey Parkway, Dept. 142-219, Chicago, Ill. 60614. A postcard will do.

Cut Provinces to 5, Urges Senator Hays

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Senator Harry Hays proposed Friday night that Canada be a nation of five provinces.

At the official opening of London's 100th Western Fair, the former agriculture minister from Calgary suggested:

—That British Columbia be one province all the way to Alaska;

That Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba be joined as one province stretching to the Arctic Ocean;

—That Ontario and Quebec remain individual provinces;

—And that the three Maritime provinces and Newfoundland form the fifth province.

Not only should there be only five provinces, but their boundaries should be reassessed every 10 years, he added.

CABINET WRONGDOINGS

Alberta Probe Opens Tuesday

The commission will investigate charges brought before the spring session of the legislature that a cabinet minister and a former cabinet minister used, or attempted to use, their public offices for personal gain.

The charges were made by Garth Turcott, then New Democratic Party member for Pincher Creek - Crowsnest, against E. W. Hinman, former provincial treasurer, and A. J. Hooke, then municipal affairs minister and now welfare minister.

The commission is headed by Mr. Justice W. J. C. Kirby of the Alberta Supreme Court. Commission counsel is Carl Clement of Edmonton, who says the inquiry should last a month, but it could last longer because of the number of counsel involved.

Represented by counsel are Mr. Hooke, Mr. Hinman, Mr. Turcott and Alberta NDP Leader Neil Reimer, the NDP, the provincial government, the Progressive Conservative party, the Liberal party, and Dr. C. A. Allard, an Edmonton doctor and businessman.

The inquiry first convened June 15 and was adjourned until Tuesday after receiving 124 exhibits.

Many were documents introduced into the legislature by MR. Turcott during a series of events that began almost a year ago.

MOTION FIRST REJECTED

A year ago at a special session of the legislature, Mr. Turcott tried to get the matter debated, but his motion was rejected.

During the throne speech debate at the regular spring session, he introduced some of the documents and called for a judicial inquiry.

After five weeks, the government announced the documents contained "no evidence of wrongdoing," and Mr. Turcott was challenged to bring in specific charges and supporting evidence.

He followed up with more documents and the inquiry was called.

Mr. Turcott won his seat in Pincher Creek - Crowsnest in a 1966 byelection, but lost it in the May 23 provincial general election. Mr. Hooke survived the election and was switched to the welfare portfolio in a cabinet shuffle caused by the election defeat of Education Minister McKinnon.

Mr. Hooke, 62, has been a member of the cabinet 24 years and represents the rural constituency of Rocky Mountain House in western Alberta.

Mr. Hinman, 61, had represented the Cardston constituency in southern Alberta since 1952. He was provisional treasurer from 1955 until 1964.

Cabin Fire Claims Four Children

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Four small children died Sunday when a cabin home was destroyed by fire while their father was in jail and their mother was away visiting friends.

The children were identified as Gloria Laboucan, 6, her sisters Beverly, 5, and Anita, 3, and a brother, John, 2. They were the children of Mr. and Mrs. George Laboucan.

RCMP said Mr. Laboucan had been arrested on an intoxication charge several hours before the blaze broke out at 4 a.m. Mrs. Laboucan was located at a friend's home.

There was speculation the fire began near a coal-wood stove, which the children might have lit. Police said there were no windows in the bedroom and only one door in the three-room cabin.

An investigation has been ordered.

100 BOATS DESTROYED IN BLAZE

KINGSTON, Wash. (AP)—A boathouse and nearly 100 pleasure boats were destroyed by fire Saturday night at Point No Point beach, near this community on the west side of Puget Sound.

Firemen from Kingston, Hansville and Squamish fought the blaze until 2:30 a.m. Sunday and timbers still smoldered Sunday afternoon.

Many of the boats destroyed were outboard rentals. But others were privately owned. There was no estimate of the damage.

The cause of the blaze was not determined Sunday.

ADVICE AVAILABLE . . . . . BE WISE AND SEEK IT

Home-Buying: Nightmare or Joy?

By JIM HUME and ROGER STONEBANKS

This is the last of a four-part series by Times reporters Jim Hume and Roger Stonebanks on housing problems in Greater Victoria. Today's article deals with pitfalls which face the potential home-buyer.

Buying a house is full of potential pitfalls.

But advice for the unwary or the unknowing is available.

It is always wise to consult bank or credit union managers and Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation for information on financing.

And this week, the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners announced a free house inspection offer.

"The carpenters' union offers the services of their inspection committee at no cost or obligation," said union vice-president Jim Sawyer.

"This committee is composed of first-class tradesmen who are familiar with all phases of house building.

"They are prepared to inspect your house under construction or even if it has been built within the last 12 months.

"They are also prepared to give advice on your best method of building and choosing a contractor.

"This is only one of the services that the carpenters union offers to members as well as the general public but it is one which you should take advantage of."

Mr. Sawyer said the inspection service is only for "genuine cases" and not where someone just has a "whim."

The Victoria Home Builders Association, a contractors' group, also offers an inspection service.

President Jim McLaren welcomed the carpenters union inspection offer.

"Anything that upgrades the standard of housing is more than welcome to us," he said.

There were 916 new houses completed in Metropolitan Victoria last year and 520 were started in the first seven months of this year.

Mr. Sawyer said the problem of providing more new housing "must be left with the senior levels of government to solve."

Adequate housing, "or the lack of it," was a problem here as elsewhere in the country.

But "families who will be fortunate enough to move into available new housing are also facing some real problems, of which they are not even aware."

There was a choice between being one's own builder or getting a contractor to put up the house.

"Either plan has its perils but a lot of them may be eliminated with proper advice," he said.

He mentioned that the local adult education program offers a winter course called Build Your Own Home.

If you become your own contractor, you can do the work you know how to do and either hire others or subcontract the rest.

"The problems here, however, can be many and costly.

If this is your first home-building experience you are not likely to be familiar with any of the various sub trades or they with you.

"As a one-house contractor, you are not likely to get the same low price or attention that the established multi-house builder can demand with the promise of continuing business.

"Nor will you get the prompt service that a general contractor can demand. The result is that you can add a couple more months to your estimated completion date.

"As these sub-trades don't know you, they are more likely to demand prompt pay on completion of work or before. You won't get the opportunity to sort out the best of these subs on a trial and error system as has the established general contractor.

"And finally as your own contractor you will experience great difficulty in securing any redress in the event that some parts of your house go sour," said Mr. Sawyer.

Three Teen-Agers Die In Highway Crashes

Killed Instantly In Separate Mishaps

Three teen-agers died in separate highway accidents on Vancouver Island Saturday.

Dead are:

Robert McDonald Wallace, 18, of New Westminster.

Barry William Abrosimo, 19, of Parksville.

All died instantly.

Abrosimo was killed when his car went out of control in the early hours on the Alberni-Parksville Highway.

It slammed into a guard rail nine miles west of Parksville four times before stopping.

Abrosimo's parents live in Vancouver.

Wallace was killed when the sports car in which he was a passenger slammed into a telephone pole on Maple Bay Road just outside Duncan.

Police said driver of the car was Harold Thomas Miskiman, 22, of Apt. 402, 118 Menzies Street, Victoria.

He was taken to King's Daughters' Hospital, Duncan, suffering cuts and bruises but was released the same evening.

CAR DEMOLISHED

The car was demolished in the 6:30 p.m. mishap. An inquest was to open tonight.

Simmonds died at the wheel of his late model English car when it skidded into trees on Bell-McKinnon Road, Chemainus around 9 p.m.

Two younger passengers escaped unhurt.

HOME FROM FAIR

RCMP said the three were on their way home from Cowichan Fall Fair when tragedy struck.

The driver lost control and the car skidded across the road into the trees.

Simmonds had just started Grade 12 at Chemainus secondary school and only Friday was elected class president.

He is survived by his parents Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Simmonds of South Chemainus Highway. An inquest was to open tonight.

'Bad Shape'

CLOSURE FACED BY PARK

Royal Athletic Park will probably be closed to all sporting activities before the end of the year,

Parks administrator Herb Warren said this morning the playing field of the stadium, opened just a few months ago, is already in bad shape and deteriorating rapidly.

"I would say that before the end of the year something drastic will have to be done," Mr. Warren said.

"We made the same mistake they made in Vancouver at Empire Stadium," he said. "They put down a clay-based turf and ran into expensive problems."

When the stadium was being built Mr. Warren was a strong advocate of seeding the playing surface.

PRESSURE

But various sporting groups in the city exerted pressure on city council and the final decision was to turf the playing field to have the stadium ready for a spring and summer sports schedule.

Mr. Warren said it would appear the turf will now have to be ripped out and the playing field seeded as originally planned.

If that decision is forced on council the seeding must take place late this fall to have the park ready for a full playing season next spring.

$5,000 COST

Mr. Warren said he could only give a rough estimate of the cost of removing the turf and seeding the playing area.

"I would figure at around $5,000," he said. "But that has to be very elastic figure because I really don't know what the final cost could be."

Total cost of the playing field to date is about $56,000 with $22,500 of that sum the cost of the purchase and the laying of the clay-based turf.

In addition $14,000 was spent on topsoil, $8,230 for a granulated base and $9,500 for drainage.

Since the turf was laid an additional expenditure of $2,200 has been made in an attempt to aerate and sand the playing surface to provide better drainage.

Mr. Warren said the attempt to save the turf had achieved little.

Dr. ROY LESLIE
. . . starts July 1

Scot Named to Head English Department

The new head of the University of Victoria's department of English was named today by president Malcolm Taylor.

Dr. Roy Leslie, 45, now teaching at the University of Wisconsin, will take over the department next July 1.

Dr. Leslie, a Scot, served in the RAF during the Second World War and later received his doctorate from the University of Manchester, where he taught for 14 years.

He moved to the University of Wisconsin in 1964 where he teaches history of English language, old and middle English literature.

BOOKS PUBLISHED

He has published several books on old English poetry. He also has lectured on phonetics, and given extension courses on modern poetry and the development of the English novel and English drama.

He is secretary of the English department's executive committee at Wisconsin, and the chairman of the area committee on English language and medieval literature.

PETER NAMED

Dr. John Peter, a member of the English department at Uvic since 1961, will serve as acting head until Dr. Leslie's arrival.

Dr. Peter returned to Canada this summer after spending a year at Oxford as a Commonwealth Visiting professor.

RAINFALL WASHES OUT WATERING RESTRICTION

Watering restrictions for the Greater Victoria District were formally lifted this morning.

Chief water commissioner Ron Upward said the heavy weekend rains had lifted reservoir levels to the point where the month-long ban on sprinkling could be forgotten.

"The lifting of the ban is just a formality," Mr. Upward said. "Who needs to sprinkle after Sunday's rain?"

Mr. Upward said roughly an inch of rain fell in the watershed during the weekend.

The first sprinkling ban was imposed on August 12 in the face of a threat of serious water shortage.

Permits Issued For Slash-Fires

It's been 2½ months since Victoria had as heavy a rain as fell during the weekend.

Weather officials say one-quarter to half an inch fell throughout the capital region—the most since June 22.

Since that time the city and district had measurable rain only on eight occasions.

The weekend rain was spread over most parts of the province, damping down forest fires after the worst fire season on record.

There was some sun today but there is indication there will be more rain in Greater Victoria before Tuesday night.

Forestry officials said there have been no real fire problems on the Island since Labor Day and the newest rain has made slash burning feasible. Permits are required but are easily obtainable.

Smoke seen on the Island is from slash burning.

Travel and recreation restrictions have been lifted in Kamloops area although some restrictions still exist in the Nelson and Peace River areas.

$6 MILLION

The fire season in B.C. is ending with a bill of close to $6 million for firefighting but the acreage destroyed was relatively low—just over 200,000 acres.

"Preliminary surveys indicate saleable timber loss will be very low," said a foresty spokesman.

Most damage occurred in the Shuswap area.

There were 3,000 separate blazes this summer, 1,065 in the Kamloops area, 874 near Nelson, 409 in Vancouver district and 413 in Prince George area.

The worst previous season was in 1960 when firefighting costs reached $4.7 million.

There were no deaths in the fires but five aerial deaths were attributed to them indirectly.

Police Forces Team Up To Get Speeder

City and Saanich police cars finally overhauled a speeding driver early Sunday after a chase on Douglas Streets at speeds up to 80 miles an hour.

Herbert Newton, 22, of 2676 Foul Bay Rd., was fined $100 and barred from driving when he pleaded guilty today to careless driving.

"That's how people get killed," Magistrate Ostler told Newton after hearing a city police car had to call on two Saanich cruisers to help catch the speeding car.

Newton was arrested after his auto was finally stopped at Douglas and the Trans-Canada Highway.

Sellout Forecast For Two Nights Of Hit Musical

Everyone loves Anne.

The box-office reported a continuous line-up during the morning with over 80 per cent of the tickets sold.

The Charlottetown Festival has played three consecutive seasons of 90 per cent capacity houses in the Prince Edward Island city.

SOLD OUT

One of the Centennial Commission's touring companies of Festival Canada productions, the national tour opened in Winnipeg last Wednesday to a complete pre-performance sellout of all five nights.

The musical is an adaptation of the well-beloved book by Lucy Maud Montgomery which tells the story of an orphan girl growing up with foster parents in the Prince Edward Island countryside.

Adults and children have found Anne's scrapes and misadventures irresistible.

A 15-piece orchestra accompanies the show.

Victorian Wounded, Shot by Companion

Vincent Orr, 18, of Victoria, was in good condition in Campbell River Hospital today after he suffered a gunshot wound in the leg Sunday.

Police said the youth was shot accidentally by a companion during target practice at Woss Camp, 60 miles northwest of Campbell River.

Every Dog Has His Day

Judged best-in-show Friday night was a miniature Poodle—English, Canadian, American and Bermuda champion Tophill Orsino.

Three-Way Accident Hospitalizes Driver

One man was admitted to hospital and two others were treated for minor injuries following a traffic accident involving a car, an ambulance and a cement-mixer truck Saturday.

Percy Doswell, 53, of 351 Robertson, the car driver is in fairly good condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital today with back injuries.

His wife Violet, and son Stephen, suffered only bruises and cuts in the crash.

SIREN GOING

Saanich police said the Doswell auto was northbound on the Pat Bay Highway at Royal Oak and in front of the cement truck driven by Edward Gait of 4317 Shelbourne when the two vehicles collided as the southbound ambulance approached, siren sounding.

Driver of the ambulance, which was not directly involved in the crash, was David Jensen of 1134 Pandora.

Damage to the truck and car was estimated at $1,800.

Police said the ambulance was transferring a patient to a city hospital.

Three people were treated for minor injuries at Royal Jubilee Hospital after two cars collided at Haultain and Fernwood Sunday evening.

City police said a car driven by Lum Seck Kow of 1168 North Park was eastbound on Haultain when it was in collision with an auto headed north on Fernwood and driven by Walter Soper of 1520 Gladstone.

Mr. Lum suffered face cuts and his passengers, Sit Chow, 33, and Byron Chow, 7, both of 1426 Pembroke, received minor cuts and abrasions.

Damage in the crash was estimated at $1,500.

MINOR ABRASIONS

Patricia Wagner, 3, of 1382 Hillside, suffered minor abrasions Saturday night when she ran into the path of a car in the 2800-block Cedar Hill.

Driver Walter Graff, 2827 Cedar Hill, was southbound on the street at the time.

Hit, Run Driver Pays $175 Fine

Sarwan Singh Sihota, 21, of 624 Gorge East, pleaded guilty to failing to remain at an accident, careless driving and driving without a licence.

Court was told Sihota was checked by Oak Bay police on Haultain a few minutes after the hit-and-run accident.

He told officers he was going to get his brother who spoke better English before he reported the accident.

Youth Guilty Of Stealing, Crashing Car

A youth who stole a car Friday night and later spun it into a utility pole will wait in jail until Tuesday, Sept. 19, to be sentenced.

Ronald Washko, 18, of Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt, pleaded guilty to the auto theft, to careless driving and to drving without a licence when he appeared in central court this morning.

Police said the car was stolen from the parking lot of the Royal Canadian Legion at 622 Admirals Road close to midnight Friday.

STRUCK POLE

About an hour later the accused fled after the car received between $1,200 and $1,500 damage when it hit the pole on Finlayson.

Washko was arrested early Saturday after he was seen prowling near parked cars at the Mayfair Shopping Plaza.

Arrested for being drunk, he admitted he was intoxicated when he stole and crashed the car.

THEY'RE WIDELY APPRECIATED, SAYS CENSOR

'No Personal Objections' to Sunday Movies

Sunday movies are quite acceptable to British Columbia's movie censor R. W. McDonald.

"I have no personal objections. They are widely appreciated.

"For many people a movie is a wonderful thing on a Sunday afternoon," Mr. McDonald said in an interview. Afternoon movies don't interfere with church attendance, he added.

Mr. McDonald was expressing his personal opinion between sessions of the Seventh Conference of Censors of Moving Pictures of Canada.

Vancouver has Sunday movies and they are well attended.

The city was able to make its own decision on the question because it has its own charter. Victoria and other B.C. municipalities are governed in this regard by the Municipal Act which now regulates against Sunday entertainment.

The UBCM convention at Prince George Sept. 20-22 will consider a resolution proposing Sunday sports and movies for paid admission. Final say rests with the provincial government, however.

TAKES WIFE

Mr. McDonald, who views 700 pictures a year and still takes his wife to the movies, says they offer the best entertainment value.

An ex-navy man, he is no prude. More and more movies appear that feature partial nudity. This is in keeping with changing public tastes, he believes, and the censors try to go along with the changes.

"There is a greater public tolerance of sex, brutality and violence," said the censor.

Even the bared female breast, seen in many modern movies, no longer brings complaints.

"The bared breast in itself is a plain fact. It is how it is used (in the movie) that is important."

If it is part of the story theme and removal of the scene would destroy the movie story line, it is acceptable to censors.

"But to employ it as a peep show would not be right," he added.

Anyone who might be offended by such scenes has advance warning through the "restricted" tag on film advertising. Then such persons can decide whether to attend.

The conference was to hear a speech by Attorney-General Robert Bonner at an Empress Hotel dinner at 7 tonight. Further deliberations, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, will take place in Vancouver.

SPINNAKER BALLOONING, the 6-metre Buzzy III, skippered by Vic Palmer, of Maple Bay, leads Victoria's Juno, with Ez. Horne at the helm, to win in its class in the Centennial yacht race Sunday.

BRISK AT FINISH

Big Tide, Wind Lack Hampers Race Start

Too much tide and not enough wind spoiled the start of the Centennial Yacht Race Sunday morning but conditions improved as the race progressed and a brisk wind filled the sails long before the winners drove across the finish line.

Skippers encountered almost every type of yachting condition. They ran into pouring rain, fog and still air which forced them to seek out patches of wind to keep the boats moving.

GOOD RUN

The prevailing winds sprang up true to form on the second leg from Albert Head to the Scrogg Rock marker and the yachts, as expected, flew their spinnakers and made a good run.

As if trying to make up for their lack of co-operation at the start the gods of the weather changed the course of the winds and the boats were again able to fly spinnakers on the third and final leg for the run home.

First to cross the finish line in 6-metre class was the Maple Bay boat, Buzzy III, skippered by Vic Palmer of the Maple Bay Yacht Club, followed by L. E. Horne's Juno, RVYC, with Alarm, skippered by Charles Baynes of the Seattle Yacht Club, in third place.

In division four, for large boats with an over-25 rating, a new boat Tandem II, skippered by Theo de la Mare, RVYC, was first. Rolf and Glen Higgin's 40-foot sloop Sea Smoke from the Turkey Head Yacht Club was second with Hammerhead, owned by Max Young, RVYC, third.

Lollipop, skippered by Vancouver's Hunter Vogel, and the first entry to be received, crossed the line first in the division three for 22 to 25 rating boats. E. Woodcock's Miramar from RVYC was second and Ken Lowe's Bris was third.

Three Victoria men were leaders in the division two class. Owl, skippered by R. Grundison was first followed by Ned Ashe in May D II and Peter Moon's Hilunga.

Another Victoria trio led in division one.

WEATHER CONDITIONS

Several boats found they couldn't beat the tide at the beginning of the race and didn't start. Others saw that weather conditions were beating them in mid-race and changed course for home.

First to complete the course was the catamaran, Bow Jang, skippered by Doug Beer. Only two catamarans took part but didn't compete for Centennial trophies because five are needed for an official class.

The Buzzy III led the fleet for most of the race but outside Victoria Harbor the catamaran moved ahead.

Stanfield Becomes Number 6

TORONTO (CP) — Robert Stanfield is the sixth provincial premier since Confederation in 1867 to become national leader of a Canadian political party. He is the fourth Conservative leader to come from the provincial field.

One of the former provincial premiers to become prime minister was Sir John Thompson. Like Mr. Stanfield he was from Nova Scotia. He became prime minister late in 1892. Two years later he died.

The former provincial premiers who headed the Conservatives sat on the platform during last week's Conservative convention:

John Bracken was Liberal-Progressive premier of Manitoba from 1922 to 1943, then left to lead the Conservatives. In 1948 he was succeeded as Conservative leader by George Drew, who had been Ontario premier for five years.

T. C. Douglas, CCF premier of Saskatchewan from 1944 to 1961, is current leader of the New Democratic Party.

Regarding sub-contract labor, there is a "lot unqualified but a majority are qualified. The members of our association, using sub-contract or union labor, will back up the work done."

How to choose the right contractor to build the house?

Mr. Sawyer said there are scores of general contractors in the area, mainly in the housing field. A licence may be acquired for as little as $15.

"Any person, qualified or unqualified, reliable or otherwise, can set himself up as a general contractor.

"Yours could be the very first house he has ever built or in fact the very first anything. This type of general contractor will invariably sub-contract all the labor involved in your house.

"About his only consideration regarding sub-contractors is that their price be low and their work gets past the various inspectors."

Qualified tradesmen have been "forced out of the field, leaving it mainly to handymen or people not sufficiently skilled to hold down an hourly-paid job."

The saving, "if any," in labor costs was not passed on to the customer "but goes into the pocket of the so-called general contractor."

Mr. Sawyer said "without taking a thing away from the building inspectors" there were too few of them to adequately inspect all of the building in their areas and there were "virtually no regulations as to the quality of workmanship."

Mr. McLaren said he has "a lot of faith" in the municipal inspectors "and they are doing a good job."

Mr. Sawyer's advice: Engage a bona-fide contractor who "operates legitimately, hires his qualified workmen by the hour and is responsible for their work. Any other trades that he may engage are likely to be of the same high quality."

Such a contractor "will also welcome any inspections of the house while under construction" providing it did not interfere with the progress of work.

Mr. McLaren said members of the Victoria Home Builders Association hire "good qualified labor" whether in the union or not.

The third alternative in house acquisition is to buy one already built but Mr. Sawyer warned this is "where the unwary can come a cropper."

These houses could have been owner-built, or by the owner engaging a contractor, or by a speculator or by a promoter.

"A coat of cheap paint can disguise a multitude of building sins from the untrained eye, the price is high enough to lull the slightest suspicion that things are not what they should be.

"Don't hesitate to ask the realtors. If they have nothing to hide they will welcome any questions or inspections."

Mr. Sawyer said the point of his warnings is "although a man's home is his castle, don't let yours be full of creaking ghosts.

"The contention is that contractors employing properly-qualified hourly-paid workmen produce a superior house at no extra cost.

"It would be ridiculous to suggest there are no qualified carpenters who are not members of the union.

"But it must be pointed out that the rate of pay established by the union for qualified carpenters working under an agreement is $4.45 per hour including fringes.

"Therefore, does it seem reasonable that a properly-qualified carpenter would be prepared to work for less than the established pay and conditions?"

Mr. McLaren said there are a variety of jobs to be done in house construction and "one or two qualified" men are needed.

But there was room for grading of carpenters according to ability because not every carpenter is as capable as the next.

He said one or two qualified men, with helpers, can "produce as good a house as a full qualified crew."

GARDEN SHOW

Exhibits, Visitors Show Boost

An increase in the number of exhibits and visitors was recorded Saturday at the 13th annual Gordon Head Garden Club fall show.

Mrs. M. Gelling won three trophies: the Hudson's Bay Challenge Trophy for the highest aggregate in the show, open class; the McMullen Challenge Cup for the highest aggregate in the show, members only; Wrenshall Rose Bowl for the highest aggregate in decorative arrangements.

11 FIRSTS

Mrs. Gelling won 11 first prizes for miniature dahlias, zinnias, african marigolds, acidanthera and arrangements of flowers in a container, indoor planter, and beans and onions, shallots and strawberries.

She also won 19 second prizes in a variety of other categories.

Peggy Waterton won the W. J. Pynn Challenge Trophy for the highest aggregate in the junior section. She was awarded firsts for her exhibits of driftwood and flower arrangement and a second for centennial motif.

The Wightman Trophy for the highest aggregate in the vegetable section went to H. W. Gardner who won three firsts for scarlet runners, cabbages, potatoes and seven seconds for corn, yellow onions, largest onions, broccoli, shallots, exhibit onions, parsnips and vegetable marrow.

Other multiple winners included: Miss A. M. Williamson, Mrs. N. E. Sargeant, A. E. Whittaker, Don Gayley, E. Renouf, Mrs. S. Fourbister, Mrs. W. Rowan, Mrs. A. M Renouf, J. Doe, Miss Marie Sutherland and Mrs. D. Wrenshall.

Tories 'Missed Opportunity'

EDMONTON (CP) — Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta says the Progressive Conservative party missed "a great opportunity" to look at fundamental political realignment during its national convention.

Premier Manning said in an interview Sunday that "from anything I've read or heard it doesn't appear they even considered the matter. It appeared they didn't get down to anything fundamental and they were going to continue to be all things to all men."

Premier Manning said the Conservatives must "face the fact of a crying need in Canada to get back to meaningful alternatives.

"There was no indication from the convention that they dealt with anything but the leadership."

Earlier in the week Premier Manning sent a telegram to John Diefenbaker congratulating him on his stand for a "strong and united Canada." The entire matter of the two nations concept was one of specific policy and not of realignment, he said.

Nightmare Now Over

TORONTO (CP) — Dalton Camp, national president of the Conservative party, said Saturday night he takes no credit for the successful campaign of Premier Stanfield for the leadership.

Mr. Camp, a Stanfield backer and campaign manager, told reporters: "Bob won on merit. it was a hard, honorable fight.

"I said several months ago it would be a nightmare to try to pick between Bob Stanfield and Duff Roblin. This was a kind of nightmare.

"But we all had to do what we thought was right. I must say I'm very satisfied with the events tonight."

Mr. Camp said he does not believe the Liberals will call a snap election.

"We've got a lot of momentum going for us. It's more likely the Liberals will slow down. We're ready for a vote right now."

Casals Selected For Freedom Award

NEW YORK (AP) — Cellist Pablo Casals has been selected by the board of trustees of Freedom House to receive the annual Freedom Award next April 8, it was announced Sunday.

Board chairman Paul H. Douglas said Casals, 91, was selected "for having perfectly harmonized the freedom-supporting acts of his life with the rich artistry of his music."

Algeria Protests USN 'Intrusion'

ALGIERS (UPI) — The Algerian government today protested an alleged violation of its territorial waters by "United States navy units".

Strike Blocked

NEW YORK (AP) — Engineers staged a wildcat work stoppage against the Long Island Railroad today but within a matter of hours a federal court judge ordered them back on their jobs "as soon as possible", the carrier reported.

Leftists Ousted

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (UPI) — Prince Norodom Sihanouk today fired two pro-Peking cabinet ministers in a crackdown on Communist elements in Cambodia. The chief of state also suspended all privately-operated newspapers, half of them pro-Chinese.

End Split Of Europe —De Gaulle

WARSAW (CP) — President Charles de Gaulle urged Poland today to join with France in the creation of a united Europe reaching from the Atlantic to Russia's Ural Mountains.

Speaking to the Polish Parliament, near the end of his six-day state visit, de Gaulle urged an end to the Europe of two opposed blocs.

"Destiny," he said, "offers to Poland and France the possibility to work together in a close and privileged way. We are ready to undertake this with you Poles."

De Gaulle in his 15-minute speech said that "real security for our countrymen and for each country of our continent cannot of course result from the confrontation of two blocs, facing one another with forces on the alert and opposing pacts.

"On the contrary, let there be established among us from the Atlantic to the Urals a deliberate policy and practice of relaxation of tension, understanding and co-operation."

De Gaulle was followed to the rostrum by Polish Communist Party leader Wladyslaw Gomulka, who urged that co-operation replace "the dangerous division imposed upon Europe by blocs."

RIGHTS 'EQUAL'

But he said the existence of two German states with equal rights must be accepted as "the only way to regularize the German problem to serve the cause of peace."

Cyprus Pact Agreed

ALEXANDROUPOLIS, Greece (AP) — Turkish Premier Suleyman Demirel and Premier Constantine Kollias of Greece say they have agreed to settle the Cyprus problem peacefully.

No concrete steps were listed in their joint communique, however, as the two leaders ended talks Sunday night. Observers on both sides had not yet been found.

Cyprus, whose 600,000 population is 80 per cent Greek and 20 per cent Turkish, was the scene of large-scale fighting between Greek and Turkish residents in 1963. A UN peacekeeping force including several hundred Canadians is still on duty.

The Greeks want Cyprus united with Greece. Turkey opposes this, and it is generally believed that the island's Greek-Cypriot president, Archbishop Makarios, is not enthusiastic about it although he has endorsed the unity movement, known as Enosis.

Maritimes Rolling Out Red Carpet

By Times Ottawa Bureau

TORONTO — Robert Stanfield goes home to Halifax today and the roaring welcome given a conquering hero.

The red carpet is being rolled out for the man from the Maritimes who captured the Conservative Party crown.

He came out of relative political obscurity as the 53-year-old premier of an Atlantic province to lead the field in all five ballots Saturday at Maple Leaf Gardens.

After seven hot, action-packed, spine-tingling hours of the highest political drama, it was Stanfield by 1,150 votes to 969 for Manitoba's Duff Roblin at the finish.

And also finished was John Diefenbaker.

Nine days before his 72nd birthday, the man who had led the Tories to the greatest Parliamentry strength in Canadian history, was cut down.

He went down battling in an obviously hopeless struggle, and cold-bloodedly the voting machines counted him out.

His total rejection was proof that the convention did not agree with his interpretation of the party's two-nation policy for Canada, and did not see it as the death blow for Canada that he did.

Depended on Old Loyalties

In the first ballot—and his hopes lay in strength in this one when he was depending on old loyalties—he mustered only 271 votes out of 2,233.

The numbers showed that Diefenbaker, "The Chief" for 11 years, had outlived his political usefulness, and politics can be cruel when this time comes.

He withdrew after the third ballot when his strength had dwindled to only 114 votes.

And although he came out in his farewell speech still opposed to the two-nation policy, he also came out for party.

He made a speech that helped close the rift that has badly hurt the Tories in the dying years of his regime.

Man With Balance of Power

And although he did not get the job he so badly wanted, B.C.'s Davie Fulton wound up the man with the balance of power.

After the fourth ballot, Stanfield had 865 votes; Roblin 771; Fulton, 357, and Alvin Hamilton was knocked out as low man with 167.

But the word had got around the excited, perspiring crowds in the Gardens—at least those in the know—before the third ballot began, that Fulton, if he had not made gains by the third or fourth, would pull out after the fourth and throw his support in favor of Stanfield.

Many observers predicted early in last week's convention that this was going to happen, although there were denials from both sides of any deals.

But that was how it worked out. Fulton, tired and obviously disappointed, huddled with his advisers after the fourth ballot and then declared himself for Stanfield.

And that was all the Maritimer needed for victory.

Fulton's strength in the four ballots he participated in had held steady—343, 346, 361 and 357.

He didn't tell his followers to vote Stanfield and he didn't have to. They got the message.

Fulton Went Out With Dignity

But Fulton went out with dignity. He declined to wear a Stanfield hat or button, or make an obvious show of his switch.

The news, however, raced around the Gardens and the forest of Stanfield signs grew thicker in the seats.

But Stanfield, and he did not have to underscore the strategy, walked over and shook Fulton's hand and expressed appreciation of the gesture.

It is calculated that about 150 Quebec delegates stuck with Fulton to the end and about two-thirds of them followed to Stanfield.

The majority of the Quebecers favored the bilingual Roblin over the unilingual Stanfield, but the Maritimer probably got at least a quarter of their more than 500 votes.

His big strength came from the Maritimes as his commanding 519 votes in the first round indicated, but Stanfield now has good representation in the party in all parts of Canada.

The other candidates were never in it. Wally McCutcheon, who got 137 votes in the first and 76 in the second, threw in

NORTH PORT WRECKED BY U.S. BOMBERS

SAIGON (CP) — United States navy planes virtually knocked out Cam Pha, North Vietnam's third biggest seaport, in the first raid on the previously restricted target, the U.S. command announced today.

Cam Pha, only 46 miles northeast of Haiphong, the biggest northern port, is a major outlet for valuable coal exports to China and Russia that help pay for arms.

Until the raid Sunday, the port, which is used by Russian coaling ships, had been on the Pentagon's list of restricted targets.

On the ground, bloody battling again raged between outnumbered U.S. marines and nearly 3,000 North Vietnamese, with both sides taking heavy casualties.

BORDER INCIDENT

China-India Fight Erupts

NEW DELHI (CP)—Indian and Chinese forces clashed on the Sikkim border with Chinese-held Tibet today.

The Indian defence ministry said Chinese artillery and small arms fire killed some Indians and wounded others. China claimed 25 of its troops were killed or wounded.

Both sides blamed the other for starting the fight, the second in five days in the area high in the Himalayas.

As protector of Sikkim, India is responsible for its defence.

Independent accounts in New Delhi were that eight Indians were wounded and a smaller number killed.

FIRING IN MIST

All India radio reported the Chinese troops opened fire in mist on Indian forces guarding Nathu La Pass. It said the shooting started with rifle and machine-gun fire and then was followed up with artillery and mortars.

From Peking, the New China news agency claimed the Indians crossed into Tibet at the pass, attacking Chinese frontier guards under cover of artillery fire.

All India radio said a few Indian soldiers were wounded in the exchange.

The Chinese broadcast dispatch said the Indians were seeking to "provoke an even larger scale border incident."

The two forces clashed at Nathu La last Thursday and each side later accused the other of intruding across the border. The Chinese claimed then that two of their soldiers were wounded by Indian bayonets.

44-CENT HIKE URGED

VANCOUVER (CP)—An industrial inquiry commissioner today recommended a 44-cent hourly pay boost for Interoir members of the International Woodworkers of America but rejected their demands for instant parity with Coast IWA members.

The report was immediately rejected by union leaders.

SIU Talks Called In Strike

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister Nicholson has called both sides in the shipping strike to a meeting in Montreal Friday afternoon to discuss terms for a possible settlement.

The meeting originally had been planned for Ottawa but it was later changed to Montreal by mutual agreement.

Mr. Nicholson personally telephoned Leonard McLaughlin, president of the Seafarers International Union of Canada and chief negotiators for the shipping firms to suggest the meeting. They quickly agreed.

The talks are expected to take place in the Montreal office of the federal trustees who have been overseeing the operations of five maritime unions, particularly the SIU, for the last three years.

De Gaulle Quebec Visit 'Followed Up'

QUEBEC (CP)—Education Minister Alain Peyrefitte of France said today his current visit to Quebec is directly linked with the July visit of President de Gaulle, and the French support promised to French-speaking Canadians.

He made the statement to reporters on arrival at Quebec's Ancienne Lorette Airport to begin a five-day visit to the province.

"The visit I am making . . . is intended to bring concrete results to the visit of Gen. de Gaulle," he said.

"We must discover the wishes of our Quebec friends and find out how they fit in with ours."

During his three-day stay in Quebec City Mr. Peyrefitte is scheduled to study, with Quebec government authorities, the terms of cultural and educational agreements between Quebec and France which have been in effect since 1965.

Nova Scotia MP Offers to Resign

(Times News Services)

Cyril F. Kennedy today announced he is prepared to resign from the House of Commons to offer his Colchester-Hants seat in Nova Scotia to Robert L. Stanfield, new national leader of the Progressive Conservative Party.

Mr. Kennedy, 52, said in a brief statement in Truro, N.S., he would resign the seat he has held since 1957 if the new leader wants to seek election there. Mr. Stanfield, still Premier of Nova Scotia, was elected to succeed Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker at a leadership convention in Toronto Saturday.

Mr. Kennedy said he had not discussed his move with Mr. Stanfield and did not know if the premier would accept the offer. Truro is Mr. Stanfield's birthplace and Colchester-Hants is familiar political ground for the 53-year-old leader.

Mr. Stanfield was first elected to the Nova Scotia legislature in the provincial riding of Colchester in 1949, a year after he was elected provincial PC leader. He and Finance Minister G. I. Smith have been re-elected in the two-member constituency with sizable majorities since then.

Mr. Kennedy was re-elected in Colchester-Hants in the 1958, 1962, 1963 and 1965 general elections.

The new leader was scheduled to leave for Halifax at 5:30 p.m. EDT by chartered plane. He said he plans to resign immediately as premier of Nova Scotia and will begin Tuesday the process of turning over the Nova Scotia government to new hands. He did not amplify his statement on this point.

MAY BE CHANGES

The new leader told Toronto newsmen a Conservative policy convention will be called within 15 months.

He said the controversial statement on policy adopted by a committee at last week's leadership convention will be given continuing study, along with policy recommendations from the constituencies, by a group to be set up for the purpose.

The committee report, adopted as a series of recommendations for party policy for the next federal election, contained a recommendation that the party favor a two-nation concept for Canada. This was opposed by Mr. Diefenbaker.

The new leader would not say that the committee report would be adopted by the study group without change.

"It is not necessarily a work of perfection," he said. "There may very well be changes in the report."

Mr. Stanfield received from William Davis, Ontario minister of education and chairman of the convention's policy committee, copies of the commit-

Will Dief Quit Commons?

Times News Services

TORONTO — John Diefenbaker is seriously considering quitting the Parliamentary arena, close associates said here today.

Mr. Diefenbaker gambled at the leadership convention here last week that he could regain his hold on the Conservative party and carry on as national leader.

He lost the gamble.

He also lost, by his action in entering the race, the opportunity to bring about the election of a candidate that he would have preferred to see take over the party.

NO HELP TO THEM

It is well known that Mr. Diefenbaker would have preferred to see Donald Fleming, Alvin Hamilton, Michael Starr or Duff Roblin elected national leader rather than Robert Stanfield. When Mr. Diefenbaker entered the race as a candidate he destroyed the chances of those candidates to beat Mr. Stanfield.

As a last minute gesture designed to bolster Mr. Roblin's strength in the race, Mr. Diefenbaker invited the Manitoba premier to confer with him publicly in the jam-packed, super-heated Maple Leaf Gardens arena Saturday as the voting neared the final ballot. Mr. Diefenbaker's gesture probably did Mr. Roblin more harm that good as it turned out.

The day after the convention he conferred with close friends and supporters in the Royal York Hotel. They passed the word that he was seriously thinking about retiring.

IN MAJOR DEBATES

However some were urging him to carry on as a "senior statesman" of the party and retain his seat in the Commons. They said he could make appearances in the House when major debates were underway or important pieces of Legislation were being considered.

It is understood Mr. Diefenbaker may return to Prince Albert to consult his constituents before making his decision whether to retire or continue.

A source close to Premier Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan says Mr. Diefenbaker may be asked to become chancellor of his alma mater, the University of Saskatchewan.

Mr. Diefenbaker, after his
